PREFACE

After almost incredible obstacles The History of the Brigham Family is herewith submitted to the living descendants of Thomas Brigham, the Puritan. Until this volume, the only record of this great American family was to be found in the conscientious volume, Brigham, issued by Rev. Abner Morse, A. M., in 1859. The idea of taking up and developing the work so well begun by Mr. Morse had its inception with Dr. B. A. R. Brigham of Chicago, through whose instrumentality the Brigham Family Association was organized 18 Oct., 1893 (see Appendix). It was and always has been the main purpose of the Association to publish a family history, but Dr. Brigham personally assumed the task and responsibility of preparing the work, although drawing heavily upon members of the family throughout the country for support. In 1896, by reason of ill health, he had become so incapacitated for work that he was compelled to relinquish the task he had laid out for himself.

Since its organization, Willard Irving Tyler Brigham of Chicago had served the Association modestly, but with marked ability as historian, and in 1901, the task of bringing genealogical order out of existing chaos was placed in his competent hands. He already had attracted some notice in the genealogical field and had made good progress with the Tyler Genealogy. No family ever was blessed with a more painstaking and conscientious, yet brilliant historian. He had abandoned a promising career at the bar to take up work of this class, and for years had been studying and traveling in pursuit of genealogical knowledge, particularly with reference to the Tyler and Brigham families. His historical sketches of the Brigham Family, including a most exhaustive attempt to trace its origin in Great Britain, were collated and published in an official report in 1901. Revised by Mr. Brigham, these constitute an important feature of the present work. The pictures of scenes in Great Britain which appear herein are from original photographs taken by Mr. Brigham on this trip.

Acting under a definite arrangement with the officials of the B. F. A., Mr. Brigham entered bravely upon his work in the summer of 1901. He had practically to start anew, but after the decease of Dr. Brigham, he negotiated, on behalf of the B. F. A., the return of the records gathered by the Doctor, which had been retained by his estate. These were of material assistance, although the papers had been much injured by lack of care and were often difficult to decipher. These papers were destroyed by our genealogist after he had carefully copied them all, hence we have been unable to consult them for purposes of verification.

President Charles O. Brigham of Toledo devised the plan under which an arrangement was made with Willard I. T. Brigham to complete and publish 350 copies of the Family History within three and one-half years, the original term of five years having been shortened by the receipt of the Doctor's papers. Ill health soon drove Willard to Arizona, where he continued his work for two years, practically from a dying bed. His one prayer was that he might live long enough to complete the work he had undertaken. This, however, was not to be, for he died in Auburn, California, 26 Sept., 1904. None except those intimately associated with him and his work can appreciate the sacrifices made by him and his devoted wife, the hardships and discouragements under which he labored and the debt of gratitude which all of the name and blood of Brigham owe to his memory.

Mr. Brigham's death was a stunning blow to the enterprise. So thoroughly, however, had his work been done that the Publication Committee found it practicable to place the data, all in the handwriting of the genealogist, in the hands of an editor.

A competent person was found in Miss Emma E. Brigham of Boston. She had been actively identified with the B. F. A. since its inception (librarian-curator 1893-1896, secretary 1896-1900, treasurer 1900-1906-7), and by means of intimate associations had acquired a more accurate and thorough knowledge of the Brigham lines than anyone else. She had also the advantages of large executive training and a good literary equipment. At great self-sacrifice, Miss Brigham collated and edited the MS. left by the deceased genealogist, meantime adding names and data representing about one thousand persons.

A third tragic event in the career of The History of the Brigham Family was the death, 2 May, 1906, of Charles O. Brigham of Toledo, President of the B. F. A., and Chairman of the Publication Committee, but for whose personal influence and financial aid it would have been well-nigh impossible to continue the work. Notwithstanding the great loss of President Brigham's able and enthusiastic co-operation in everything appertaining to the family publication, the work was continued to completion, and is herewith respectfully submitted. It doubtless has been impossible, owing to the circumstances under which this volume was compiled, to avoid errors, omissions and misunderstandings. We believe, however, that The History of the Brigham Family is substantially accurate. No pains to make it so have been spared. Our readers will bear in mind, of course, that the names, dates and other facts contained in the book are not the personal compositions of the author or editors, but, in a great majority of cases, have been contributed by others.

In the preparation of this book for the press, the work of our genealogist has been revised and verified to the extent of our ability, and much new matter has been added. The chapter on "Thomas Brigham, the Emigrant," was wholly rewritten by Mr. Henry A. Phillips of Boston. All except letters C and D of the Appendix are by the editors. The name of Rev. Abner Morse cannot be too highly honored by the Brigham Family for his service in collecting and publishing its earlier records; but Mr. Morse worked under great disadvantages and discouragements—practically without assistance of any kind, in fact—and it is not surprising, therefore, that we frequently have been compelled to omit reference to many statements which in his book stand forth as interesting and apparently important. In other cases, Mr. Morse's was the only authority available and we have accepted it with this fact in mind.

In addition to the invaluable pages of Mr. Morse, we are especially indebted to the late Rev. Lucius R. Paige and Hon. Charles Hudson, whose histories of Cambridge and Marlboro respectively have supplied us with much useful information; and to Mrs. Harriette M. Forbes, formerly of Westboro, from whose Diary of Rev. Ebenezer Parkman of Westboro (editor) and The Hundredth Town, we have drawn freely for facts and color unobtainable elsewhere. Our warmest thanks are due Mrs. Edwin E. Nelson of Fort Worth, Texas (Mrs. Willard I. T. Brigham), for her cordial assistance to the editors in the early period of our labors. Mrs. Nelson has fulfilled to the letter every agreement made by her late husband, as far as lay in her power, and placed at our disposal everything in her possession that could aid us to complete the task our genealogist was compelled to relinquish.

We would record our obligations also to Messrs. S. Ingersoll Biant, president of the Westboro Historical Society, E. M. Goddard, assistant state librarian of Vermont, and Ernest D. Bugbee of Springfield, Mass., for the loan of valuable portrait and locality plates; to Mr. Thomas M. Hutchinson of Winchester, Mass., for unique data establishing beyond question the location of Thomas¹ Brigham's "Farme on Ye Rocks"; to Mr. Charles D. Elliot of Somerville, Mass., for the use of his excellent "Map of Cambridge in 1635," whereby we are enabled to show the site of the original 13-acre grant to Thomas¹ Brigham in Watertown and of the homestead where he died; to Mr. Weston F. Hutchins of Boston for great assistance in the collation of war records and preparation of the general index; and to Mr. L. Frederick Rice of Boston for special aid of a financial nature at a recent most critical period.

It is with pleasure, also, that we acknowledge our wholly satisfactory relations with Messrs. Frederic H. and Thomas B. Hitchcock of the Grafton Press, whose interested co-operation, helpful suggestions and practical skill in book-making have been of great service to this undertaking.

Owing to sharp limitations as to time and money, the references in the Index have been confined to the genealogical section, and to persons of or directly connected with the Brigham Family; notwithstanding that we would have preferred a broader and slightly different arrangement.

The first and most natural question to be asked of the genealogist relates to the over-sea origin of our common ancestor. What and where was the origin of Thomas Brigham, the Puritan? It was one of the primary purposes of these researches to answer this question; and it implies no discredit to the ability of the genealogist, no reflection upon the Brigham line that the answer is still in doubt. More or less exhaustive descriptions of British Brigham names and places will be found in succeeding pages, but we have thought it well to embody here the latest conclusions respecting the English ancestry of Thomas Brigham the Puritan, reached by Mr. Willard I. T. Brigham. How indefatigably he worked to discover the facts his chapters devoted to research in Great Britain attest. Had he lived to make his purposed second visit to Great Britain, the conclusions might have been decisive. We quote Willard I. Tyler Brigham, as follows:

It was formerly my impression that perhaps all the Brighams sprang from a common Brigham ancestor, whose origin I was inclined to attribute to Yorkshire. Later researches, however, led me to the changed belief that there were no less than four distinct Brigham lines, founded by individuals, who assumed this surname in the early days, when it became the proper thing to have a surname; and that they assumed this particular name because they lived at one or another of the four Brigham places.

From which branch descended our "Thomas the Puritan," I regret my present inability to say, though I incline to the opinion that it was Yorkshire. I made thorough search among wills in the Perogative and Exchequer Court of York, and the Durham Probate Court, in hopes of gleanng some clue which would lead to an intelligent solution of the vexatious problem, but in vain. In the Canterbury Probate from 1598 to 1660 occur but eleven Brigham wills, the residence of four being in London, three in Yorkshire, and one each in Oxford, Surrey, Sussex and Kent counties. At Durham Probate I was disappointed in not finding a single Brigham will. As its jurisdiction extended (until recently) over Northumberland, as well as Durham County (both of which lie just above Yorkshire), I was prepared to find many Brigham estates.

York Probate, however, makes a better showing; in fact, the largest, I fancy, of any court in the Kingdom. From 1437 to 1602, I found thirty-two Brigham wills. This latter year was the one at which I began to make careful search, which I found to embrace the period between 1602 to 1660; during which time I found eighteen Brigham estates. . . . My regret was poignant that not a clue was found tending to point out the origin of our "Thomas the Puritan" . . .

Let us not forget that Mr. Morse never made any personal research in England and that Mr. Brigham's work there was the first attempted on a scientific basis. It is profoundly to be hoped that the invaluable records of Mr. Brigham's painstaking industry in this field, herewith preserved, will inspire some ambitious family historian of the future to a quest which will be rewarded with complete success.

HISTORY

HISTORY

I

ETYMOLOGY OF BRIG-HAM

Our family tree must be considered under two heads, Brig and ham. Ferguson (Popular County Histories, Cumberland) contains this statement: "The Saxon equivalent of ton or tun (which mean, we need hardly remind, a town) is heim and ham." Ham-let is still used to designate a small village.

Again, Teller (An Anglo-Saxon Dictionary) states: "The Latin word which appears most nearly to translate it (i. e., ham) is vicus. . . . In this sense, it is the general assemblage of the dwellings in each particular district, to which the arable land and pasture of the community were appurtenant: the home of all the settlers in a separate and well-defined locality: the collection of the houses of the freemen." In another paragraph, the same author observes: "Ham, a dwelling, fold, or enclosed possession. It is so frequently coupled with words implying presence of water as to render it probable that (like the Friesic 'hemmen') it denotes a piece of land surrounded by paling, wickerwork, etc., and so defended against the stream, which would otherwise wash it away." (Citing Codex Diplomaticus Aevi Saxonici) "Ham-steall=homestead."

Grimm's Deutsches Worterbuch contains, "Hame, hamen, used in Netherlands and middle Germany, meaning a net (collective sense, like home). Hamm, found in Bremen Dictionary in the sense of any enclosure; especially, meadow; but also, forest, house, or farm."

Roemer's Origins of the English People and the English Language, pp. 190 et seq., has this interesting summary: "By far the most important elements which enter into Anglo-Saxon names are the suffixes ham and ing. Like many other Saxon forms, ham signifies primarily an enclosure; something that hems in; a meaning not very different from that of ton and worth, or even the Norse by." Again (p. 474), the same author states: "The Saxons preferred country to city life; generally dwelt near forests in clusters of houses, called ham."

"Ham" is our English home, and has a very ancient history. Ham is of Aryan parentage; and exhaustive research would discover some form of the word in all the languages of such origin. The word is found in all parts of Europe whose people contributed to the Anglo-Saxon conquest of England.

Passing to the "Brig" of our Brig-ham, there is not the same certainty of meaning. There are three roots—with the distinct meanings, bridge, hill, strife—all of which in the lapse of time have assumed the form "brig." As Brigham is a place name, we must consult the environment, and let probabilities determine.

Speaking of the several localities:—"Brigham," Yorkshire and Cumberland, as well as the modern hamlet by the same name (near Keswick), "Bridgeham" (formerly Brigham), Norfolk (all in England), as well as "Birgham (the historical Brigham), Berwick, Scotland,—the writer concludes that the "brig" was derived, in each instance, from the root signifying bridge, because all five places are upon bridgeable streams: most, in fact, possessing bridges to this day, while to the Scotch Brigham attaches tradition of an ancient bridge.

II

ORTHOGRAPHY OF BRIGHAM

Early English spelling was phonetic. Words were spelled in a variety of ways. This variance was increased by the composite complexion of the nation. Composed of members of the Brigantes, Celts, Scandinavians, Danes, Saxons, Angles, Frisians, and Normans (with their digressive vowel and consonant tones, not to mention individual vagaries), conventional orthography was for ages an impossibility.

From records covering more than a thousand years, the writer found the following forms of Brigham: "Bringeham, Briccham, Bricgham, Brygcham, Brycgham, Brygham, Brycham, Brigholm, Briggeholm, Brigggham, Briggeham, Briggam, Briglam, Briglame, Brighame, Brigh'm, Brigeaham, Birgeame, Birgham, Bridgeham, and Brigham: twenty-one ways all told. More might be found; especially if the Latin ("declined") forms were included. Of the foregoing, only two (Bridgeham and Brigham) are known by the writer to have crystallized into patronymics.

Seeming discrepancies disappear by bearing in mind:—

1. The Saxons had several forms for their word bridge, i. e., brycg, brygc, bricg, brigg, and bryc; all equivalent to the "brig" in our surname.

2. The Teutonic word hame was taken by colonizers to England; and lingers in the "North countrie."

3. Holm was (formerly) interchangeable with ham. Brigham (Scotland) was sometimes styled (in early days) Brigholm.

4. The letter h is an aspirate; and so, inserted or dropped, does not influence the pronunciation. We now spell our name "Brigham" but pronounce it "Brig'am," is if the h were omitted.

5. The insertion of e, elision of a, and doubling of g are readily accounted for; by individual idiosyncrasy, as well as by divergence of racial phonetics. In Hotten's work (List of Emigrants) we find "Thomas Brig(g)ham," the second g in parentheses, to indicate the conventional spelling.

6. But the changing of historic "Brigham" (Scotland) to modern "Birgham" (pronounced Bur-jam) is to us inexplicable; although "North countrie" dialecticians may see a logical transition.

III

ENGLISH BRIGHAM PLACES

There appear to have been several early Brigham localities whose names have been changed in succeeding centuries, as we learn from the Domesday Book (p. 83, b).

Whatever may be the modern appellations of the places there mentioned the author has not learned.

BRIGHAM, NORFOLK

Bridgham, Norfolk Co., is mentioned (among other places) in Calendar Close Rolls (Ed. 2, 1313-1318, p. 373). This is the "Royal Manor of Bridgeham," mentioned in the Records of the Historical MS. Com. (London), Vol. 10, prt. 3, pp. 81, 199 (Gowdy MSS.). It was called Brigham in the Middle Ages until after 1500 (see Particulars for Grants, Index Locorum—Henry VIII., Pub. Rec. off., London).

Stacy (Hist. Norfolk Co., 1829) says it was named from the bridge which was the passage to Rowtham Cross, a way much frequented by pilgrims traveling from Suffolk and other parts to our "Lady of Walsingham."

Bridgham is situated two miles from the Harling Road Station and six from Thetford Station on the Great Eastern Ry. No Brigham is there. In fact, the only one in Norfolk Co. Directory lives in Norwich (an old Brigham habitat), twenty miles distant.

Bridgham parish contains the Manor of Hackford and the village of Rondham (whose church was burned many years ago). Its ancient church has an old Norman north porch, and, as there is no tower, its two bells hang in a yard-house.

BRIGHAM, YORKSHIRE

The most persistent Brigham line (so far as records show) were dwellers in this town, from the time of the Norman Conqueror (1606) to the present generation; a pedigree of heirship can be found in Poulson's Holderness.

6 THE HISTORY OF THE BRIGHAM FAMILY

From Monasticon Eboracense (Burton, York, 1758) we ascertain (p. 218) that the Priory of Bridlington (founded in the reign of K. Hen. I.) had lands at "Brigham" from various donors.

Chronica Monasterii de Melsa (1242-'69) has an account from William of Driffeld, 9th Abbot, of an "inquisition" held at the "Hermitage of Brigham."

From Dugdale's Visitation (from Heralds' College, 1655-73) we learn, that from the time of Glover's Visitation (1585), the families of gentlemen in Holderness had decreased in number from 39 to 17: of which latter number appears "William Brigham of Brigham & Wyton, Esq., aged 52."

Sheahan & Whellen's History and Topography of the City of York and the East Riding of Yorkshire (1856, p. 473) recites:—

"Brigham Township extends over an area of 1,470 acres, and contains 139 inhabitants. The ratable value is £1,553. The family of Brigham possessed the whole of the Brigham Estate, . . . and their pedigree is fully recorded in Heralds' College from 1100 to 1853. . . . The Hamlet of Brigham is situated on the River Hull, near Frodingham Bridge, about five miles southeast from Driffeld, and one mile southwest of Foston."

BRIGHAM, CUMBERLAND *

This is a very ancient settlement, and has been the theater, in earlier ages, of stirring and important events.

Inquisitio Eliensis (p. 515, a) records the early "Church in Brigham, with 12 acres of free land, rated at 2 shillings."

The parish of Brigham (which includes ten townships) lies on the south side of the River Derwent, spanned by a fine bridge, whose opposite shore was the site of a Roman fortress. The locality is a few miles west of Cockermouth, and a few east of Workington (its seaport), being in Allerdale ward, and the archdeaconry of Richmond. It is about five and one-half miles in extent, north and south, and four miles east and west.

Soon after "The Conquest," this locality passed from William de Meschines to Waldeof, who, it is believed, built here a great castle, which became the baronial seat of his successors, the lords of Allerdale. Situated upon "The Marches," between two hostile nations (Scotland and England), these lords were courted by both great powers, and almost continually at war in behalf of that kingdom to which might temporarily be owed a changeful allegiance.

Cumberland, Vol. II, p. 104; Carlisle's Topographical Dict. of England; Lewis' Top. & Hist. ST. BRIDGET'S CATHEDRAL, BRIGHAM, CUMBERLAND, ENGLAND

The castle, built of material brought from the old Roman fortress over Durwent, was in 1648 garrisoned for the royal cause; but after a month's siege dismantled. The gate house and adjoining rooms (including double dungeon capable of guarding 100 prisoners) were the last relics of the ruins to pass into oblivion. The castle and manor descended from Waldeof to Fitz Duncan (nephew of the Scottish King Malcolm); and his coheiresses—who married into the families of Albemarle and Lucy—shared in moieties. On the death of William de Fortibus, Earl of Albemarle, without issue, this moiety lapsed to the crown, was bestowed upon Piers Gavestone, and in 1323 granted by K. Ed. II. to Anthony, Lord Lucy, who possessed, by inheritance, the other moiety. His sister and heiress, Maud, in 1369, settled the property upon her second husband, Percy, Earl of Northumberland. The next Lord was Seymour, Duke of Somerset, by marriage with the only daughter of the last Earl Northumberland; thence unto the Earls of Egremont, to whom belong the court-leets and dismissions for the copyhold tenants of Brigham.

Brigham Church (dedicated to St. Bridget and formerly rectorial) is a discharged vicarage, valued in the King's Books (in 1808) at £ 20, 16, 0 1-2, situated in the diocese of Chester, arch-deaconry of Richmond and deanery of Copeland. The modern East End of the village is called "Eller Beck" Brigham.

The published inscriptions of the graveyard from 1666 to 1876 (H. T. Wake, Cockermouth, 1878) do not show a single decedant of the name Brigham. The present vicar does not think the family has ever been prominent in the community; though he cites one who died in Cromwell's day, fighting in defense of Cockermouth castle. But in 1216-'72 there was a noble family of the name there whose male line, that of Waldeve de Brigham, was early extinct.

BRIGHAM, BERWICKSHIRE

Brigham (modern Birgham—pronounced Bur-jam), Berwickshire, Scotland,* is a very ancient settlement situated at the head of Tweed navigable waters (in salmon fishing second only to the Tay); and, as its name implies, once spanning its flood by a bridge, now only a tradition. Lying on "The Marches," it was for ages rent by wars between the ever-contending England and Scotland; and is but three miles from famous "Wark" castle, nor far from Norham

* Some published authorities: Lewis' Topographical Dict. of Scotland (1846), p. 128; Carlisle's Topo. Dict. of Scot. (1813); Statistical Acc. of Scot. by Haddington (1845), p. 50; Ordnance Gazetteer of Scot., Groome, (London), p. 157; Ridpath's Border Hist., pp. 104, 166; Exchequer Rolls of Scotland; Chronicle of Roger de Hovenden; Acts of the Parliaments of Scotland, pp. 66, 441, 442, Vol. II, pp. 124, 125; Haile's Annals of Scotland; Calendar Patent Rolls.

similarly famed, in the midst of a district immortalized by the poet-novelist, Scott. That Brigham was anciently an important center we may infer from meetings of parliament held, and "Brigham Treaty" confirmed here.

This village is situated in the parish of Eccles (so called from its number of ancient churches). Ecclesiastically, it is a chapelry, appendant to the rectory of Eccles, the ancient seat of Cistercian nuns (antedating preserved history), whose nunnery (according to Hovenden and the Melrose Chronicle), refounded by Gospatrick, Earl of March, is now only a fragment of ruins. The town is on the main highway from London to Edinburgh, and noted for several several ancient events, among them being the following:—

In 1188, William the Lion, King of Scots, with his bishops, earls, barons, and vassals met (at Brigham) Hugh, Bishop of Durham, who was sent by English King Henry II. to collect a "Saladin tenth" tax to carry on the Holy Land crusades. The tax was not granted.

March 17, 1290, Queen Margaret held here a parliament, at which letters were drafted by the magnates of Scotland regarding the marriage of their Queen with Prince Edward (son of K. Ed. I. of England). This assembly also communicated its consent to the Norway King, whom it requested to send his daughter speedily to England.

July 18, 1290, the "Treaty of Brigham" was here consummated (Patent 18 Ed. I., m. 9); but renounced by the Scottish King Baliol two years after. By this marriage contract between Q. Margaret and Prince Edward, the independence of Scotland was recognized. (The death soon after of the young queen, in one of the Orkneys, defeated the intended marriage.)

According to de Hovenden, "Bricgham" was in 883 the property of St. Cuthbert. In the National MSS. of Scotland (Craig, 1867), prt. 1, facsim. 7, one may see a facsimile of a charter of English King William II. to Durham church, 1097-1100, including the "Messuage of Brycgham," with adjacent lands, woods, and waters, and all wrecks of ships and other customs, to God and St. Cuthbert forever.

In the Exchequer Rolls of Scotland are found various spellings of the locality and references to some of its subdivisions.

In the MSS. Dept. of the British Museum, we examined an interesting small parchment with red seal, being the Appointment of a Deputy to hold "Jours de Marches" at Brigehamhalgh, A. D. 1394.

AUTHOR'S JOURNEY TO BRIGHAM PLACES

Four places in Great Britain bear the name of Brigham: one in Yorkshire, and two in Cumberland, England; the fourth is just over the border, in Berwickshire, Scotland.

Starting from London, four hours finds one at York, the ancient Roman capital. Here change cars for Driffield, situated in the East Riding of Yorkshire. About half way you change at Market Weighton, thence a short run across the "Wolds" reaches Driffield, early capital of the "Saxon Kingdom."

In a dogcart we make our five-mile drive to Old Brigham, Yorkshire, through a landscape of level, fertile farms, studded with substantial buildings, surrounded by abundant ripening crops. Much of the distance we are alongside a canal, which runs from Driffield toward Hull. We saw only one boat, and that drawn by a man whose mother was tending rudder. As the craft sat low, it carried cargo. The man, with broad strap across his arms and chest, slowly drew it through the water.

At four cross-roads, we found a signboard, one of whose arms pointed toward "Brigham" hard by. Soon we climbed a slight rise, called "Brigham Hill," which commands a pleasant view in all directions.

As we proceed up "Brigham Lane," we pass the post-office and an old sand pit on the right, while on the left are a few low buildings occupied by a blacksmith and harnessmaker. In the rear is a farm called "Little Brigham." Just over the brow of the hill we reach the "Manor House," whose extensive buildings betoken that the proprietor, Mr. Stork, is a prominent breeder of hackney horses. At the foot of the hill, by the canal, stands the public house, known for generations as "The Brigham Arms." In truth the family coat-of-arms used to grace the sign; but forty years ago, when the place was sold by the Brighams, it was taken down, never again to be seen there.

A drawbridge spans the canal, and below the "Arms" is "Brigham Landing;" years ago a thriving hamlet, now simply a rural district, with no distinction to individualize it. In an adjoining field ("Sledmere Farm"), a stone slab chronicles in Latin * the passing of the Brigham race, after continuous possession from the Norman Conqueror's time. The generous erector neglected to enclose or even raise it above surrounding meadows. We fear another half century will have witnessed its overthrow.

* Translation: "William Brigham, surgeon, firm and zealous in the faith of his ancestors, lived 56 years. He died at Manchester on the 10th before the Kalends of August, in the year 1815. In memoriam of a most kind and indulgent father, William, his eldest son, caused this stone to be erected here within the relics of his ancestral territory, handed down to this time from the Norman Conquest, through a continuity of ancestors."

Witness the extent of this ancient estate: An extract from Coram Rege Rolls (40 Ed. iii.), being taken from an Inquisition Post Mortem at York Castle: George Brigham, Lord of the Manor of Brigham Yorkshire, died without issue in 1576, leaving real property, which by marriage settlement had been entailed upon his nephew, Francis Brigham, as follows: "15 messuages, 20 cottages, 5 tofts, 16 crofts; 1200 acres of arable land, 800 acres pasture, 1200 acres meadow, 500 acres moor and marsh, 500 acres turf, in Brigham." Surely this 4200-acre estate is no inconsiderable property; and as it was in the family 750 years, have we not cause for pride because of the tenacity with which succeeding generations clung to one of our clan cradles?

On our way to Scotland, we stopped at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, the magnificent "second city" of the United Kingdom. Our family have been prominently identified with this city. Though veiled in obscurity, it is certain that for at least three generations, from 1486 to 1550, they were in the lead of Newcastle families. During that period, Robert, Christopher, and Robert Brigham, each in turn, became sheriff and afterward mayor of this city.

Christopher B., a merchant of means, founded "Brigham Hospital," near the north walls, contiguous to Pilgrim Gate. This institution has disappeared. The city walls have been demolished; while along the western boundary of the Brigham Hospital site runs Grey street, one of the grandest avenues in all England; and opposite towers the monument dedicated to Earl Grey, the distinguished reformer.

In proof of the dignity of said Christopher, we might add, King Henry VIII. (Pat. 4 Hen. VIII., p. 2, m. 8) granted him a patent, whereby he was excused from serving on juries, etc., and had the privilege of sitting with his hat on in the presence of the King and his heirs.

To reach Brigham, Scotland, via the east coast, you change at Berwick and go to Coldstream; whence a four-mile drive is made over fine roads, through a beautiful rolling country of first-class farms. Brigham is a single street a mile long, made up chiefly of one-story scattered cottages, including ale-houses and a post-office. A few cots are ruinous, and others have been pulled down. The two principal farms are "Long Birgham" and "Birghamhaugh." When the spelling became changed I know not, but Birgham (Bur-jam) it is now altogether called. In history it is known as Brigham.

The town lies a half mile from the Tweed, to which it runs parallel. The river offers excellent trout and salmon fishing, especially at the bend to "Dub," a deep, still pool between rapids. From Birghamhaugh bend to its mouth, the Tweed is the boundary between England and Scotland; and it is tradition that a bridge (as the name of the village suggests) once spanned the flood at this place; but no trace remains. The same lamentable truth holds of the ancient chapel, whose site is pointed out. Birgham's (Brigham) recorded history dates back more than 1,000 years.

Its early annals were glorious. In 1188 Henry II. sent ambassadors thither, who met with the Scotch King, to consider contribution to one of the crusades; in 1290 the Scots met here to ratify the proposed union of Prince Edward of England with Margaret of Scotland; in 1290, the "Treaty of Brigham" was solemnized here, providing for the freedom of Scotland; in 1291, the twelve competitors for the Scotch throne met here, to present their claims. They still point out a field as the place where Parliament convened.

In the old burying ground (some of whose stones reach back into the 1600's) not a Brigham name is found. The present lord paramount is Earl Home, whose chief residence is a few miles distant toward Coldstream. He now fishes in "Brigham Dub," and shoots game in the preserve "Birgham Wood."

Carlisle (Topographical Dict. of Scotland), speaking of Birgham, says: "During 1830-'31, no less than ninety-four persons emigrated to America." Perhaps many years before a Brigham performed a similar act. We doubt much, however, that there was any by the name still living there at the time when "Thomas the Puritan" began to figure in our pedigree. Let me not forget to mention, the vulgar phrase, "Go to Birgham," is frequently used in the neighborhood, in the sense of our phrase, "Go to Halifax."

Brigham, Cumberland, lies southwest of its Tweed namesake: like which, in the days of inveterate border strife, it belonged now to Scotland, now to England, as each might become the victorious aggressor. Borne many a mile through purple heather, we change cars at Carlisle, from which a short run brings one to Brigham, Cumberland. Nearing the town, we see the long stone bridge (whose prototype ages ago gave name to the place) spanning the Derwent.

Hard by the station stands the time-honored church dedicated to St. Bridget, whose masonry has been largely modernized. On the vestry wall hangs a small brass tablet dated 1633, in memory of one Swinburne, Knight. Some interesting fragments of carved stone (formerly parts of the edifice) are placed about the altar. The environing churchyard contains a choice collection of unique slabs, very large and massive. They reach back into the 1600's, but no

Brigham name is found. Near the old vicarage, but graded quite over when the railway was built, is the historic location, "Nun's Well," to whose merits the poet Wordsworth composed a sonnet. A more commonplace spot, in its present aspect, would be hard to find.

To reach the village, walk a mile up a good hill, passing through "Brigham Low Houses," consisting of two country inns, the "Lime Kiln" and the "White Sheaf." At the latter, they recalled the visit of our kinsman, the late Dexter H. Brigham of Springfield, Mass., who at our first Marlboro meeting, kindly gave us all as a souvenir, an excellent cut of Brigham church.

In going up "Brigham Hill" you pass along a causeway, from which you look down on either side fifty feet or more into vast pits, the beds of worked-out lime kilns, and try to realize what a great industry this must have been from time immemorial. Three kilns are in present use.

Reaching the height of land, and the one winding street of the older village, you see at a glance what a diary of history lies about, could it but play the oracle and speak. Old farm-houses and barns are interspersed with newer town residences. We turn westward, and descending gradually some half mile come to the modern Brigham schoolhouse, built in solid masonry in excellent taste, surrounded by a substantial high stone wall. The children come trooping to dinner, their wooden-bottomed shoes, as they romp along, resounding like a squadron of horse guards. Retracing our steps, we turn off at a private gateway leading to the Fletcher mansion, late home of the chief citizen of the community.

The east end of the village, on the height of ground, consists of modest but substantial and well-designed modern residences, whose front yards bloom with a profusion of beautiful flowers. From proximity to a small stream, it is frequently called "Eller Beck" Brigham. Beyond was "Brigham Commons"; but about a score of years ago it was divided among property owners, and is hedged off into many a sightly field.

From Brigham to Keswick is a delightful ride through the famous Lake District of England, bounded by oval hills, covered with purple heather. Up the Greta River from Keswick a short mile we reach the hamlet of Brigham.* The lower portion, called "Brigham Nook," consists of a neighborhood of well-kept cot-

* A courteous letter from the Vicar, Rev. H. D. Rawnsby, contains the following: "Brigham by Keswick is in the ecclesiastical district of St. John's, carved out of the ancient parish of Crosthwaite in 1866. It has, so far as known, no founder, but took its name from the fact, at some time, probably in the XII or XIII century, a bridge would be put up across the river, the builders of said brig being, in all likelihood, the members of the monkish Brotherhood of St. Anthony, who were gathered here, to help people across fords and guide them over the hills, and to tages, one ale-house, and an excellent school erected in 1851, attended by about one hundred pupils of both sexes from the agricultural and manufacturing population, a part of the instruction being garden-work. At this place, "Brigham toll-bar" (or bridge) of masonry crosses the Greta, leading toward Skiddaw, most famous of the mountains, only one and one-half miles distant.

Passing through the village, a short walk upon the left-hand road brings the visitor to "Brigham Forge," a picturesque sheltered spot, where the Greta is spanned by another stone bridge, and the power from the fall drives electric and laundry plants.*

HERALDRY AND BRIGHAM "ARMIGERS"

The science of heraldry was devised to distinguish persons and property and record descent and alliances. It dates from the twelfth century. The earliest document, compiled about 1240, is a roll of arms of the King and nobility in the reign of Henry III.; by which time armorial ensigns had become hereditary.

There is a great abuse of arms in the United States of America, where their use is proscribed by the Constitution, and they are displayed merely for sentiment, often without knowledge of rules appertaining to the science. Hence the erroneous assumption of arms, because borne by a family of the same name, though proof of descent be inadequate or even entirely lacking. Another abuse is the common adoption by ladies of crests upon their note paper, notwithstanding that crests belong exclusively to gentlemen.

The subject is here treated, not that the American Brighams are known with certainty to be of "armigerous" descent, but because many bearing this surname are recorded among the gentry of Great Britain, and are thought worthy of some attention in this work.

The Herald's College of Scotland does not contain any Brigham information; † but the English College of Arms in London has ferry pilgrims across to the shrine of St. Herebert of Derwenwater. There really is no history attaching to this little Brig, or Bridge, Hamlet or Brighamlet."

See also "Keswick and Its Neighborhood," pp. 56, 57. (Windermere, 1852).

* In the ancient register of the Diocese of Carlisle is recorded the will of Thomas "Brigholme," A. D. 1361. (Hist. MSS. Com.—London, Eng.—Vol. IX, p. 196, b.)

14 THE HISTORY OF THE BRIGHAM FAMILY

considerable. We had a "search" made through the Records only, and secured numerous items (mainly corroborative of published pedigrees).

Burke's General Armoury has the following items:

1. Brigham (Cannon End, Co. Oxford), Argent, a fleur-de-lis within an orle of marlets sable.
2. Brigham (Cumberland), same arms.
3. Brigham or Briggam (Yorkshire), same arms. Crest, a boar's head bendways couped sable.
4. Brigham (Yorkshire), Argent a fesse sable between three Arefoils slipped gules (another of the second). Crest, on a cloud a crescent between two branches of palm in orle.
5. Brigham (Yorkshire), Argent, a fesse between three trefoils slipped gules.
6. Brigham (Yorkshire), Argent, a saltire engrailed vert. (Another sable.)
7. Brigham (Foxley House, Co. Chester, formerly of Brigham, Yorkshire), Argent, a saltire engrailed vert. Crest, out of a ducal coronet a plume of feathers. Motto, In cruce salus.
8. Brigham (), azure, a chevron between three lions rampant or.*

To these, we add the arms of the "New Castle" branch:

9. Argent, a saltire engrailed vert; in chief, a crescent sable.

We meet with numerous items, scattered through the records, concerning Brighams; which (considering that it is a "place" surname) shows a rather surprisingly early distribution of the family name; for in the earlier ages the British were, as a rule, very tenacious of accustomed localities, and families remained identified with certain places for centuries.

SOME BRITISH BRIGHAM PEDIGREES †

From Inquisitions and Assessments Relating to Feudal Aids (1284-1431, Vol. I., pp. 424, 487), the "Bryghams" appear to have been early domiciled (or interested in lands, at least) in "Faleton, Harrygg Hundred, Devon" Co.; "Thomas de Brygham" owned three-fourths of a knight's fee there in 1346; and "John de Brygham" the same amount in 1428. But the family either removed or died out.

"Robert de Brigham" in 1332 was proctor for the Prior of Ely. (Hist. MSS. Commis., Vol. VI., p. 296, MSS. Lord Leconfield, Petworth House, Sussex.)

* We have not learned where these arms were used.

† We include here pedigrees from such sources as to render it clear that the families possessed coat armor, though no record of it is preserved.

About 1300 we find a record of three generations in Lincolnshire—Richard, Thomas, and Richard de Brigham. (Calendarium Genealogicum, Vol. I., p. 259; Vol. II., p. 693.)

Marshall's Visitation of Northumberland has this pedigree:

From a Catalogue of Ancient Deeds (Vol. I., p. 523, c. 1372), under date "Thursday in the Octave of the Purification, 17 K. Ed. I." (A. D. 1289), Warwickshire, we note, "Grant by Sarah, late the wife of Thomas Sorel of Birmingham, to Robert de Brigham, of her bondmen and villeins, Richard, son of Peter le Bule; Arice, daughter of Humphrey Frideau, and Agnes, daughter of Galfrida, daughter of Margaret, of the same place, with all their belongings."

Coming now to the neighborhoods of the Brigham places, we find, as anticipated, the Brigham surname in evidence, though the records are, as a rule, fragmentary.

In Norfolk County (seat of the "royal manor of Brigham"—modern Bridgham), we find one "Alande Brigham" as early as 1297 (Coram Rege Rolls, K. Ed. I., p. 289).

In Parkin's Topographical History of the County of Norfolk (Vol. VI., p. 144) the heirs of one William de Brigham are named, as being part owners in a knight's fee of land in Bradenham Manor in 1347.

Over the remains of Adam Brigham, who died at Norwich, England, in 1685, aged 54:

"In youth, I poor and much neglected went,
 My gray and wealthy age in mirth I spent,
 To honors then, I courted was by many,
 Altho' I did in nowise seek for any;
 But what is now that wealth, that mirth, that glory?
 Alas! 'Tis grave, 'tis dust, 'tis mournful story:
 Ne'erless, my soul through Christ a place enjoys
 Where blessed Saints with him in God rejoice."
 ("Chronicles of the Tombs," by Thos. Jos. Pettigrew, p. 448).

There are Brighams in Norfolk to-day who appear to have descended in unbroken local lines for centuries.

Of Brigham, Cumberland, we find families:—"John de Briggehaim" appears as witness to a grant about 1210 (Calendar of Docs. Relating to Scotland, Vol. I., p. 97). This may be the "John" found in the following pedigree, whose male line early died out:

(De Banco Rolls, Mich, 2 Ed. II., m. 220.)

From the De Banco Rolls (MSS. Series, Vol. XXVIII., p. 863) one finds that in 1274 John and Thomas Brigham, sons of Adam de Brigham, had lands in Galenter. From Coram Rege Rolls (p. 583, 23 Ed. III., 23 Ric. II.), Thomas Brigham was in Cumberland in 1381. Ibid., 14 Hen. IV. has this pedigree:—

But the Brighams of Cumberland early either died out or removed; for there is no evidence of them in the preserved parish records of Brigham (Cumb.), which run back about 300 years; we get no light from Brigham graveyard, whose epitaphs run back to 1660; nor do the wills for the Deanery of Copeland disclose any Brigham estates.

Concerning Brigham, Berwickshire, Scotland: notwithstanding there are no Brigham wills of this county of record between 1562 and 1670 (the period of our search); notwithstanding, moreover, that "Lyon King of Arms" writes me, "I do not think any one of the name [Brigham] ever possessed land in Scotland, or that the family was conspicuous in any way"—there are brief scattered notes which are more hopefully eloquent. Indeed, it would be strange had not someone assumed for his surname the name of that town shown by records to have been of the early importance of Brigham, Berwick. But, being upon "The Borders," the devastations of innumerable conflicts have destroyed local records.

From Whellen's History of Cumberland (based on Nicholson and Burn & Hutchinson) we learn:—

"Sir Ranulph Bonekill had issue Alexander, whose son Adam gave Aiverthwaite, parcel of his Manor of Uldale, to the priory of Carlisle. Said Adam had issue a son Alexander, whose daughter and heiress was married first to John Stuart, Kinsman of the King of Scotland, and afterwards to David Brigham, a Scottish Knight renowned for his prowess and bravery; and by this marriage the Manor of Uldale passed to the Brigham family. This David Brigham was a companion of William Wallace, who was executed at London (temp. Ed. I.), for resisting that King, having joined with Robert Bruce. Wallace was of extraordinary strength, and Brigham an exceedingly good horseman; whence came the Scots' rhyme:

"The man was ne'er so wight nor gend,
But worthy Wallace durst him bide;
Nor ever horse so wild or wend,
But David Brigham durst him ride."

Palgrave (Docs. and Recs. Illustrtg. Hist. Scotland, Vol. I., pp. 193, 291, 315 and 355) shows that this "David de Bregbyn" resided at Brigham, Scotland, and was upon the scene at about the "Treaty of Brigham" epoch.

William Brigham, 1525, is seized of lands in the "Lordship of Brigham" (Exchequer Rolls of Scotland, Vol. XV., p. 638). In 1559 "Adam Birgem" is seized of lands in the same (Ibid., p. 445).

In 1590, "Elizabeth Birgen, haeres Adami Birgen, patris" has "2 terris husbandiis cum 12 acris terrarum, in dominio de Birgen." (Retornak Rolls, Scotland, Vol. II., Berwick, No. 489.) From Reg. of the Privy Council of Scotland (Vol. IV., p. 675) it appears that the wife of the above Adam Brigham was "Issobell Edzeare"; also that their daughter Elizabeth married "Alex. Diksonn* of Newton in Brigham."

It thus plainly appears that the male Brigham line of Brigham, Scotland, died out in the latter part of the sixteenth century.

We add one other stray note of this Kingdom (Calend. of Docs. Relating to Scotland, Vol. IV., p. 233). "John Brigholme," a Scotch merchant, has warrant for safe conduct for one year, with his vessel, "Gyles, 60 tone," to trade in England with 12 mariners.

It is, however, in connection with Brigham, Yorkshire, that we find the most persistent and satisfactory pedigree, so far as records show. It runs back to Norman times; a period so remote that very few English families presume to trace their (certain) origin from any anterior source.

* Dickson is a common surname thereabouts. I found stones bearing it in the old Brigham churchyard.

Poulson's *History of Holderness (East Riding of Yorkshire), Vol. II., pp. 268, 269, 270, contains a magnificent pedigree,† credited to Harleian MS., 1487, p. 300 (from Glover's and St. George's Visitations, 1484-1485, 1612, edited by Foster), and a MS. vol. of East Riding Pedigrees in Burton Constable Library.

BRIGHAM OF WYTON AND BRIGHAM

WYTON. The family of Brigham is first mentioned as holding this manor 35 Hen. VIII.; but at what time it came into their possession is not ascertained. In that year Thomas Brigham, Esq., held the manor of Wyton, "3 mess. 3 cott. 4 crofts, 6 bovates of arable, and 40 acres of land here, of the heirs of Thomas Constable, Kt., as of his manor of Constable, be the service of Knt.'s fee; Geo., son and heir."

ARMS: ‡ Argent, a saltire engrailed vert.

Poulson says "this family is now become extinct." This is error; see Sheahan & Whellen's History and Topography of the City of York and the East Riding of Yorkshire (1856). The said Dr. Wm. Brigham removed from Brigham to the city of Manchester, whereby the family became "extinct" upon the estate of Brigham, which probably accounts for Poulson's statement; for it is certain that it was Dr. Wm. Brigham, Esq.,§ whose residence was Foxley House,|| Lymm, Cheshire, who sold the very last Brigham property in Brigham, Yorkshire, removed the "Brigham Arms" from the Inn, and erected a monument herein elsewhere referred to at length. * We had the good fortune to procure, at reasonable price, a new (uncut) copy of this, now rare and valuable, treatise, the full title of which is: "The History and Antiquities of the Seigniorie of Holderness, in the East Riding of York, Including the Abbies of Meaux and Swine, with the Priories of Nunkeeling and Burstall; Compiled from Authentic Charters, Records and the Unpublished Manuscripts of the Rev. William Dade, Remaining in the Library of Burton Constable; with numerous embellishments; by George Poulson, Esquire, * * * Hull, MDCCCXL." It is composed of two quarto volumes, aggregating more than 1,000 pages, and by far the most valuable book which has been written of this part of York, wherein is situated Brigham.

‡ Glover and St. George give the arms: "argent a fesse sable bet. 3 trefoils slipped gules." (Probably used by one branch of the family). Also, the motto: "Promisit se nussurum arma Londinum."

§ This family of "Foxley House" is recorded in Burke's "Seats & Arms," Vol. IV, and Walford's "County Families, etc."

|| I had a letter from the present owner of Foxley House, L. Clark, Esq., who kindly promised me a picture of the house and chapel.

"Squire" Brigham had an only daughter, who had the misfortune to marry an unscrupulous Frenchman, to whose criminal actions her death was doubtless due. She had a child, whose whereabouts and descendants (if any) are to the writer unknown.*

We include here the following pedigree, because it is believed to be of Yorkshire origin.

Newcastle-upon-Tyne § appears to have been the metropolis with which the Brigbams were most historically connected. For at least a century, this family seems to have been in the lead: Robert Brigham was Sheriff of the city in 1486, and Mayor in 1499; Christopher Brigham was Sheriff in 1495, and Mayor in 1504, 1505; Robert Brigham was Sheriff in 1540, and Mayor in 1550, in which latter year he was also "Governor of the Merchants' Company."

in chief, a crescent sable." The crescent is (in the writer's opinion) used for "difference" (as heralds say), to indicate that this Newcastle branch sprang from (not the eldest, but) the "second son" of the parent stock. The remainder of the coat stamps them as (undoubtedly) of Yorkshire Brigham origin. Going yet farther, the writer concludes that the Newcastle branch is descended from "Robert" Brigham (the "second son" of John and Elizabeth Brigham) in the seventh generation from Walter Brigham, of Brigham, according to the said Poulson pedigree.

From Flower's Visitation (1563, 1564) is learned: (1) that Wm. Lewen, son and heir of William, "Marchant" (and armiger) mar. Jane, dau. of Christopher "Brygam," both families of Newcastle. (A second wife, by whom 5 ch.—"Crystofer, Edward, Robert, William, and "Mighill.") (2) Christopher Mitford, 4th son and heir of Robert, of Segell, Northumberland (armiger), mar. Agnes, dau. of Christopher Brygham.

Marshall's Visitation (1615) has this pedigree:

John Jackson (armiger), of New Castle.	=	Jane, dau. and sole heir of Wm. Brigham, of New Castle.
Wm. Jackson, Town Clerk of New Castle.	=	Isabell, dau. Gilbert Read, New Castle.
Henry Jackson, of Cotam = Dorothy, dau. of		John Jackson, of Mandaville, Bishoprick Mansfield.		Grayes Inn.
of Duresne.

We close our Newcastle remarks with a curious church item:

"Robert Darell, Archdeacon of Northumberland, made a covenant Oct. 9, 1537, with F. Roland Harding, Prior of the Blake Friars, Newcastle-on-Tyne, between 6 and 9 A. M. daily, devoutly to say for the souls of William Darell and John Brigham, late of Newcastle, Merchant, their wives and children the De profundis, etc., ending Absolve quaesumus Domine, and Sede ad dextram."

LONDON BRIGHAMS

The Brigham family has been identified with the British metropolis for several hundreds of years, as is proved by items scattered through the records, although we find no pedigree preserved.

"Rob. Briggeham, A. M.," 31 Jan., 1427, became Rector of the parish church of St. Andrew-Hubbard (sometimes called St. A. juxta Eastcheap), which stood in old Rope Lane, (London), and had a history antedating 1389. It was burned by the "Great Fire," and the parish united with St. Mary-Hill. (An Eccles. Paroch. Hist. of the Dios. of London, Newcourt, 1708.)

One Richard Brigham was "Coach-maker to Kings James I. and Charles I.," as appears by a "Grant, Sept. 13, 1619, to John Banks and Richard Brigham, of the office of Maker of the King's Coaches and other Carriages." (Calendar of State Papers—Dom. Ser., Vol. CLI., p. 77.) "1620-1622. Third accompt. Bill of John Banckes and Richards Brigham, Coachmaker to the King. For chariots and other vehicles. A rich chariot for the King cost, in all, £15." Again, "1624-1625. Two long bills (respectively 13 and 9 pp.) of Richard Brigham, for reparations of the King's caroches and chariots. He made the total £368, but took £280 in satisfaction. There were two new coaches: one is said to be of the German fashion, with the roof to fall asunder at his majesty's pleasure [i. e., a sort of landau]. The other was of the Spanish fashion. The like of them were never made before in England." (Histor. MSS. Commis., Lon., Vol VI., p. 326b, MSS. of Sir F. U. Graham, Bart., Netherby, Cumb.; and Vol. VII., prt. 1, p. 250a, MSS. of Lord Sackville, at Knole, Kent.)

George Brigham was also a "royal coachmaker"; the same authority (Vol. II., p. 583), some readable facts follow: Aug. 13, 1645.

"George Brigham, coachmaker to the late King,
Thomas Brigham, his brother and administrator, et al.,
all of London."

Then come two pages of legal proceedings, disclosing that one Thomas Brigham resided in Duke's Place, London; George Brigham, deceased, was in arms and died at Oxford; proceedings over a £200 debt owed the George Brigham estate, wherein said Thomas Brigham will not release one Pilchard of his imprisonment, and says that the committee shall make dirt of his bones before he will give up the mortgage; there is an order for Thomas Brigham to be brought before the committee for contempt. Later, John Brigham, of Cottenham, County Cambridge, as executor of Thomas Brigham, deceased, was apprehended to answer contempt for not delivering up certain writings; he was discharged from restraint, upon performing order of the committee.

Concerning Thomas Brigham, "Patentee for the Stanneries" (i. e., tin mines) in Cornwall, we find some interesting facts. In the first place, this was a very valuable grant. The mines were very old; in fact, the same sought out by the Phoenicians and other inhabitants of the Mediterranean Sea, before the dawn of the Christian era. In the Calendar of State Papers (Domestic Series), preserved in the Public Record Office, London (Vol. CLI., p. 13, sec. 4) we find:

"June 7, 1603. Allegations against the patent granted to Thomas Brigham and Humphrey Wemmes by the late Queen, for pre-emption of tin." (P. 152, sec. 45) Sept. 25, 1604. Warrant to Sir Richard Smith, Receiver General of Cornwall, to deliver tin at a certain rate to such persons as now lend money in repayment thereof, and to redeliver to Thomas Brigham and Humphrey Wemmes the tin sold by them to the Company of Pewterers. (Docquet.) (P. 157, sec. 75) Oct. 14, 1604. Reply of Thomas Brigham and Humphrey Wemmes to an annexed petition to the King by the Master, etc., of the Pewterers' Company against the monopoly granted to them of the pre-emption of tin. (P. 335, sec. 57) Nov. 14, 1606. Decree of the Court of Star Chamber against Richard Glover, et. al., Pewterers of London, for endeavoring to frustrate a patent granted to Thomas Brigham and Humphrey Wemmes, for pre-emption of tin in Cornwall and Devon." There was a "Warrant to advance £20,000 on loan to Thomas Brigham and Humphrey Wemmes, patentees for the pre-emption of tin, on their delivery of tin worth more than that, they having already disbursed £60,000, and being unable to disburse more. They will add £1,000 to their former rent of £2,000, and lend the tinnors £10,000 yearly."

"London, Feb. 23, 1618. Assignment by John Langley to Richard Brigham, both being of Lambeth, of the Keepership of the Archbishop of Canterbury's Mansion House, grounds and pasture land, called Lambeth Park." (Calend. State Papers, Domestic Ser., Vol. CLI., p. 523, sec. 29.) This Richard Brigham, Esq., of Lambeth, London (Comptroller of the house of the Archbishop Abbot), married Emelyn, daughter of Sir Robert Hudson, Bart. Their only daughter, Anne, married Thomas, Lord Leigh; they having but one child, Anne, who died young." (Magna Britannia.)

John Brigham of the City of Westminster, London, in 1637, was married in the local abbey of St. Peter, to Anne, daughter of Sir Thomas Aylesbury. Her eldest sister, Frances, was the first Countess of Clarendon, and thus grandmother of Queen Mary II., and Queen Anne. (London Marriage Licenses, 1521-1869, by Jos. Foster.)

Nicholas Brigham, poet, jurist, and historian (for a biographical sketch see elsewhere herein) was buried in "Poet's Corner," Westminster Abbey, beside his daughter Rachel, whom he lost at the age of four.

The London Directory for 1900 does not contain any Brigham "liverymen." But therein appear: Henry George Brigham, Surgeon, Buckingham Palace Road, Dr. John K. Brigham, Finsbury Pavement, John (the proprietor of "coffee rooms"), and George E. ("boatmaker").

VI

As far as preserved records establish, Nicholas Brigham * was the greatest scholar, the most versatile and honored genius of all who have borne the Brigham name. By tradition his birth was from the prominent family of Caversham, Oxford, the founder of which, Anthony Brigham, was Bailiff of the King's Manor there under Henry VIII.; but his name does not appear in the pedigree of Brigham. Nicholas is reported to have finished his education at Hart Hall (now Hertford College). He appears to have removed thence to one of the Inns of Court, where he made a thorough study of law and history. His love for poetry, however, was a lifelong passion, as manifested in many flights of his Pegasus.

Biographers say he died in December, 1559, but from the probate of his estate, into which I examined, it is determined that he passed away on the "20 Feb. 1558." He was buried in "Poet's Corner," Westminster Abbey, beside his daughter Rachel, whom he lost at the age of four. Camden, in his work (published in 1606) upon those entombed at Westminster, gives the full inscription upon the grave of the daughter, but he does not mention anything of the sort concerning the father.

The epitaph follows: "Rachael Brigham, filia Nicolai Brigham quadrimula obiit, sita est juxta Galfridum Chaucerum. Obiit 1557, 21 Junii."

Dean Stanley (Westminster Abbey, p. 15) says: "There was nothing to mark the grave [of Chaucer] except a plain slab, which was sawn up when Dryden's monument was erected. It was not till the reign of Edward VI. that the present tomb, to which apparently the poet's ashes were removed, was raised, near the grave, by Nicholas Brigham, himself a poet, who was buried close beside, with his daughter Rachel."

From the foregoing we might infer possibly that Nicholas never

* Do not confound this Nicholas with the one spoken of elsewhere as "Teller of the Exchequer" to Queen Mary. The fact that they both bear the same name, are prominent and in London at the same period makes it a question of easily mistaken identification. In fact, the best modern English biographer of Nicholas, the poet, falls into this error, of making these two persons one. It is clear, however, that Nicholas, the "poet," died in 1558, and that his estate was administered upon in the Commissary Court of the Dean & Chapter of Westminster; while concerning Nicholas, the "Teller," I find him living as late as "1563," at which time he "entered into hall, gardens and premises of her Majesty's (Q. Elizabeth) Almshouses of Westminster." Very likely the two were nearly related; but in what degree I am unable to say, save that I do not believe the relationship could have been that of father and son.

had any epitaph, although historians agree that he was herein buried near the tomb of Chaucer, father of English poets, to whom Brigham had caused a monument to be erected.

Chaucer's ruinous tomb yet remains, black with antiquity and slowly crumbling to dust; but the exact spot of Brigham's grave cannot be determined. Even his epitaph, like that of his little daughter, has disappeared.

A modern movement to repair the tomb evoked the following restatement: "An examination of the tomb by competent authorities has proved . . . there can exist no doubt, from the difference of workmanship, material, etc., that the altar tomb is the original tomb of Geoffrey Chaucer; and that instead of Nicholas Brigham having erected an entirely new monument, he only added to that which then existed the overhanging canopy," etc. (Notes and Queries, London, 1st Ser., Vol. II., p. 141; quoting from Athenæum.)

He left no will, and it is impossible to decide whether he left issue. He did, however, leave children of his brain, in several notable works, namely: (1) Rerum Quotidianarum Venationes (or a Diary of Memoirs, in 12 Bks.). (2) Venationibus Rerum Memorabilium, in 1 vol., being biographic in character, from which Bale, in his Scriptores, published in 1559, makes extract touching two (now obscure) English writers. (3) Diversorum Poematum, in 1 vol., being a collection of poems from his own pen. But the only production now known is his epitaph on Chaucer.

Pitts, his biographer, thus summarizes the record of his achievements, which I render into English: "Nicholas Brigham . . . In poetry, above the common crowd; eloquent as an orator; an experienced jurisconsult; a signally successful historian; as an antiquarian researcher into the lore of ancient Albion, very diligent."

EARLY AMERICAN BRIGHAMS *

Aside from Thomas, "The Puritan," of Watertown, Mass., 1635, we find some other Brighams of early date who should be mentioned

* Briggs' "Shipbuilding on North River," etc., 1640-1872, p. 366, states: "There was built in Scituate in 1698 the ship 'Providence,' 100 tons, Capt. Thos. Lillie=owners, Capt. Jno. Thomas, Saml. Lillie, John Borland and Joseph Brigham of Boston."

This is an error, for Joseph Bridgham of Boston, whom we find (Recs. Mass., Vol. V, p. 538), "1st Ch. Boston, made free in May Court 1678." He died 1708/9, and was buried in King's Chapel ground. But, as witness of how persistent the error was, we find on the tombstone of a descendant (in King's Chapel), "Sarah, Dau., to Mr. Jos. and Mrs. Abigail Brigham, aged 1 month decd. Oct. 7, 1728."

in this work, that they may not be confused with the line of Thomas Brigham the Puritan, our common ancestor.

But first, let us introduce a name merely suggestive. From Hotten's List of Emigrants, etc., 1600-1700, p. xix., a register of all such persons as embarked themselves in the good ship called the "Hercules" of Sandwich (Eng.), and taken to the "plantation called New England in America," etc.: "Tho. Bridgen of Faversham, husbandman and his wife," 5 March, 1634. From Boys' Hist. Sandwich, Eng., 1692, pp. 750-1. (See also N. E. Hist. Gen. Reg., Vol. XV., p. 29.)

Savage (Gen. N. E.) informs us that this Thomas "Bridgen or Bridgen" settled in Charlestown, Mass., 1634; had two sons, Thomas and Zachariah (grad. Har. Col. 1657 and prehd. Stonington, Mass.), and daus. Mary and Sarah.

Equally suggestive is an entry in Bond's excellent Hist. Watertown, Mass., wherein the land of one "John Brigan" in 1642 was a boundary line of a lot of E. Child.

JOHN BRIGHAM OF NEW PROVIDENCE, 1633

His name is known from a letter in the Bouverie MSS., preserved at Brymore, near Bridgewater, Eng. (Hist. MSS. Com., Vol. X., prt. 6, p. 85). In this letter, which is dated Oct. 28, 1633, Wm. Rudyerd, Wm. Rous, Roger Floyde, and John Brigham write from the Island of Providence (one of the Bahamas) to — (probably John Pym, the great English leader) concerning the hardships of life and agriculture on the Island. In the Calendar of State Papers (Domestic Ser., Vol. CLI., A. D. 1581-'90, Q. Eliz., p. 146, sec. 35), we learn that Mr. Secretary (probably Walsingham) has been informed by Mr. Anthony Brigham that he approves of the Western discoveries in America; recommends the formation of a company, and advises them to hearken to the offers of Sir Philip Sidney and Sir George Peckham. This "Anthony" Brigham may be the very one who was "Bailiff" to Queen Elizabeth; and the "Western discoveries in America," to which reference is made, are undoubtedly those in the West Indies. So we are justified in believing that the "company" recommended was formed, that they did "hearken" to "Sir Philip Sidney" (or someone), and that this letter of "John Brigham" and others is information returned by them, as settlers of the "Company" in the New World. It is entirely natural that we should inquire what became of this John Brigham, who was settled and writing back to England some year and a half before our Thomas the Puritan was sailing out of London.

CAPTAIN SEBASTIAN BRIGHAM *

Paige's Hist. Cambridge (Mass.) records: "Brigham, Sebastian, about 1638, bought house and garden at the northwest corner of Holyoke and Winthrop Sts., which he sold to John Bridge in 1639. He probably removed to Rowley."

Morse's Brigham book (p. 3) finds "no further trace" than shown by Cambridge records.

There are preserved several entries in the Records of Massachusetts. Vol. II., p. 87, states that Sebastian Brigham (then of Rowley), by action of the General Court, Nov. 13, 1644, "hath liberty to sell wine and to keepe an ordinary."

Ibid., p. 187, May 26, 1647, The Rowley Co., having chosen Sebastian B. their Captain, he is confirmed by Gen. Ct. Ibid., Vol. III., pp. 62, 105, 183: Capt. S. B. of Rowley is "Deputy" in 1646, 1647, and 1650. Ibid., p. 186: He was appointed by the Gen. Ct., May 23, 1650, one of a Commission to lay out the boundaries of Haverhill, Mass. From the published Records of Rowley, Mass., we learn that Sebastian Brigham was a large landholder.

From the Records of Rowley, Mass. (printed), Proem, p. vi.: "Sebastian Briggam was the Captain of the first military company. Had wife, Mary. Returned to England about 1657.† Four children were born here." ‡

MARLBORO AND ITS BRIGHAMS

As Marlboro, Mass., whose original boundaries included the present Northboro, Southboro, Westboro, and Hudson, is the Mecca of the American Brigham, it is well here to give a brief summary of the place and its Brigham inhabitants. In 1656, thirteen of the leading settlers of Sudbury (the first town to the east) received from the General Court favorable answer to their petition for a new township grant: Marlboro being the result.

Heading the list of petitioners, and one of the first to move to Marlboro, was Edmund Rice, who took with him his second wife, the widow of Thomas Brigham the Puritan, with her young Brigham family, whose names, however, do not appear upon the records for † Blodgett's "Early Settlers of Rowley, Mass." says returned with family about 1656 or earlier.

‡ Farmer's "Geneal. Reg. makes Sebastian's son 'John' Brigham, a graduate of Harvard Coll., 1669." The "Bridgham" family is entitled to this honor. The earliest "Brigham" graduate was "Benjamin, 1764."

some time. They settled upon the north side of "The Pond," not far from Williams' Tavern; and for the succeeding two and a half centuries, the Brighams have continued to people the scene.

At the time of Philip's War, they fled to Watertown. On their return, such was the feeling against Indian perfidy, a petition was made to the General Court to divide the 6000-acre "Indian Plantation," a part of and contiguous to Marlboro. Although this was denied, the people, under the leadership of John Brigham, took a deed from the Indians to these lands, 15 July, 1684; and though this was declared "null and void" by the General Court, the white proprietors proceeded to divide and settle these lands, under the supervision of their agent, the said John Brigham, who was their surveyor. In the 1686 list of proprietors we find the names of all the young Brighams, and their alliances, for the first time set out, viz.: Mercy Hunt (former widow of the Puritan Brigham, who before this time had married her third husband, William Hunt, also then dead), Thomas Brigham, John Brigham, Samuel Brigham, John Fay, (husband of Mary Brigham), and William Ward (husband of Harnah Brigham). Feeling uneasy over the adverse action of the Court, in 1683, the proprietors agreed that their grants "shall stand good to all intents and purposes, if they be attested by John Brigham, their Clerk." And so it stood, until, after a generation, having acquired title by possession, the General Court confirmed it.

The first mill in town was built by John Brigham (before Philip's War) on Assabet River (now in Northboro), and the site was only recently abandoned.

The first tannery in town was built by Samuel Brigham, and continued in the family for generations. The shoe industry is now the most important by far in town; and Francis Brigham, one of Samuel's descendants, more than fifty years ago started in Hudson a shoe factory, which is the leading business of that town.

In 1689, John Brigham was one of a committee of two chosen by the town, when the tyrant Andros was superseded by the Colonial Government.

At this period new settlements to the westward were being made (e. g., Shrewsbury, Brookfield, Rutland, Worcester, and Grafton), and the Brigham family, with others, sent its colonizers.

In Queen Anne's War, Samuel Brigham was one of the committee to assign the inhabitants to the twenty-six log forts erected. Among these, we see: "4. Capt. [Samuel] Brigham's Garrison." "10. Thomas Brigham's Garrison," which included his son Jonathan. "14. Nathan Brigham's Garrison," and David Brigham of Edmund Rice's Garrison. In this war Samuel Brigham was the lieutenant of Capt. Howe, and thereafter received a bounty for destroying an Indian.

In 1717, in reply to petition of Thomas Brigham and others, about half the town land, with other added (including the Rice and Fay farms to the westward) became the new town, "Westboro"; and among its first inhabitants are David and Jotham Brigham, with the Rice, Ward, and Fay families (related by intermarriage) represented. Subsequently, Northboro, Southboro, and Hudson were carved out of the parent town; in all of which the Brighams were interested.

Some Marlboro records covering a period of many years were lacking (and entirely lost in the Town Hall fire of 1903; showing the town's wise foresight in having had published a history, by Charles Hudson, 1862; to which the present writer owes so much), but in 1756, we find Thomas and Capt. Ephraim Brigham on a committee of five to repair the meeting-house "on the foreshore and two ends," including glazing "with sash glass, set in wood."

In the military history of Marlboro, the Brighams have held conspicuous places. Numbers took a hand in the French and Indian Wars, as exhibited by meager records; (Lieut. Ephraim, Sergt. Benj., Corps. Asa and Ithamar, privts. Paul, Noah, etc.); and when we come to the Revolution, we have full evidence of their bravery. In the preliminary stages, George Brigham was one of the committee of five to draw up a "Covenant of non-consumption of British goods"; and was one of three to represent the town in the "Provisional Government."

We now come to the immortal day of Concord and Lexington, 19 April, 1775; upon which day marched out from old Marlboro Captain William Brigham and Company, including 2d Lieut. Ithamar B., Sergts. Henry and Joseph B., Corp. Lewis B., and privates Lovewell, George, Gershom, and Alexander Brigham; in Barnes' Company marched 2d Lieut. Paul Brigham, Corp. Antipas B., and private Jonathan; in Gates' Company, privates Henry, George, and Uriah; in Howe's Company, private Joel. In the same year, enrolled with the "eight months" men, we find Capt. Paul, and privates Jonathan, Abraham, Artemas, William, Uriah, Henry, and George Brigham. Among others who fought during this war are Lovewell, John Gott, David, Phineas, David, Paul, Daniel, Samuel, Stephen, and Aaron Brigham. (For fuller detail, turn to the Appendix, and individual records.)

Illustrating school activity: Thomas and Jotham Brigham were on the school committee of five, in 1745; Samuel Brigham received £57.10 for teaching "two school quarters," in 1747; in 1771, Capt. Ephraim Brigham left £111, a permanent fund, the interest to be annually expended for a school for "writing and cyphering." "Brigham School," thus created, gave to older pupils in the spring

BRIGHAM CEMETERY, MARLBORO

(after "common school" closing) this additional instruction; until the fund was merged in the general appropriations.

We are likely to forget that slavery once existed in New England. In 1771, the Assessors return "1 slave owned by Hannah Brigham." In 1770, the Brigham "polls" in town, with the number in each family, appear as follows: Samuel 1, Uriah 1, George 2, Ithamar 1, Paul 1, Ephraim 3, Joseph 2, Benjamin 3, Asa 1, Solomon 1, Caleb 2, and Winslow 1. Ephraim was one of the largest taxpayers. At the beginning of the next century, the Brighams number 25 polls; making, with the Howes and the Rices, 73 of the 277 taxpayers.

"Brigham Cemetery" is situated on West Main Street; an enclosure of some acre and a half, reached through a little lane and commanding a pleasing landscape to the southwest. It was named after Capt. William Brigham and Lydia his wife, who died in 1793, of smallpox (one of the most dreaded foes of the early settlers); and, as forbidden to be buried in a public cemetery, were here entombed. In 1808 this land was deeded by Capt. William's son, Col. Ephraim Brigham, Esq., to the Unitarian Society; and over Ephraim's remains, in 1887, Lucius L. Brigham of Worcester erected a fine gray granite monument. About thirty Brighams are here buried, in a ground which, since 1882, has been kept in excellent condition by the income of the "Gibbon Fund."

Of Marlboro civil officers, we find:

Selectmen: Samuel Brigham, 1707, '10; Samuel, 1741, '42, '44, '46, '48, '49, '54; Jedediah, 1741, '43, '47, '52; Ephraim, 1749, '50, '54, '56-'59, '61, '62, '65, '67, '69; Joseph, 1749, '62, '64; Samuel, 1755; Joel, 1763, '72; Uriah, 1765, '68, '69; Winslow, 1770-'80, '82, '84, '86, '88, '89, '91; Joseph, 1771; George, 1774-'76; Ithamar, 1775, '76, '78, '79, '82; Paul, 1777; Solomon, 1777; William, 1778, '82, '85; Daniel, 1792-'94, '97-1813; Aaron, 1795, '96, 1802-'05; Joseph, Jr., 1799, 1801; Paul, 1801; Ithamar, 1801, '06, '09, '11, '13; Ephraim, 1808; Jedediah, 1810, '14-'16; Ashbel S., 1816; Ephraim, 1824, '25; Francis, 1846, '47; George, 1856.

Town Clerk: Samuel Brigham, 1754, '55; Uriah, 1769; Winslow, 1770-'80, '82; Daniel, 1807-'13; Jedediah, 1814.

Town Treasurer: George Brigham, 1741; Ephraim, 1742, '43, '50, '52-'64; Daniel, 1801-'13; Jedediah, 1814-'18; George, 1855.

Assessors: Samuel Brigham, 1739, '40; Ephraim, 1747, '59-'63, '65, '68; Winslow, 1769, '73, '77, '81, '82, '84-'86, '88; Asa, 1773, '74; Paul, 1775, '76; Uriah, 1788; Daniel, 1794-'99; Aaron, 1800-'06, '10; Jedediah, 1804, '08; Charles, 1849; Aaron, 1852.

Representatives to General Court: John Brigham, 1689, '92; Samuel, 1697-'99, 1705; Nathan, 1726, '30; Samuel, 1741; George, 1776, '77, '81; Paul, 1777; Winslow, 1783, '84; Daniel, 1803, '10, '12-'19; Francis, 1850, '52.

Delegate to Constitutional Convention, 1779, Winslow Brigham; Committee of Correspondence, 1776, Paul Brigham; 1780, Joel Brigham. Justice Peace, Joseph Brigham, appointed 1804.

Of the three original Brigham settlers, two historically identified their names with two homesteads: Thomas, west of town (on present Glen St.), and Samuel, east of town (on present E. Main St.). John Brigham seems to have been too busy to "keep home" here; but he is identified by his mill (on the "Priest Whitney place") in Northboro, as well as his later homestead in Sudbury.

THOMAS BRIGHAM, THE EMIGRANT

THOMAS BRIGHAM, THE EMIGRANT:

1603-1653

1 THOMAS¹ BRIGHAM, born probably in England in 1603; died in Cambridge, Mass., 8 Dec., 1653; married, probably in 1637, Mercy Hurd, born probably in England; died in Marlboro, Mass., 23 Dec., 1693.

Governor Winthrop has left a graphic narrative of sixty-four days on shipboard coming hither from old England in 1630.* The Rev. Richard Mather also kept a journal of his passage, in 1635, which occupied twelve weeks and two days from taking ship at Bristol to the landing at Boston.† These stories present a vivid picture of the perils and privations attending the long voyage Thomas Brigham encountered a little earlier in the latter season, from the somewhat more remote port of London. He must have first set foot on the New England shore early in June, for in one of the few passenger lists ‡ of that time which have escaped loss or destruction we read:

"VIII April 1635. Theis under written are to be transported to New England imbarqued in the Suzan and Ellen, Edward Payne Mr (Master). The p'ties have brought certificates from y^e Ministers and Justices of the peace y^t they are no subsidy men; and are conformable to y^e orders and discipline of the Church of England.

Aboard the same ship were Symon Crosby and his wife and infant, future neighbors in Cambridge; Ralph Hudson and Percival Green, who were to be fellow-townsmen there, and also two boys, Benjamin and Daniel, with their father, the learned and reverend Peter Bulkley, who the same year was to found the town of Concord and long was its pastor and benefactor.

The record quoted, which is the earliest we have of Thomas Brigham, shows that he was born in 1603, wherein occurred the death of Queen Elizabeth and the beginning of the reign of the House of Stuart, which brought so much misfortune to the Puritans of England.

We may yet learn from what English town or hamlet he came, for the great mass of unprinted and inaccessible parish and probate records is slowly yielding each year to patient antiquarians more particulars of those who passed to New England.

Landed in "the Massachusetts," perhaps he first went to live in Watertown; but of that we have no intimation further than the fact that his largest piece of planting ground was situated within Watertown territory. This, however, was adjacent to the bounds of Cambridge and only fourteen minutes' walk from the centre of the latter settlement, while on the other hand Watertown village was nearly three miles distant. In fact it was in a district long ago taken from Watertown and made part of Cambridge.

Dr. Bond, who made an exhaustive study of the early settlers in Watertown, says: "Probably he (Thomas Brigham) did not reside in Watertown" (Genealogy and History of Watertown, p. 1006).

A visitor in 1633 thus described the village, which in 1638 was to be renamed Cambridge:

"By this side of this river is built Newtown which is three miles by land from Charlestown & a league & a half by water. This place was first intended for a city but upon more serious consideration, it was not thought so fit, being too far from the sea, being the greatest inconvenience it hath. This is one of the neatest & best compacted towns in New England, having many structures & many handsome contrived streets. The inhabitants are most of them very rich & well stored with cattle of all sorts, having many hundred acres of ground paled in with one general fence, which is about a mile & a halfe long, which secures all their weake cattle from the wild beasts. On the other side of the river lieth all their meadow & much ground for hay." *

An examination of the map of Cambridge as it was in 1635, drawn by Mr. Charles D. Elliot, shows that the original settlement, called "the town," lay between the present college yard and the marsh at the river's edge. To the eastward stretched the first "planting field," "the small lots" and "the large lotts" forming "the Neck." To the westward of "the Town" lay the "West End" and beyond that the "West End Field." In "the West End" just within the encircling fort or stockade lived Thomas Brigham.

The General Court in 1634, and again in 1635 and 1639, ordered that records of every man's houses and lands should be taken, entered in the town book and a transcript thereof handed into court, and that such record should be a sufficient assurance of title.

* New England's Prospect, Josselyn, 1634.

The towns were slow in responding. The larger part of such an inventory for Cambridge, and that which enumerates about seventy proprietors, follows the date of September, 1639.

Thomas Brigham's property is described as follows:

"In the West end one house with three acres of Land and a halfe the highway to watertowne North Joseph Isack Southeast Symon Crosb (y) Southwest, the high waye to the Windemill Hill West." (P. R., p. 64.)*

Situated thus at a corner, the lot can be identified with exceptional certainty; the "highway to watertowne," now Brattle Street, and the "high waye to the Windemill Hill," now Ash Street, being two very early thoroughfares, which have maintained their identity from 1630 to the present day. If the curious reader cares to follow Ash Street to the river, he will notice that the "Windemill hill" was a low one, being rather a projection of the higher land into the marshes; and looking up the Charles River, as it comes down through the broad meadows, it is still evident why, in 1632, the mill was removed to Boston, because only when the wind came from across these meadows to the west had it force to propel the sails.

Forty-one pages further on, in the Proprietors' Book, this description is repeated, except that we now have "one Dwelling house with out houses." Elizabeth Isaacke is now on the Southeast and "John Benjamin and An Crosby on the South west." Their father Symon died in 1639. When this property was deeded in 1654, it is described as "conteyning the late mansion house of the s^d Thomas Brigham with the Edifices, Barn, Cow houses and about three acres and a halfe to the same adjoining . . . a part whereof is a garden & orchards."

Radcliffe College has lately acquired a portion of this estate, known as the Greenleaf estate, as it lies directly across Brattle Street from its grounds which contain "Faye House," "Agassiz Hall" and the Gymnasium building, and eventually will form its principal quadrangle.

The Watertown Book of Possessions describes Thomas Brigham's property in that town as follows (A. D. 1639):

"Thomas Brigam.

"1. Thirteen Acres of upland more or less and one Acre of Meddow bounded the East with John Marrett & Cambridge line the West with Thomas Andrews & Robert Keies the North with Cambridge Street the South with River & Samuel Saltonstall."

* P. R. refers to the Proprietors' Record of Cambridge, and to the pages as numbered in the printed publication.

Here again the bounds are of exceptional clearness: the river, Cambridge Street (now Brattle Street) and the "Cambridge line" (now Sparks Street).

If the curious reader has followed Ash Street to the "Winde mill hill," he has noticed along the foot of its short western slope a group of ancient willows, the willows that Lowell loved and sang:

". . . an ancient willow spreads
Eight balanced limbs, springing at once all round,
His deep ridged trunk with upward slant diverse,

In outline like enormous beaker. . . .

"This tree

Is one of six, a willow Pleiades,
The seventh fallen, that lean along the brink
Where the steep upland dips into the marsh,
Their roots like molten metal cooled in flowing,
Stiffened in coils and runnels down the bank.
The friend of all the winds, wide armed he towers
And glints his steely aglets in the sun.

—Under the Willows, James Russell Lowell.

This group of willows bounds at one end a portion of the Metropolitan Park which lies between the Charles River and Mt. Auburn Street. At its other end Thomas Brigham's "Watertown Field" came down to the stream. Inland from "the willows" the narrow Longfellow Park extends up to the front of Craigie House and as a memorial preserves the vista of which that poet was so fond, looking across the "meadows on y^e south side the river," as the old records call them, where is now "Soldiers Field," and its huge white stadium, which gathers within it of an afternoon, a crowd in numbers double the whole population of Massachusetts in the days of Thomas Brigham.

If we go up Sparks Street from the river as far as Brattle Street, observing that what is now Hubbard Park (or two and one-half acres of it) substantially represents the lot that John Marrett owned at the northeast corner of Thomas Brigham's land, then follow Brattle Street to Lowell Street, and thence by that street to the park, then to the river front, and then along the water to where Sparks Street would enter it, we shall have compassed the Watertown property of Thomas Brigham. We have also included about three acres at the corner of Mt. Auburn Street and Lowell Street that belonged to Samuel, the son of Sir Richard Saltonstall, the exact boundary line of which is uncertain.

At the back of the Cambridge Proprietors' Book, without date but by the context perhaps as early as 1636, is recorded: "Lootts Given out By the towne one the South side of Charles River: in two Sever (al) Divissions: to severall men as followeth." In these as "53" Thomas "Bridgham" received in "The Lower Division" 4 acres and in "the Upper division" 4 acres 7 (poles).

Thomas was made by the General Court a Freeman of the Massachusetts Bay Company, April 18, 1637,* and thus became a member of the body politic and acquired the right to vote. Preliminary to this he must have been a member of Cambridge church, but its records for the early years are lost. The oath required of a Freeman by the law of 1634 was as follows:

I, A. B., being by God's providence, an inhabitant and free-man within the jurisdiction of this Commonweale, doe freely acknowledge myselfe to be subject to the governm^t thereof doe heere sweare, by the great and dreadful name of the everlasting God, that I wil be true and faithful to the same, and will accordingly yeilde assistance and support thereunto, with my pson and estate, as in equity I am bound, and will also truely indeav^r to maintaine and preserve all the libertyes and priviledges thereof, submitting my selfe to the wholesome laws and orders made and established by the same: and furth^r, that I will not plott nor practise any evil against it, nor consent to any that shall so doe, but will timely discover and reveale the same to lawfull authority now here established, for the speedy preventing thereof. Moreover, I doe solumnely bynde myselfe, in the sight of God, that when I shall be called to give my voice touching such matter of this state, wherein freemen are to deale, I will give my vote and suffrage, as I shall judge in myne owne conscience may best conduce and tend to the publike weale of the body, without respect of psons, or favor of any man.

Soe helpe mee God, in the Lord Jesus Christ.

At "a Court of Assistants, or Quarter Court, held at Boston, the 3rd of the 10th mo. 1639," Thomas Brigham was one of the twelve jurymen on the trial of "Marmaduke Peirce, being indited upon suspicion of murther, was found not guilty, but was bound to the good behavior, and to appear at the next Court, and to pay the witnesses and Nico. Davis was bound in 20[£] for his appearance.—" (Colonial Records.)

Thomas Brigham's lot, No. 89, was included in that conveyance.

Thomas Brigham died the 8th day of the 10th month, 1653 (Old Style), or December 19th, 1653 (New Style).

He was buried, there is convincing reason to believe (Mr. Morse notwithstanding), in the old Burial Ground on the south side of the Cambridge Common, a few minutes' walk from his mansion; but no stone remains to mark the spot. Only one of the existing stones* records a death as early as 1653, that of Ann Erinton, who died two days after Thomas Brigham. The stone next in age is ten years later, and commemorates Elizabeth Cutter, sister-in-law of Mercy Brigham's sister, if Mr. Morse's supposition is correct.

Tho: Danforth Recorder,

Certain terms in the inventory are thus explained:

Livery table, a delivery or serving table.

Joine chair or joine stool, such furniture framed with joinery work.

Buffet stool, a cushion for the feet, or small ottoman.

Cob-irons, andirons.

Ockumy spoons, Ockimy or Ockamy, a "mixed metal."

Pease meake, Peas hook.

Cheese fatt, a vat or round box.

Piggin, a wooden dipper.

October 20, 1651, by act of Parliament, certain Scotch prisoners were made free. A large number of them seem to have come to Charlestown in December, 1652. In the list was one Daniel Mackajne (Suffolk Deeds, vol. i. p. 6). It seems possible it was he who appears in the inventory as Daneel Mykene. Thomas Brigham may have paid his passage money, to be repaid subsequently in labor as was then a custom, so that at the death of Thomas Brigham the value of labor then due was £15.

A better understanding of Thomas¹ Brigham's property is gained by a consideration of the disposition made of the real estate after his death.

In March, 1654, "whereas the Lord hath in his wise providence so disposed that the s^d Mercy Brigham the relict widdow of the s^d Thomas Brigham is now married to Edmund Rice of Sudbury," etc. the overseers of the will sold to Thomas Fox, one of their number, for £40, the "Watertown field" estimated to contain 20 acres more or less (see Note 1 at the close of this generation), and at the same time deeded to John Hastings, another of their number, for £60, the mansion house with garden and orchard, also a lot in the Neck and also a wood lot and the town rights appertaining to these (see Note 2).

Neither of these deeds was recorded until 31 years later, and by some mischance the authority to make these sales which the overseers had obtained from the General Court was not properly entered until 30 years after making the deeds, when a second application was made and received approval from the General Court. Meanwhile in 1681 the children of Thomas Brigham, now about 30 and 40 years of age, sold in two pieces the 10 acres their father had owned in Rockie meadow (see Note 3), and also another 10 acres of his meadow and swamp land (see Note 4).

Still later, and 42 years after their father's death and when their mother had been dead two years, they appear to have been ignorant of these deeds that have been quoted as made by the overseers, or else they felt the overseers had not fulfilled the requirement of the General Court that they (the overseers) should give proper surety for the rights of the heirs. They therefore formally made claim for their rights to the property, Samuel Hastings having, meanwhile, acquired the properties deeded both to his father and to Thomas Fox. The quaint ceremony is recorded as follows:

"THO: BRIGHAMS CLAIME

On the same day the heirs also went through the ancient form of challenge, at the "small Farm on the Charlestown line," which had passed in some way into the hands of Thomas Danforth, one of the overseers of the estate, but the deed for which he had never recorded. What they did is thus told in the ancient record:

"We that have subscribed our Names Do Testifie and say that we were desired on y^e 27th of Septemb^r 1695. By Tho. Brigham, John Brigham, Samuel Brigham & Hannah Ward the Children of Thomas Brigham Deceased all of Marlburrough in the County of Mid^x in the Massachusetts Bay in New England to go along with them to a ffarme upon the Rocks within the bounds of Cambridge, within the aforesaid County, which ffarme is asserted by them to be Eighty Acres, with the meadow belonging to it according to Town Grant, & then & there upon y^e aforesaid Land, & on the day above mentioned We See Thomas Brigham, John Brigham & Samuel Brigham mark severall Trees w^{ch} was the bounds of said Land & cut out the marks upon the Trees which marked wth T. Samuel Hastings was the son of John Hastings.

Suit was brought against Samuel Hastings (see Note 5).

Eight years passed, and in 1703 the heirs united in a deed for this property to the Danforth estate (see Note 6).

Thomas Brigham married probably in 1637 his wife Mercy, but of this date there is no record. We know she must have been a woman of unusual strength, force and determination. The Rev.
Abner Morse says, on the authority of tradition, that her maiden name was Mercy Hurd, that she was 10 or 15 years younger than her husband, and that, persecuted in England for nonconformity, she came to New England with her sister, who married William (?) Cutter. Tradition should be taken as a clue to the truth rather than truth itself, for investigation where practicable is likely to find the basis of truth small in tradition a century old.
The Cutter Genealogy states that when William Cutter returned to England, probably he was a bachelor.

She married for her second husband, 1 March, 1655, Edmund¹
Rice, then of Sudbury, but who removed in 1660 to Marlboro, where he died 3 May, 1663. He was born 1594, and came from Barkhamstead, Hertfordshire, England; settled in Sudbury in 1638-9;
resided on east side of Sudbury River in the southerly part of what is now Wayland, near the great meadows. . . . He was selectman in 1644, and deacon of the church in 1648. His first wife was Tamazine, who came with him from England; also eight children. His residence in Marlboro was in the westerly part of the town, on an old county road leading from Marlboro to North-boro, and in the bend, as it passes around the northerly side of Williams Pond, a short distance north of the ancient Williams Tavern. He was intrusted by the General Court (1640 and 1643) with various duties. He was buried in Sudbury and his estate settled by his widow.

On her second marriage she took with her to Sudbury and Marlboro all her children (History of Cambridge, p. 501).

Children of Edmund Rice and Mercy (Hurd) (Brigham) Rice:

- i Ruth, b in Sudbury, Mass., 29 Sept., 1659; died 30 March, 1742, æ. 83; married 20 June, 1683, Samuel, son of Capt. Samuel and grandson of Gov. Thomas Welles of Conn. (Gov. Welles settled at Hartford, 1636; Capt. Samuel settled at Weathersfield; Samuel resided at Glastonbury, Conn.); her husband was b. 13 April, 1660; d. 28 Aug., 1731. On the first day of June, 1684, a deed was made by Samuel and Ruth (Rice) Welles to Eleazer Howe of Marlboro, of her land inherited from her father, 12½ acres, bounded by Samuel Brigham. She made her "mark." Their first child, who d. in infancy, was named "Mercy."
- ii Ann, b. in Marlboro, 19 Nov., 1661; probably married Nathaniel Gary (Gerry) of Roxbury, Mass., 12 Nov., 1685; he was b. 4 July, 1663, son of Nathaniel Gery and Ann Dugglas, who were married in Roxbury, 14 Oct., 1658.

A petition for a division of Edmund Rice's estate was signed 16 (4) 1663 by his widow Mercy with eight elder and two younger children. His inventory made a total of £556 0s. 7d (Mid. Files).

His inventory made a total of £556 0s. 7d (Mid. Files).

Mercy married, 1664, as her third husband, William Hunt, then of Marlboro, but formerly an early settler in Concord. He was made Freeman 2 June, 1641, and was a large land holder. His first wife Elizabeth, the mother of his children (Nehemiah, Samuel, Elizabeth and Isaac), died 27 Dec., 1661. His will probated 17 Dec., 1667, made the following provision for his widow:

"I doe give and bequeath to Mercy Hunt my well beloved Wife all my cart and plow Irons here at Marlboro, one spade, also one bedstead and Cord, one pair of Curtains & Valionts, one Chest, one cupboard, two Cushion stools, two Joyn-stools, three Cushions, two frying pans, one peuter flaggon, one peuter bowle, one peior of Tongs, three small peuter plates, one winnowing sheete, one forke, one little keeller, two hand pigine pails, one booke, one fine sheet" (Hunt Family Gen.).

She died in Marlboro, 23 Dec., 1693, after a third widowhood of 26 years. During this period she saw two bloody Indian wars. The 26th of March 1676, the Marlboro people were assembled in their meeting house for worship when the alarm was sounded and they barely reached the garrison house in time to find safety from the attacking Indians, who burned houses and barns and destroyed orchards and cattle. The people shortly retreated to the towns to the eastward, where they remained for some months until peace was assured.

It will be noted that the constables are the husbands of the widow Hunt's two elder daughters.

The little oak chest, of which a picture is given, presents the visible link that spans the years from Mercy Brigham to her children of so many generations later who read these pages. Mr. Thomas Brigham Rice of Barre,* who now owns it, and who received it from his mother, Mrs. Nancy (Brigham) Rice, daughter of Henry Brigham, as a child knew it, then in his grandmother's possession, as "Mercie Hunt's cap box," but he had no conception who Mercy Hunt was until he learned in the Brigham Genealogy at its publication in 1859 that she and Mrs. Thomas¹ Brigham were one and the same person.

The box measures inside in length $22\frac{1}{2}$ inches, in height $9\frac{1}{2}$ inches, in width $7\frac{3}{4}$ inches, and is of English oak one inch thick. The larger part of the furniture which was brought over in the Puritan migration is distinctly Jacobean in style, that is, dating from the first half of the seventeenth century, very different from the carving on Mercy Brigham's box. Nor is the latter of the preceding Tudor style, which prevailed in the 16th century. The picture of the box was submitted to an accomplished architect of Boston, one of English birth and training, especially versed in English Gothic art. He pronounces the box to be work in the

SECOND GENERATION

SECOND GENERATION

2 MARY², daughter of Thomas and Mercy (Hurd) Brigham; born probably in Cambridge, Mass., about 1638; died in Watertown, in 1676; married John Fay, the emigrant, who settled in Marlboro, Mass., and died 5 May, 1690, æ. 50.

Mary was the first Brigham born in America, and as such deserves especial mention. Paige, in his History of Cambridge (pp. 501-2), a most thorough and painstaking work, chronicles that "Mary went to Sudbury and Marlboro with her mother, brothers and sister, when her father died, where she married John Fay of Marlboro." And he cites evidence, as already indicated by a legal document (Mid. Prob. Recs., vii. 9), wherein, joining with other complainants, John Fay and Samuel Fay, children of Mary Fay of Marlboro, and heirs of Thomas Brigham, late of Cambridge, began suit September 28, 1695, to recover certain lands in the possession of Samuel Hastings, who possessed also the Puritan Brigham homestead. John Fay Sr.'s wife was Mary, and there was no other Fay in Marlboro at that time of suitable age to be the father of said John, Jr., and Samuel Fay, parties to said suit. Paige was undoubtedly correct, and we must include in our genealogy of the Brighams the children of John and Samuel Fay, sons of Mary (Brigham) Fay. Both of them had large families, among them being sons who became the heads of numerous branches (see Fay Family). There was also a daughter, Mary Fay, who married Jonathan³ Brigham, her cousin, and a son of Thomas² Brigham; they had 10 children, thus starting several male lines of Brighams. Hudson, in his Hist. of Marlboro, does not conflict with Paige's position; and he adds that John Fay retired (with most other Marlboroites), during King Philip's War, to Watertown, where he buried his wife Mary and a young son David, just coming five years.

John Fay, the husband of Mary Brigham, came to America when he was eight years of age. No mention is made of his parents. He is found in Marlboro as early as 1669. He married (2) Susanna, daughter of William Shattuck of Watertown and widow of Joseph Morse. As will be seen, she married for her third husband, Thomas² Brigham.

Children (Fay), born in Marlboro:

iv Mary, b. 10 Feb., 1675; m. Jonathan⁸ Brigham, 8.

3 THOMAS², son of Thomas¹ and Mercy (Hurd) Brigham; born probably in Cambridge, Mass., about 1640; died in Marlboro, Mass., 25 Nov., 1716; married (1), 27 Dec., 1665, Mary, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Moore) Rice, (daughter of John and Elizabeth Moore of Sudbury), and granddaughter of Edmund Rice, the emigrant, and his wife, Tamazine; married (2), 30 July, 1695, Susanna, daughter of William Shattuck of Watertown and widow (1) of Joseph Morse and (2) of John Fay, whose first wife was Mary, the sister of Thomas. It will be noted that every descendant of Thomas² is also a descendant of Edmund Rice, who is an ancestor of many colonial families in eastern Massachusetts. He had a large number of children, some of whom were of mature age at the time of the emigration.

Thomas went to Sudbury and Marlboro with his mother when she married Edmund Rice. On attaining his majority he bought of his stepfather, for £30, a town right in Marlboro of "24 acres, with the frame of a dwelling house thereon, with all the privileges of the town commons and further additions of allotments to be made thereto." August 28, 1665, having completed payment for the same, he received a deed from the Executors of Edmund Rice.* This land, situated near Williams Pond in the southwest part of the town, was the beginning of his large farm, which included many acres stretching away toward Chauncey Pond in Westboro. Thomas Brigham also was one of the purchasers of the old plantation "Ockoocangansett," which had been reserved for the Indians out of the ancient boundaries of Marlboro, and which many contended they forfeited by their perfidy during Philip's War. Certain leading men of Marlboro, including the Brighams of the day, obtained, without the consent of the General Court, title to this plantation of 5800 acres and formed a company. The amount paid never can be known, because of the subsequent disappearance of the deed, but the sum doubtless was nominal.

Miss Martha L. Ames, a descendant of Thomas², residing on the old Joseph Brigham place in Marlboro, owns a very early Brigham deed, dated "May 10, 1706," being a conveyance of $13\frac{3}{4}$ acres of meadow land, as explained by a map, going to Thomas² Brigham, out of "Cow common" land, and certified to by his brother "Dr. John," who had been chosen "surveyor and clerk" by the proprietors. On the old Thomas Brigham homestead, on the south side of present Forest Street, beyond the confluence of Glen Street, something like a score of rods from the highway and at the foot of Crane Hill, is a slightly raised rectangular plot, about 30 x 75 feet, from whose center springs a mature apple tree. Here rest the last of the Marlboro Indians, whose earlier generations listened to the great Indian Apostle Eliot. Their last chief expired in his wigwam, near Williams Pond, and was buried at this place on the Brigham farm, where thirty other individual graves could be made out by the last generation of Marlboro citizens. This spot has always been sacredly preserved by the owners of the Brigham farm. The successive owners of the "old home place" since the Rices are as follows:

* The parchment deed of this purchase is owned by Charles F. Brigham, of Allston, Mass., who relates that when a boy he boasted at school that he had a deed on parchment at home, and being dared to produce it, he tore a small piece off one corner of it and carried it to school to vindicate his statement. The interview afterward with his father was not pleasant. This deed runs from Benjamin Rice to Thomas Brigham, and upon it Mercy Rice made her "Mark" in place of a signature.

Thomas and John Brigham (with others) oppose petition of some fellow-citizens that the Gen. Court appoint a Committee to inquire into and settle certain municipal difficulties. The Committee was, however, appointed, and its adjustment recorded in the "New Town Book." A later Committee seems to have supported this adjustment (Hudson's Marlboro, p. 46).

Thos. and Sam'l Brigham supported the Rev. Emerson in the controversy of 1701 (Ibid., p. 102.)

Thos. Brigham's "Garrison" about 1710 in Queen Anne's War, near Warren Brigham place (Ibid., p. 109).

Thos. Brigham and 22 others of Marlboro in 1702 petitioned the Gen. Court that Chauncey (Western Marlboro) might be enlarged westward. Resulted in 1717 in setting off of Westboro. David, son of Thos., already settled there (Ibid., p. 113).

Thos. and Jno. Brigham in Marlboro before 1665; two of the first 44 proprietors (Ibid., p. 247).

(1) Thomas² Brigham; (2) Gershom³ Brigham; (3) Benjamin⁴ Brigham; (4) Warren⁵ Brigham; (5) Benjamin Thomas⁶ Brigham, son of Barnabas; (6) Elisha Bond, who bought it of Benj. T. Brigham; (7) Bradford Latham, son-in-law to Bond; (8) George F. Nichols, who bought it in 1893 from Latham; Mr. Nichols' wife is Abbie A.⁸, daughter of Addington M.⁷ Brigham of Marlboro. The last male Brigham owner of the place is said to have strikingly resembled his paternal ancestry, having "thick, wavy black hair, black eyes and red cheeks; a fine looking man."

The Thomas² Brigham homestead has long been known as the "Warren Brigham place," from its fourth owner, who died at the age of 87, more than half a century ago. Up to his time there had been no Warren Brighams. This fact inspired some research, which resulted in discovering that Gershom³ Brigham, the second owner, had married Mehetabel Warren, daughter of Joseph Warren of Medfield.

Like the sites of the homes of so many of the first settlers, that of Thomas² Brigham's house seems almost to have been chosen for the landscape effect. The brook which gives the outlet to Williams Pond flows through the home lot. A few rods above the brook stood the house. From it the higher hills appear to encompass the valley of the brook, except where they break to the northwest and a narrow opening discloses the peak of Mt. Wachusett looming up twenty miles away. The first dwelling, a log hut built by Thomas², was burned during his absence by flax catching fire. In 1706 he built a frame house, which was left for an "ell" by his son Gershom, who built a two-story house about 1724. The old house was used as a garrison in Queen Anne's War. This "ell" was finally taken down in 1791, by Warren Brigham. Mrs. Lucy B. Brown of Marlboro was the last occupant of the Gershom Brigham house, from which she moved in 1859; the house was uninhabited for some time and was finally razed. The Gershom Brigham house "was clapboarded but never painted outside; only two rooms were finished; the sitting-room and the principal bedroom were plastered and painted." About 1825 the present house was built on the opposite side of the road from the old house, by Barnabas⁶ Brigham. The old well, from which many Brigham pilgrims drink, still exists.

Thomas² unquestionably was one of the principal citizens of the town and must have held offices of responsibility, but an important volume of the town records was lost many years ago, hence there is no connected record of town officers or of town proceedings from 1665 to 1739. The church records are also fragmentary or nonexistent for the early period. His lands, however, were

ROOM IN JOSEPH'S BRIGHAM HOUSE, MARLBORO
Showing the chair in which Thomas' Brigham died extensive, lying in what now are four townships.* They divided into comfortable farms for his descendants and made many of them well-to-do. He executed his will 21 April, 1716, and died 25 Nov. of the same year in his chair, which is now in the possession of Miss Martha L. Ames. His will, which was approved 2 Jan., 1717, is as follows:

4 JOHN², son of Thomas¹ and Mercy (Hurd) Brigham; born in Cambridge, Mass., 9 March, 1644-45; died in Sudbury, Mass., 16 Sept., 1728; † married (1) Sarah † ———, who died between 1691 and 1698; she was the mother of his children; married (2) Deborah ———, who died 7 Feb., 1716-17; married (3), 22 May, 1717, Sarah Bowker, who survived him.

John, known as "Dr." Brigham, founder of the "lost tribe" of our family, undoubtedly was the most brilliant of the children of Thomas¹. Drake (History of Middlesex County, vol. ii. p. 141 et seq.) describes him as "one of the most popular and remarkable men of his day, having considerable capacity for public affairs, unusual ability as a surveyor and some ambition as a land speculator." Lewis (History of Worcester County, vol. ii. p. 1332) refers to him as "John Brigham, the doctor, surveyor, Commissioner of the General Court, land speculator and the most enterprising man in town." It is the very exuberance of his activity, his ubiquitous absorption here and there, into this and that problem of the place and hour, that make the fragmentary gleanings of him so fascinating yet unsatisfactory. Drake states that "he was returned as representative from Marlboro in 1688 and from Sudbury in 1706." The first date we cannot verify, as the records are lacking, but we learn from the State Archives (Recs. Gen. Crt. of Mass., vol. vi. pp. 16, 220) that John Brigham represented Marlboro in 1689 and 1692; and he was returned from Sudbury for the term of "May 30, 1705—Apr. 12, 1706." (Acts and Resolves of the Province of Mass. Bay, vol. viii. p. 115). He also was a Marlboro delegate to the convention called against the "Tyrant Andros."

* See Lancaster Records.

* Sudbury Records.

† Hist. of Westboro says he m. a dau. of Josiah Haynes.

He began business for himself by erecting a sawmill, with rude flutter wheel, the first turned on Assabet River, it may be, near the site of one existing in Morse's day owned by Hayes and Bush in Northboro on Howard's Brook; he having received, in 1672, a grant of land on Licor Meadow Plain. Hudson says (p. 231): "It is difficult to tell when or where the first mill was erected. It is probable, however, that the first was a sawmill and was erected in that part of the town now included in Northboro, by John Brigham. It was near the center of the present town of Northboro, on a stream which constitutes one of the principal tributaries of the Assabet River. This mill was erected before Philip's War." Whitney's History of Worcester (1793) points out that "a little north of the meeting-house runs a small but lasting stream from the hills in the westerly part of the town, on which is a sawmill which performs considerable work in spring and fall." Rev. Joseph Allen says he was the first white settler of Northboro.

He surveyed the Marlboro Indian Plantation of about 6000 acres in 1672; was granted the extensive "Coram farm"* for his services as surveyor; surveyed and mapped out Sudbury Township in 1708.

John Brigham appears to have been the leader in the attempt of some of the principal citizens of Marlboro to possess themselves of the Indian Plantation, Ockoocangansett, which, they alleged, had been forfeited by the Indians through their participation in King Philip's War. The General Court, in 1684, refused the prayer of the petitioners for permission to purchase the Plantation of the Indians; whereupon, says Hudson, it appears that the principal inhabitants of Marlboro, headed by John Brigham, resolved to possess the Indian lands. To cut the knot which they could not untie, on the 15th of July, 1684, they obtained, without the consent of the General Court, a deed of the Plantation from the Indians. This deed the General Court promptly declared null and void; notwithstanding which, the purchasers proceeded at once to take possession of the Plantation and to lay out and divide the lands.

"The 29th of October, 1686: At a meeting of the proprietors of Ockoocangansett Plantation, it was ordered that every proprietor should have laid out to him in some of the best of the land lying as conveniently as may be to the town of Marlboro, thirty acres for a first division of upland, and Mr. John Brigham is agreed, withall, to lay out the abovesaid lands, and to have five shillings a day, the one half in money, the other half in corn, rye at four shilling per bushel, and Indian at three shillings per bushel, and to have his diet all the while he is about the work. Also at the same meeting it was agreed that John Maynard Sen., and Richard Barnes, should join with John Brigham, to order the laying out of the land, and order highways according to their best discretion, and they to have two shillings a day for their pains, in corn at country prices. Also, at the same meeting, it was agreed that when the lots were laid out, every proprietor should draw his lot."

* "The 'Coram Farm' was granted John Brigham in 1672, as compensation for services as surveyor. The principal part of 'Coram Farm' lay on the northern side of the old Marlboro line, now (1826) farms of Nahum, Asa and Lewis Fay, John Green and Stephen Williams. . . . The Indians burnt John's house a few days after his removal" (Top. and Hist. Sketches, etc., Rev. Jos. Allen; Pamphlet, 1826; p. 25, note).

At a meeting of the proprietors, in December of the same year, continues Hudson, it was voted that Major Hinckman and others "should have the thousand acres of land which was surveyed by John Brigham, and signified by the plats under his hand, should be recorded in the Company's Book of Records, so that it make a final settlement of all differences about the said land, as to any further claimes." Among the fifty-two proprietors were included John, Samuel and Thomas, sons of Thomas¹ Brigham, Mercy Hunt, their mother, and John Fay and William Ward, who had married their sisters. Dr. John appears to have received, besides his share, other lots for his services. "Sept. 24, 1691, he, for £16, conveyed to Daniel Rice his 30 acre right in the Indian Plantation . . ." In 1693 the proprietors agreed that their grants of land "shall stand good to all intents and purposes, if they be attested by John Brigham their Clerk." In March, 1708, says Morse, they chose Dr. Brigham on a committee "to act about their title." The General Court, still keeping faith with the Indians, steadfastly refused to confirm the purchase, but in 1719 finally ended all controversy by annexing the territory to Marlboro. Hudson does not excuse this mild fraud upon the Indians, but, he says, "The people of Marlboro have at least this apology: they acted in accordance with the spirit of the age."

Morse concisely gives details of his later life as follows: "Dr. Brigham . . . Nov. 9, 1697, he then of Sudbury, for £70 received of Joseph Freeman of Preston, Conn., a deed of 130 acres in Sudbury, bounded on the south by the Lancaster Road and on the E. by the five miles of land first granted to Sudbury. This tract is presumed to be the farm now owned and occupied by Captain William Rice. Oct. 7, 1698, he sold for £10, to Nathaniel Oke, 12 acres E. of his sawmill in what is now Northboro."

Dr. Brigham lived in Marlboro near and northwest from the present French church. He evidently drew many lots of the town's commons. His old homestead in Northboro was situated on what is now Berlin Street, just on the edge of Northboro Center village, across Howard's Brook, where the site of his mill is still used for that purpose. A good part of the dam is of native rock, attesting John's shrewd selection of an advantageous spot. This farm has long been known as the "Priest Whitney Place," from the occupancy of the Rev. Peter Whitney, an honored historian of Worcester Co., who, having been ordained in 1767 and dying in 1816, built a fine mansion house in 1780, still standing in half-neglected picturesqueness. In 1839 Silas Haynes came into possession; succeeded in 1852 by Mr. S. McClure, with whom, in September, 1894, the writer had an interview. North of the residence at the orchard end, opposite some fence bars, two rods distant, is a level piece of meadow plowed over many times by Mr. McClure, who remembers well the spot where the plow touches "the white sand," which was filled into the cellar of the original John Brigham house. This spot is about 18 x 20 feet. In the rear it slopes down quickly to lower marshy ground, where was a spring, probably first used by John, four or five rods east, but now filled, although recognized in an indentation of the rounded slope.

In 1684 John was one of the grantees from the Indians of land from which was formed the "Plantation of Sudbury,"* whither he removed from Northboro, and he long lived on the old Sudbury and Marlboro Road near Sudbury town line. The old homestead building (where Abijah Brigham once lived) stood about ten rods west of the present Lucius Brigham house, and was a large old-fashioned red building with long sloping roof.† He served six years as selectman in Sudbury and was placed on important committees.‡

It is worthy of note that the given names of his seven children recall those of his family dear to his heart: Sarah, his wife; Mercy, his mother; Mary and Hannah, his sisters; Thomas, his father, Thomas his eldest brother, Samuel his other brother, and lastly himself. Singularly enough, he had just enough children in all and just enough of each sex to go around the beloved circle.

Judge Forbes of Worcester stated in a letter to the writer that he did not think any one knew the grave of John Brigham. The late James S. Draper of Wayland (E. Sudbury) stated that as far as he was aware, no gravestones of Brighams existed in that town. viii Samuel, m. 23 Aug., 1716, Abigail Monroe (or Moore); res. Sudbury, but had no children recorded.

5 HANNAH², daughter of Thomas¹ and Mercy (Hurd) Brigham; born in Cambridge, Mass., 9 March, 1649-50; died in Marlboro, Mass., Dec., 1719; married (1) Gershom Eames* of Marlboro, who went to Watertown, Mass., on the breaking out of King Philip's War, where he died 25 Nov., 1676; married (2) William, son of William Ward (who was in Sudbury as early as 1639, and owned land there); born in Sudbury, 22 Jan., 1640; died in Marlboro, 25 Nov., 1697.

The historians have had a good deal of trouble over Hannah with respect to her marriage, Morse having married her to Samuel Wells⁴ of Glastonbury, Conn., and Hudson (p. 357) concurring with the historian of Shrewsbury that Gershom Eames married Hannah Johnson, daughter of Solomon and Hannah Johnson. The Sudbury records show the birth of a Hannah, daughter of Solomon Johnson (who was Solomon, Jr.), but she would have been only 14 years old when Gershom Eames married Hannah Brigham. Paige corrects these errors (pp. 501-2), and we can support him with overwhelming evidence. Paige first quotes two Massachusetts public records; one wherein her name is given as Hannah Ward and another where William Ward, her husband, joins with Thomas², John², and Samuel² Brigham, in 1681, in conveying to Nicholas Fessenden certain of the Thomas¹ Brigham land in Cambridge. Paige continues:

"I do not find any Hannah Ward in that town who could represent herself as a daughter of Thomas Brigham, except the wife of William Ward, who united with the Brighams in the sale of

* The name in the early records is spelled with an E, but most of the families have dropped the E and spell it Ames (Hudson's History of Marlboro, p. 358).

the Cambridge land. This Hannah had been the wife of Gershom Eames; and is supposed by her descendant, Andrew H. Ward, in his History of Shrewsbury (p. 457) to have been a daughter of Samuel Johnson of Sudbury. But I think it more probable that Thomas Brigham was her father, and that John Brigham, who witnessed the execution of her will, Oct. 30, 1714, was her brother."

Hannah Eames had two children: Hannah (named for herself) and a posthumous daughter, Mary. She lived in Marlboro both before and after her marriage to Mr. Ward, although she probably accompanied her first husband to Watertown at the time of King Philip's War. In her will, executed 30 Oct., 1714, she makes pathetic reference to the boy Elisha, who was killed or stolen by the Indians. After the usual introductory formula, she devises as follows:

WILL OF HANNAH BRIGHAM-EAMES-WARD

FIRST: I will that all those debts and duties as I do owe in Right or conscience to any person or persons whatsoever shall well and truly be paid in convenient time after my decease by my Executor hereafter named.

Item: I give to my well beloved son Gershom Ward whom I likewise constitute make and ordain my onely and sole executor of this my last will and testament and all my lands and other Estate which I shall dye seized by him freely to be possessed, he fulfilling those things hereafter specified: First I will that he the aforesaid Gershom doe take the sole care of my daughter Hannah Eames and provid for her both in sickness and in health with the help of what Estate she hath and what of right belongs to her during her Natural Life. And further it is my plesuer that the Bed and Bedding which she uses and a white cow and all the puter that I shall leve that is marked with Eames leters with all her other things be called hers: it is my will also that his heirs or administrators stand obliged to the performance hereof and her funeral to be at his charge.

Item: I will that there be paid unto my four other children by my Executor above named to wit: to William and Nahum Ward and to Mary Keyes and Bethiah Brigham twenty shillings apiece within one year after my Decease and if Elisha shall ever come again that my executor pay him twenty shillings also and if any of my children should dy before the time of payment then to their heirs also. I apoint my well beloved kinsmen Samuel Goodenow and Joseph Straten to be the over seer of this my will, Ratifying and confirming this to be my last will and testament in witness hereof I have set my hand and seal the Day and yeare above written.

6 CAPT. SAMUEL², son of Thomas¹ and Mercy (Hurd) Brigham; born in Cambridge, Mass., 12 Jan., 1652; died in Marlboro, Mass., intestate, 24 July, 1713, æ. 61; married Elizabeth, daughter of Abraham and Hannah (Ward) Howe (who was a settler in Marlboro by 1660, and probably came from Roxbury, Mass.); born in Marlboro, 5 April, 1665; died there, 26 July, 1739, æ. 74.

Samuel, at the time of his mother's marriage to Edmund Rice, was 3 years old, and went with her to Sudbury and Marlboro. The glimpses we have of his early manhood are meagre. We first note that he had a "25 acre grant in the first laying out of Worcester, in 1673; it lying in the Eastern Squadron next to the County Road to Boston." He was a lieutenant of Capt. Thomas Howe and was rewarded by government for military services in Queen Anne's War. A garrison was established at his house in this war. Feb. 25, 1694, he sold 2 lots of meadow in Marlboro to Thomas Beman. In 1707 he drew a lot of 21 acres and a lot of 103 acres south of Tobacco Meadow, bounded by the path to his Stony Brook Meadow, where, in his right, his heirs drew other lots. April 23, 1708, he purchased of Obadiah Ward, Jr., a 10½-acre right in the lands of Marlboro; and in that year he became bound for Joseph Parre to Francis Holmes of Boston in the penal sum of £100. In the years 1699 and 1703, it has been stated, he was town treasurer, although Hudson says that the town records for that period are missing. He was selectman in 1707 and 1710, and representative to the General Court in 1697-99 and in 1705. According to Hudson, he resided three-fourths of a mile east of the East Village, near the old tanyard of the late Capt. Daniel Brigham.

To Samuel Brigham is due the honor of founding in old Marlboro the tanning and shoe trades. Many of Samuel's descendants are in the shoe business in Marlboro, in one capacity or another, as are also the descendants of Thomas². The first tannery in the town was erected by Samuel² about 1700, near his dwelling house on present East Main Street, one-quarter of a mile east of the old Village Academy. This tannery, which is said to have been the first west of Charlestown, descended in regular succession (Jedediah³, Winslow⁴, Daniel⁵) to Capt. Daniel⁶, who retired from active business in the early 1850's, when the tannery ceased to be used. In 1859 Capt. Daniel's son Dennison owned the site. For many years the tannery was being taken down piecemeal, and it was wholly demolished by 1876. The place is now owned by Francis C. Curtis, who married a Brigham, and through the kindness of Timothy Brigham Patch, we were permitted to see the outlines of the tanyard as it looked some fifty or a hundred years ago when the plant was at its highest development. An eye witness in 1894 might have seen a rectangular field by the roadside (Main Street), of about an acre in extent, enclosed by stone walls, wherein towered a magnificent old elm; hard by an ancient well spring, covered by one of the stones formerly used for grinding bark (the other stones serving as a backdoor step at the house of Mr. Curtis, a few rods distant). To the north of the spring were remains of the old Samuel "ffats," of small size, whose chestnut timbers are well preserved. Near by used to stand a curry shop, bark shed, bark mill, and a second curry shop which served sometimes for a dwelling. This last has been converted into a house known as "Glen Cottage." The main part of the old Jedediah³ house is about 20 x 40 feet, falling off to a leanto on the side, which was built in 1718 or thereabouts. It has been removed to No. 36 School Street. An ell had been removed to an adjoining lot a short time before we saw the house.

Samuel Brigham lies buried in the Old Cemetery in the rear of the Academy in Marlboro, the only one of the second generation of Brighams whose grave is marked. The headstone is rather ornate. Undoubtedly Thomas² and his mother also lie in this cemetery, but the places are unknown. Samuel² died intestate. The widow and eldest son, Samuel³, were appointed administrators of the estate, and John² Brigham appears on their bond. She was made guardian of the younger children. The inventory made soon after his death amounted to £1263 8s. At this time the land was estimated at £800. On 12 March, 1719-20 a Commission, appointed by the Judge of Probate, rendered their statement. These gentlemen were, John Maynard, a son-in-law, Caleb Rice, Nathan Brigham and William and Nahum Ward, the last three being nephews of the deceased Capt. Brigham. They valued the estate at £2191, 4s. They set off to the widow in right of dower half the dwelling house and about 237 acres of land. The whole valued at £730 8s. Samuel, the eldest son, received the other half of the dwelling house and 136 acres of land besides "Rock Island, the Cedar Swamp and the Rights," the whole consisting of "Land, Improvements and Buildings," valued at £603 19s. He was to pay Jotham, his brother, £132 16s.; the same to Lydia, the third daughter; to Hepsibah, £36 4s., and to Persis, the fourth daughter, £36 11s. Jedediah, the second son, received 258 acres of land, valued at £230, he paying to Hepsibah £37, 3s, and to Persis, £60 1s. Timothy, the fourth son, received 65 acres of land and some meadow and other lots valued at £173 17s., he paying to Hepsibah, £41 1s. Charles, the fifth son, had 87 $\frac{3}{4}$ acres of the first division of the land and some meadow and swamp valued at £142 6s. 8d., he to pay Hepsibah, £9 10s. 8d. Antipas received 104 acres, and certain Rights, he paying Hepsibah, £8 17s. 4d. Elizabeth, the eldest daughter, received a little more than 59 acres of land valued at £169, she to pay Persis, £36 4s. As will be seen by the foregoing, Samuel² was a large landowner and it is evident that he was a character of great weight in the community.

Children, born in Marlboro:

- i Elizabeth³, b. 24 March, 1685; m. 16 Oct., 1711, Samuel Robinson.

THIRD GENERATION

7 CAPT. NATHAN³, son of Thomas² and Mary (Rice) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 17 June, 1671; died there 16 Feb., 1746-7; married (1) Elizabeth, daughter of Isaac and Frances (Woods) Howe (not, probably, the daughter of Abraham and Hannah [Ward] Howe, as stated in Marlboro History) of Marlboro; born 17 Jan., 1673; found dead, kneeling by a chair in her home, 29 March, 1733; married (2) Mehitable (Gould) widow of Jonas Eaton of Charlestown, Mass. (See Wyman's Charlestown Genealogies and Estates, pp. 130, 317).

Morse states that he settled on a part of the Thomas² homestead, his house being a garrison house in Queen Anne's War. He was a weaver. He inherited the town-right of his father and drew shares of the public land in this right. He held town offices and was 7 years a selectman and for the last time in 1738; was representative in 1726 and '30. April 5, 1733, he made his will, giving his son Thomas 100 acres where he then resided, a house, 6 acres of meadow in Marlboro and 70 acres in Sutton; also a 16 acre town-right, originally John Rediet Jr.'s. His wife, Mehitable, received £20 for a mourning suit, and Ephraim, who had the homestead, was to support her and pay her funeral expenses. March 26, 1746-7, the heirs signed an agreement dividing his estate.

Children, born in Marlboro:

8 JONATHAN³, "ENSIGN," son of Thomas² and Mary (Rice) Brigham; born 22 Feb., 1675, in Marlboro, Mass.; died there, 4 Jan., 1768, æ. 93; married 26 March, 1696, his cousin, Mary, daughter of John and Mary Fay (2); born in 1675; died 9 Nov., 1781.

He settled on a part of the Thomas² homestead in Marlboro, where he was tythingman, 1704; constable, 1714; moderator, 1715, and selectman in 1719, '22 and '32. He was commonly called the "Indian Warrior." One day while chopping in the woods he saw a savage preparing to take aim at him; he seized his own musket, stepped forward in full view, exclaiming as he did so, "Shoot straight, you dog." Both fired at the same moment, when the Indian dropped his gun, and giving a tremendous whoop, bounded high into the air and fell dead. His bullet passed close to the ear of Jonathan, who escaped unhurt.

9 DAVID³, son of Thomas² and Mary (Rice) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 12 April, 1678; died in Westboro, Mass., 26 June, 1750; married (1) Deborah ———, who died 11 Oct., 1708; married (2) 21 Aug., 1709, widow Mary (Leonard) Newton, who died 1 Dec., 1741 (see Rice Family); married (3) ———, who survived him.

Morse says that he was surveyor in Marlboro, 1711, but on the division of the town in 1717, was thrown into Westboro, where he held town offices, 7 years as sealer of leather, and 6 years as selectman. As one of the privileged class, he was, by the vote of the town, allowed a pew in the meetinghouse. He settled on a wild tract of about 500 acres, including the present Hospital Grounds and several adjacent farms in Westboro and Northboro, and built his house about 60 rods east of the present Insane Asylum. His house was burnt,* during his old age, with much of its contents. June 14, 1748, he made his will, ratifying deeds of farms and land which he had previously given to his children, and giving his wife room in his house and the use of all in-door movables which, after her decease, were to be equally divided among his children and his son-in-law, Edward Newton; but such as Jonas had supplied since the burning of the house were, on the strength of his word, to be first surrendered to him. To Jonas, who had already given security to provide for his stepmother, he gave a 14 acre town-right, a part of the right purchased by his father of Rice; also all his stock and tools for carpentry and husbandry, making some reservations for his daughter Deborah. He gave his apparel to be equally divided among his 5 sons. Jonas was to pay the funeral charges of his parents, and be the executor of the will. This trust he so far performed as to obtain the receipts of the heirs, 29 June, 1750, 3 days after the death of their father, but his will was not proved until 22 Aug., ensuing.

Children (by first wife), born in Marlboro:

10 GERSHOM^s, son of Thomas² and Mary (Rice) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 23 Feb., 1680; died there, 3 Jan., 1748-9; married 18 May, 1703, Mehitabel, daughter of Joseph and Experience (Wheelock) Warren, born in 1684. (This Joseph Warren was an early settler of Medfield and his wife's father, Ralph Wheelock, was the founder of the town. The latter held the degree of A. M. from Clare College, Cambridge, Eng. His house was burned in King Philip's War.)

Gershom settled on the homestead of his father in Marlboro, and was surveyor for the west end of the town, 1710; tythingman, 1716; constable, 1721; one of a committee to "seat the meeting," 1727; selectman, 1733. It is probably a mistake that Morse calls him "Doctor."

Children, born in Marlboro:

- 41 i Martha^t, b. 6 Oct., 1704.

12 SARAH³, daughter of Dr. John² and Sarah Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 27 March, 1674; married Samuel, son of Samuel Goodenow (who was the son of Samuel, who was son of Thomas, a petitioner from Marlboro); born in Marlboro, 30 Nov., 1675; died 12 May, 1716. The elder Samuel had a garrison house in 1711, in the present town of Northboro; it was his daughter who met with the tragic death by the Indians.

Children (Goodenow), born in Marlboro:

- i David⁴, b. 26 Feb., 1704; m. 29 Dec., 1746, Martha Bannister. Ch.:
 - 1 Sybil⁵; 2 Lovina; 3 John; 4 Stephen; 5 Adina; 6 Mary; 7 Martha; 8 Calvin; 9 Ebenezer.

- iii Thomas, b. 18 May, 1709; m. 7 Apr., 1734, Persis, dau. of Edward Rice of Marlboro and sister of Lydia supra.
- iv Mary, b. 5 April, 1712; m. 6 Jan., 1731, Beriah Rice, a loyalist, who moved to Nova Scotia.

13 MARY³, daughter of Dr. John² and Sarah Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 6 May, 1678; married Gershom, son of John and Mary (Brigham) Fay; born in Marlboro, 19 Oct., 1681; died 24 Nov., 1720. He was a first settler of Northboro.

On the 18th of August, 1707, as Mrs. Fay and Miss Mary, daughter of Samuel Goodenow, Sr., were gathering herbs near the Goodenow Garrison House (situated near the stream known as Stirrup Brook, on the "great" road), a party of 20 or more Indians issued from the woods and came towards the two women, who immediately ran for the fort. Miss Goodenow was lame and was soon captured, dragged across the brook to a wood on the hillside, killed and scalped and there her mangled remains were afterward buried. Mrs. Fay reached the fort and succeeded in closing the gate before the Indians could capture her. There was one man in the garrison, the rest being at work in the fields. The savages tried to break through the inclosure, but the man in the fort fired all the muskets in the place as fast as Mrs. Fay could load and hand them to him, and was thus able to repel the Indians until the men outside, hearing the report of the muskets, came to their relief. Mrs. Fay's heroism saved her two children's lives.

Children (Fay), born in Marlboro:

- i Gershom⁴, b. 17 Sept., 1703; m. Hannah ———.
- ii Mary, b. 10 July, 1705; m. George Smith.
- iii Susanna, b. 18 Nov., 1707; subject to constant nervous trembling, believed to have been caused from her mother's fright over the Indians before her birth.

14 JOHN³, son of Dr. John² and Sarah Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., Nov., 1680; died, probably in Sudbury, 16 Sept., 1729; married Martha ———, who died 13 Nov., 1734.

Morse tells us that John probably inherited the homestead of his father in Sudbury, and as his executor, 30 Dec., 1728, exhibited to the Registry of Probate for Middlesex County an inventory of his estate amounting to £203.16.9, but died before proceeding further, leaving his wife Martha to complete the settlement, and also to administer upon his own estate. This she undertook, but, in her turn, died before completing either and was succeeded by her daughter Hannah, æ. 21, who accomplished the undertaking, paying out of her grandfather, Dr. John's estate, £74.18.1 to each of her aunts, Goodenow, Fay, and Ward, and to her aunt Perry £57.1.4, and a bequest to Jephtha Perry; and to her uncle Samuel, his father's oxen. His real estate is presumed to have been conveyed mostly to his sons during his lifetime. The inventory of John Jr.'s estate, presented by his widow, 8 March, 1730, amounted to £487.5.3. At his death he was one of the selectmen of Sudbury.

Children, born in Sudbury:

- i Hannah⁴, b. 4 Feb., 1712-13; not reported after 1734; probably d. unm.
- 48 ii Samuel, b. 27 April, 1716.
- 49 iii Sarah, b. 29 March, 1718.
- iv *John, b. 1 April, 1720; m. 12 March, 1750, Abigail Johnson; probably went to Willington, Conn., "6 Nov., 1763," according to "dismissal" from Sudbury church; no ch. recorded at Willington. Ch., b. Sudbury:
 - 1 Abigail⁵, b. 5 Dec., 1751.
 - v Phebe, b. 5 Oct., 1721; m. ——— Hubbard.
 - vi Abigail, b. 31 Dec., 1723; m. ——— Prescott.

Morse states that these children, except the eldest, having been left in their minority, Samuel chose David Haynes for his guardian, but Sarah, Phebe and Abigail, 10 Feb., 1734, were placed under the guardianship of John Green until 3 April, 1738, when Sarah, having married Samuel Brown, her sisters chose him for their guardian, and probably removed with them to Rutland. Brown received his discharge in Middlesex County, 24 June, 1745, with the receipts of Phebe Hubbard and Abigail Prescott.

15 THOMAS³, son of Dr. John² and Sarah Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 6 May, 1687; married 24 Dec., 1724, Elizabeth Bowker. He settled in Sudbury, Mass., but probably removed to Rutland, Mass.

Children, born in Sudbury:

16 CAPT. SAMUEL³, son of Capt. Samuel² and Elizabeth (Howe) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 25 Jan., 1689; died in Grafton, Mass., 1 Sept., 1771; married 23 Aug., 1716, Abigail Moore, who died 20 Nov., 1731, æ. 35. Curiously, both Morse and Hudson, in their respective histories, say that Samuel, son of Dr.

John Brigham, also married Abigail Moore on the foregoing date, besides giving the marriage as here entered.

Morse says in part: In Dec., 1727, leave was granted by the General Court to him and 39 others (among them Charles and Nathan Sr. of Marlboro) to purchase Grafton of the Indians, under restrictions and conditions which seem to have been strictly observed. Samuel settled in the south part of Marlboro and served her in all the offices in her gift, particularly as moderator of meetings, assessor, 1739, '40, town treasurer (not named by Hudson), town clerk, 1754, 1755, selectman, 1741, '42, '44, '46, '48, '49, '54; in 1716, one of a committee "to seat the meeting." 1747-49 he administered upon the estate of his brother Antipas. Samuel left a large estate; settled without an administrator.

* There is a mistake in the History of Marlboro in regard to the month of this marriage; three different dates are there given, and Morse gives another. The marriage was in either May or April.

18 LIEUT. JEDEDIAH³, son of Capt. Samuel² and Elizabeth (Howe) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 8 June, 1693; died 21 May, 1763; married 18 May, 1720, Bethiah, daughter of Joseph and Dorothy (Martin) Howe, born 7 March, 1695; died 23 June, 1756.

Morse tells us that Jedediah inherited the tannery and seems to have settled at the homestead. He served in many minor town-offices and particularly in those of selectman (1741, '43, '47 and '52), sealer of leather, etc. In 1746 he was chosen to a seat at the Concord Court as petit juryman. He owned lands at Princeton, Bolton, Lancaster and Marlboro. Dec., 21, 1762, "being infirm in body and mind," he made his will, bestowing his estate upon his children. To Winslow he left the homestead and tannery, half a mile east of Spring Hill, on the road from Marlboro to Boston, and made him his sole executor. The will was proved 13 June, 1763.

20 COL. TIMOTHY³, son of Capt. Samuel² and Elizabeth (Howe) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 10 Oct., 1698; died in Southboro, Mass., 1 Oct., 1775; married (1) Martha, daughter of Jonathan and Mary (Kerley) Johnson; born in Marlboro, 26

Jan., 1701; died 23 Sept., 1757; married (2) 12 April, 1759, Mrs. Sarah, daughter of Rev. Mr. Prentice of Lancaster, Mass., and widow of Dr. Joshua Smith, who died in Shrewsbury, Mass., 1756. (She had 5 sons and 1 daughter by first m.)

Col. Timothy was a soldier, a patriot and a very distinguished citizen, and was in the Colonial Wars. A leader in the movement to set off Southboro from Marlboro, the first town-meeting of Southboro was held at his house, 14 Aug., 1727. He was often moderator of town-meetings; 24 years town treasurer of Southboro; selectman for the same number of years; conspicuous in all municipal affairs; Representative, 1753, 1756 and 1769, and among the first to take a stand with the colonies in the Revolutionary struggle; he was first on a committee of rights who reported a series of spirited resolutions in 1773; he died during the siege of Boston. He often acted as guardian to minors, and on 13 June, 1746, Jonathan Fay, son of John, receipted for such service. His will made 4 May, 1774, gave his wife Sarah half of his personal property and the improvement of one third of his real estate; to her son, Joshua Smith, he gave the other half of his personal property and the improvement, for seven years, of two thirds of his real estate. After the death of his widow, and seven years after his own decease, he gave all his real estate to his nephew, George Brigham, son of his brother Samuel. To his brother Charles he gave his best hat and wig and whatever might be due from him to his estate; also Flavel's works, the Exposition of Genesis and Exodus, and Dr. Coleman's work on the Parable of the Ten Virgins. George Brigham was to pay his brother Uriah £40, in instalments, and £40 to Timothy Smith, son of Joshua, when he was twenty-one years old. To Baxter How, whom he brought up, he bequeathed a cow and a debt which he would owe the estate. He made his wife Sarah, and Joshua Smith, his brother Charles, and nephew George Brigham his executors. The will was proved 7 Nov., 1775. Col. Timothy had no children. He was Capt. and Col. in 1757, from Southboro. See Mass. Archives.

21 *CHARLES³, son of Capt. Samuel² and Elizabeth (Howe) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 30 Dec., 1700; died in Grafton, Mass., 17 March, 1781; married Mary Peters of Newport, R. I., who was born 1716, and died 19 Feb., 1797.

Charles settled in Grafton after having disposed of his lands in Marlboro, and he became, in 1727, one of the 40 proprietors under the sanction of the General Court. Was one of the ablest and most distinguished of the citizens of Grafton, held the most important town offices and was her Representative to the General Court. He was appointed by the Royal Governor, a magistrate, an office of very great dignity, in his day, and one that was sparingly bestowed. He settled upon Brigham Hill, on a rich tract of land, which was afterward the country residence of his descendant, the late William Brigham of Boston.

Children, born in Grafton:

- i Charles⁴, b. 29 Oct., 1732; d. 21 Jan., 1755, unm.
- ii Daniel, b. 28 April, 1735; d. about 1759; * was a soldier at Crown Point at time of decease. Daniel was drafted into the army for the war of 1758. Just before leaving home, as he was passing up the road late one afternoon for the cattle, he was startled to see before him a man wrapped in an Indian blanket. He recognized the face and figure of the man as his own. It disappeared. His brother also saw the figure. He went to the war with the conviction that he would not return. He fell ill at Crown Point and when near the point of death an Englishman found him attended by a friendly Indian wrapped in an Indian blanket, and brought back the account to Grafton. The place where the apparition was seen is not far beyond the Brigham homestead in Grafton on the old road just after passing the long bridge.—The Hundredth Town.

22 *LIEUT. NATHAN⁴, son of Nathan³ and Elizabeth (Howe) Brigham, born in Marlboro, Mass., 28 Nov., 1693; died in Southboro, Mass., 15 Sept., 1784, æ. 91; married (1) 24 Dec., 1717, Dina, daughter of Edmund and Ruth (Parker) Rice of Westboro, Mass.; married (2) about 1729, Elizabeth (Ward) Snow.

Morse gathered the following facts: Prior to the second division of the original township of Marlboro, in 1727, Nathan held several minor town offices, but in the new town of Southboro, to which he was set off, he appears at once among her principal citizens, serving the first year as a selectman and soon after as treasurer. He was repeatedly placed on committees for hiring schoolmasters and chosen for the 29th time as a selectman at the age of 77 years, at which he remonstrated and was, with public thanks, excused. He lived near the houses of Samuel and Dana Brigham in the north part of Southboro, and is presumed to have inherited the lands southeast of Crane meadow, drawn in his grandfather Thomas' right. He did inherit the Bible, law-book, cane and sword of his father Nathan. He retained his vigor to a great age and when in his 90th year used to mount his horse without assistance.

seph and Sarah (Howe) Stratton, born in Marlboro, 30 Nov., 1700,* died there, his widow, 15 Sept., 1775. Her father was assigned to the garrison of Capt. Nathan Brigham, when she was 11 years old, and Thomas was 16.

Morse says that he settled in the south-west part of Marlboro, where he was constable and tythingman, and in 1740 and 1743, selectman, and sealer of leather 6 years; 1738 a petit jury-man, and 1731 member of a committee to procure a school-master; 1757 he administered on the estate of David Burnham of Southboro. 13 Aug., 1765, he made his will, giving to his wife Sarah the use of half his house; his pew in the meeting-house; all his household stuff, and his horse and chaise, while she remained his widow; $7\frac{1}{2}$ bushels of corn, $7\frac{1}{2}$ bushels of rye, $1\frac{1}{2}$ of wheat, all ground; 6 score weight of pork, 5 do. of beef; the apples, cider and sauces of all kinds that she might need; 2 cows and 5 sheep, kept summer and winter; 26s. 6d. in cash, and a supply of firewood, all to be supplied her annually by his sons Ithamar and Paul. To his sons Aaron, Ezekiel, and Elisha he gave one right in the great Crane swamp, to be equally divided between them, and each was to receive from his executors £20, within 3 years after his decease.

To his grand-daughter, Lydia Bigelow, he gave £133, to be paid her within 5 years after his death; also his desk and all his household stuff after the death of his wife, and all that belonged to her aunt, Sarah Brigham, provided she should marry and leave heirs of her body; but otherwise, all after her death should go to his children or their heirs; to Ithamar and Paul he gave his wearing apparel, his husbandry tools, and steelyard; and after the death of their mother, his clock, chaise and pew; and to Paul the half of his house reserved for her; his money and stock he ordered to be equally divided among his children and grand-children; to his sons Ithamar and Paul, he gave his homestead, and all his lands in Marlboro, Westboro and Southboro, and a right in little Crane swamp, and made them his executors. His will was proved 6 March, 1766. In 1858 his house, north of the then Alden Brigham place, was still standing.

Was lieutenant in the engagement at Charlestown, N. H., 3 Aug., 1746. Settled in Marlboro in the School District No. 3, of Morse's day and was one of the largest taxpayers in the town, and a prominent citizen; was treasurer 1742, '43, '50, '52-64; assessor 1747, '59-63, '65, '68; selectman 1749, '50, '54, '56-59, '61, '62, '65, '67, '69; jury-man, moderator, etc. There were 32 heirs to his estate, none of whom were his descendants. One hundred and thirty-three pounds were left to Marlboro under the care of the selectmen and the minister for the time being. The proceeds of £22 were to be paid to the minister for preaching, in person or by proxy, an annual sermon to promote the present and future reformation and happiness of the young; and the income of the remainder was to support a school in the middle of the town, distinct from the district schools, for "Writing and cyphering." The "Brigham School" was to be kept open about a month in the spring for older pupils. Fund now merged in the general appropriation.

The line is extinct.

Morse says he settled in Westboro, in that part which, in 1766, became the east part of Northboro; was a large land-owner. Was one of a committee to build the Northboro Precinct meeting-house, in 1744, etc.; in 1766 he was selectman and held other town offices. He made his will 8 Sept., 1767, giving to his wife her thirds and all his in-door movables, to be disposed of at her pleasure to his 3 daughters. To son Timothy, to whom he had previously given lands and buildings, he bequeathed half of his right to the undivided lands of Marlboro. To son Artemas he gave his buildings and lands in Northboro, his lands in Leicester and Paxton, all his live-stock and tools, his firearms, sword and cane, requiring him to provide a horse for his mother to ride at Morse says that he settled on a tract of one thousand acres on the south side of the Quabog River in Brookfield, which his father had purchased, 7 Nov., 1722, for about $250, more or less. He built his house one and a half miles south-west of the Brookfield Depot (formerly South Brookfield). He is on a list of men who served to the credit of the 3d precinct of Brookfield, dated 30 June, 1778, credited with 8 months' service.

‡ "27 March, 1737.....N. B. Mr. Silas Brigham and Mr. Eleazer Pratt of Shrewsbury had desired me to baptize yeir Children. Accordingly, in my usual manner I desired ye Children might be brought forth to Baptism. But only one appeared. I looked about till I conceived yt something had befallen ye other or those concerned with it. I proceeded and baptised Mr. Pratt's (wh was ye Child yt was brought) wn the prayers were over we proceeded to ye last Singing; in ye Time of the ye last Singing Mr. Brigham and his Child came in—After ye Blessing and wn I was down in ye Alley going out, Mr. Brigham asked me whether his child could not be baptized. I ans'd. it could not now. My Reasons are these. Besides that, when I am spent with the foregoing Services, it is too much to expect me to repeat ym over again. Besides that, such a custom indulged would involve us in great irregularity and Difficulty, but this administration for my known Friends would have forced me to make it a custom, and besides the impatience of many of the Congregation to get away home, being they live 4, 5, or 6 miles off. Besides those Reasons, I would urge yt was so very sudden upon me yt I could not judge wh way I could vindicate it if I should proceed. Again by ye suddenness I was too much confused to have my Power at command to perform the Devotions; nor was I furnished therfor (Eccl. 5; 1, 2). So it would have been nothing short of horrible Presumption for me to have done it."—Parkman Diary.

38 COL. LEVI⁴, 6th child and 4th son of David³ and his 2d wife, Mrs. Mary (Leonard) Newton Brigham (widow of Edward Newton); born 21 Aug., 1716, in Marlboro, Mass., upon his father's farm, in that portion of the town which was set off as Westboro, in 1717; died in Northboro, Mass., 1 Feb., 1787; married, 6 June, 1745, Susanna, daughter of *Joseph³ (Joseph¹, John²) and Mrs. Mary (Harrington) Rogers Grout; born in Watertown, Mass., 2 March, 1720; died in Northboro, 17 March, 1816.

When his father divided his farm among his children, Levi⁴ received and settled upon the northerly portion of it, most of which, at the division of Westboro, in 1766, was set off into Northboro, of which town it formed the south-east corner. He was born, lived and died upon the same farm, and yet was, at different periods of his lifetime, a citizen of 3 different towns.

In 1763 he was one of the selectmen of Westboro, and subsequently held the same office in Northboro for 7 years. He was also sealer of leather. In 1757, when 41 years old, he was Cornet of the Shrewsbury Troop of Horse, commanded by Captain Benja-

* Joseph⁴ Grout was the 2d child and only son of Joseph³ Grout (John¹) of Watertown and his wife Susanna Hagar. He was born in Watertown 6 Feb., 1683, and resided there until March, 1733, when he removed, with his family, to Westboro, where he died in 1759. 3 Jan., 1717, he married Mrs. Mary (Harrington) Rogers, widow of Daniel Rogers and dau. of Edward and Mary (Ockington) Harrington of Watertown; she was b. 2 Jan., 1693.

Joseph³ Grout, was a son of Capt. John¹ Grout and his 2d wife, Sarah Busby. He was b. in Sudbury 24 July, 1649, and removed to Watertown, where in 1675 he was a Trooper in Capt. Thomas Prentice's Middlesex Troop of Horse and served during the campaign against the Narragansetts in the early part of King Philip's War. About 1680 he m. Susanna, dau. of William and Mary (Bemis) Hagar of Watertown, by whom he had 3 ch. He d. in 1720, his wife outliving him.

Capt. John¹ Grout, was b. about 1616, probably in England, emigrated to New England about 1634, and was in Watertown in 1640 with wife Mary.....by whom he had a son John, b. 1641, but who must have d. soon afterward, for he m. (2) Sarah, dau. of Nicholas & Bridget (.....) Busby, by whom Capt. John had a dau. Sarah, b. in Watertown, 11 Dec., 1643.

During 1643 he removed to Sudbury where he acquired land and was made a Sergeant of the Military Company. Oct. 7, 1662, sundry inhabitants of Sudbury petitioned the Gen. Court that John Grout "be allowed to practice the mystery of chirurgery." In 1685 he was made a Freeman and in 1667 the town records refer to him as Ensigne Grout, which rank he held during King Philip's War and as late as 1685, during which year the Gen. Court granted the claim of Ensigne Grout for compensation for losses sustained during the Indian attack on Sudbury, April 21, 1676. In 1688 Lieut. John Grout was appointed one of the custodians of the public stock of ammunition, and the Vital Records of Sudbury show that Capt. John Grout d. 25 July, 1697. John Grout also served the town of Sudbury 30 years as selectman and 7 years as town clerk.

He settled on land in Westboro inherited from his father, and built about 20 rods south of the present Insane Asylum. He was one of the most distinguished citizens of Westboro, and through life stood high in the public esteem and confidence; was elected to town offices soon after attaining his majority, a thing of very rare occurrence in his time; was repeatedly selected to look after the interests of schools and was once placed on a committee to prepare instructions for the school committee of the town; he seems to have been a man of considerable education. He often served as surveyor and constable, and was 7 years selectman, between 1764-77. As moderator of town meetings, member of present site of the Shrewsbury post-office on the road described as "the back road from the old pike road to Westboro." It faces north and stands on a slight elevation at a point where the road makes quite a bend toward the east. To the north-west, a newer and more modern house has been built and just across the road a barn, the original one having been torn down long since. The premises are at present occupied by Mr. George Freeman. The old house has a gable roof, is 2 stories high below the eaves, and at the time of its erection must have been quite a pretentious structure. It has 22 windows and 2 outside doors—1 in the front and 1 in the back. In the center of the house, dividing it into 2 equal parts, is an immense fire-place, oven and chimney, constructed of stone and brick. At the south side of the house is a hall connecting the 2 rooms of the ground floor; in this hall are 2 doors, 1 leads to the cellar, and the other is an outside door; a stairway leads to the next floor. The 2d floor has another stairway which leads to the attic. Two rods south of the house is the old well which originally supplied the barn as well as the house, and the pipes which carried the water to the barn are still in position 8 feet below the surface, and serve to carry off the excess of water; it is said that at no time since the well was dug has the water been below this pipe. The stumps of 2 huge Elms may be seen, one of which I measured and found to be $17\frac{1}{2}$ ft. in circumference. In 1893, during a heavy storm, one of the large divisions of the tree was split off and falling on the roof of the house made quite a hole in it; the tree was so badly disfigured it was cut down. Mr. Freeman presented me with a cane turned from this tree."

He was the first captain of So. Militia Co. of Shrewsbury, and moved to Fitzwilliam, 1775, where he was moderator 1775 and '77; selectman, 1776; on Committee of Safety and Treasurer, 1777. See Hist. of Fitzwilliam.

‡ She is the "Cousin Maynard" of Rev. E. Parkman's Diary; she was a niece of Madam Parkman. "Mrs. Maynard dined here" is a frequent note in the Diary, particularly on Sunday.

§ "Capt. Maynard has the reputation of being the wealthiest man of his day in Westboro, and his house, burned a few years ago, was solid and handsome..... The work on his farm for many years was performed by slaves, and he was loth to give them up, so loth, that the heavy stone walls by the side of the avenue leading to his house are said to be among the very last labor performed by slaves in Massachusetts" (Foot-note; Parkman Diary, p. 62).

1799, and was interred in the ancient burying-ground in Westboro, near the south wall.

Dr. Samuel settled in Marlboro and was chosen selectman in 1755; he represented Marlboro in the General Court in 1741. History states that he received £59 10s. for teaching "2 quarters" in 1747. He went to the West Indies as an army surgeon, was taken with yellow fever and died there.

Robert Breck of Marlboro and sister of Madam Parkman); born in Marlboro, 21 March, 1729; died 31 Jan., 1815.

Morse says of Uriah that he was brought up a gentleman's son and never performed a day's labor in his life; that he lived in the style of the English gentry, receiving the visits of the elite from far and near, keeping an open house, in which there was no limit to his hospitality. His estate bore the strain of such a lavish style of living better than might have been expected, lasting through his time, but was so involved, at his death, that the administrators had employment for 30 years. † History of Marlboro, p. 377.

Aug., 1791; married 29 July, 1760, Elizabeth, daughter of Daniel Harrington of Marlboro (whose great-grandfather was a proprietor of Watertown); born in Marlboro, 20 March, 1737; died 25 Oct., 1815.

Morse says: "Winslow was an uncommon man and a distinguished citizen. Up to the time he came upon the stage, the municipal affairs of Marlboro from the first, had been, in a great degree, managed by the Brighams, although they had constituted only a fraction of her numerical population; but during the eventful period of our Revolutionary struggle, he and his namesakes seem to have had almost the entire control." . . . Apparently no vigilance committees were organized "until the last year of the war, when, with a new settler, arrived a spirit of jealousy or rivalry, and every Brigham, save one, was displaced from office; and he who had held the highest in the town was insulted with the lowest and a committee of vigilance and correspondence chosen. But this overturn lasted but one year. The Brighams were re-elected, and Winslow again chosen town clerk and selectman, in which offices he had served the preceding ten years and he was continued for years afterwards as selectman." He was town clerk, 1770-'80-'82; assessor; 1769-'73-'77-'81-'82-'84-'86-'88; Rep. to General Court, 1783-'84; delegate Constitutional Convention, 1779; selectman, 1770-'80-'82-'84-'86-'88-'89-'91.

He resided on the homestead of his great-grandfather, and carried on the tannery. Aug. 4, 1791, he made his will. He provided with great care for his wife, Elizabeth, "so long as she remains my widow." His daughters, Lucy Brigham and Elizabeth Barnes, were each to receive money to be paid by their brothers, Daniel and Jedediah. His sons, Aaron, Artemas, Amariah, and John Winslow, were each to have money to be paid by the same, and he expressed a desire that John Winslow should have a liberal education. "To Daniel and Jedediah he bequeathed all his real and most of his personal property. Daniel was to have the Indian pasture of 34 acres, the tan-yard of one acre; and Jedediah the remainder of his lands and buildings, and to be sole executor."

66 *WILLIAM⁴, son of Charles³ and Mary (Peters) Brigham; born in Grafton, Mass., 26 March, 1739; died there, 1 Aug., 1833; married, July, 1768, Sarah, daughter of Rev. Solomon Prentice of Grafton; born there, 1 July, 1744; died 2 Feb., 1834. Her father was the first minister of Grafton.

Morse says that William inherited the Charles Brigham homestead in Grafton, which originally embraced nearly or quite the whole tract known as "Brigham Hill." A well-educated man for his time, and a "great reader," he yet had no taste for public office or employment. He was offered a justice's commission, then a great honor, which he declined. He was straight, tall, and muscular, and this is probably the original type of the race. He was wont "to jump over fences 5 and even 6 feet in height, without touching hand or foot; and when 90 years old would rather walk than ride 1 or 2 miles, and would accomplish the distance nearly as soon as a boy." He never took medicine, and died of old age.

FIFTH GENERATION

FIFTH GENERATION

69 MOSES⁵, son of Lieut. Nathan⁴ and Dina (Rice) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 2 Jan., 1722; died in Westboro, Mass., 3 Dec., 1769; married 2 May, 1749, Mehetabel, daughter of Joseph Grout of Westboro, Mass.; who died 30 Aug. 1795.

"The house which he occupied is the one now standing on East Main street, owned by George A. Ferguson. This, more than a hundred and twenty-five years ago, had received the usual addition for the married son's accommodation. The immense chimney with three flues is of brick, which was manufactured very early in the young town's history, from the 'clay lands' in Marlboro, Southboro, and Northboro. This house was built by Moses Brigham, and here he brought his bride, Mehetabel. She was a member of the Grout family, and her wooing by young Brigham caused many heart-burnings and wild frenzies of jealousy to the daughter of his stepmother. One evening, when she knew that he planned to ride over to see Mehetabel, she slipped out to the stable and hamstrung Selim, his favorite horse. Moses Brigham lived here until his death; then his son-in-law, Jonathan Forbes, took possession of the north end, and the widowed Mehetabel lived in the south end. It remained in the possession of the Forbes family until 1870. It has the usual curiosities of the carpentry of those days, one of the doors—that from the sitting-room to the kitchen—having dim heart-shaped panes of glass set in the upper half."—The Hundredth Town.

He was surveyor in 1757; tythingman in 1760; and constable in 1762.

71 *CAPT. NATHAN⁵, son of Lieut. Nathan⁴ and Elizabeth (Ward) Brigham; born in Southboro, Mass., 13 March, 1730-1; died there, 9 Feb., 1806; married (1), 6 Feb., 1751, Martha Gleason; and married (2), 15 June, 1769, Mary Hudson, who died his widow, 16 Dec., 1825, æ. 82.

Morse's account of this noted Indian fighter is as follows: "He was a Lieut. in the first French War and a distinguished officer. In the service he became warmly attached to Capt. Thomas Gage, afterwards Gen. Gage. To avenge the massacre at Fort William Henry, he and a party volunteered, under the command of Capt. Rogers, to penetrate into Canada, attack and burn the town of St. Francis, and retreat. Having accomplished the task, they were pursued and overtaken by the Indians, who killed and scalped 30 of their number. The remainder fled into the wilderness, and for the most part perished. Of the few who lived to return was Lieut. Brigham, whose deeds of valor were eulogized in ballads. He settled in Southboro, one-half a mile east of the meeting-house. Among other town offices he was chosen one of a committee to 'seat the meeting' in 1778; and one to revise the constitution reported to the towns, in 1786, for their consideration."

The male line is extinct.

73 CAPT. EDMUND⁵, son of Lieut. Nathan⁴ and Elizabeth (Ward) Brigham, born in Southboro, Mass., 12 Aug., 1733; died in Westboro, Mass., 29 June, 1806; married (1), 2 Nov., 1757, Sarah, probably daughter of Samuel Lyscom, born 27 Dec., 1734; died 27 May, 1769; married (2), Elizabeth Bevel, of Marlboro, born 1740; died in Westboro, 11 May, 1825; she was brought up by Mrs. Ruth Ward, who became the second wife of Joseph Brigham of Marlboro, and lived in the old house, still standing, and occupied by Miss Martha L. Ames; it was in this house that Elizabeth Bevel was married.

Capt. Edmund was also deacon; he settled near Chauncey Pond in the northeast part of Westboro, and was an important citizen. He was warden in 1774; member of a committee of vigilance and correspondence, '77 and '78; selectman, '79, '87, '88, '91, 93. Was also Captain of the Company of Minute Men who marched on the Lexington Alarm. He took 18 men to the Northern Army, (who each had a bounty of £9), and at the surrender of Burgoyne he had command of a company of volunteers. Was kicked by a horse, which incapacitated him for further service in the army. British prisoners, destined for Boston, under charge of officers, accompanied him on his journey home, and were encamped on his grounds for a night, as they passed through Westboro. During the halt, a Hessian prisoner drew a map of Capt. Brigham's fine farm as the one he intended to draw for his service in conquering the country. This map was discovered, about 1800, by a citizen from the vicinity of Westboro, hanging upon the wall of an inn in Germany, and recognized. Up to this time, his descendants have failed to find the grave of this Revolutionary hero.* He is mentioned several times in the Parkman Diary.

His will, allowed 2 Sept., 1806, is as follows:

In the name of God, Amen. I, Edmund Brigham of Westboro in the county of Worcester and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Gentleman, considering the uncertainty of this mortal life, and being weak in body, yet am of sound and disposing mind & memory, (blessed be God therefor), do this ninth day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred & four, make & ordain this my last will & Testament in manner and form following, that is to say,

First & above all, I commit my soul to God, in hope of acceptance through the righteousness of an all-sufficient Saviour, and my body to the earth to be decently buried in a christian-like manner, at the discretion of my executors, nothing doubting, that at the general resurrection my soul and body will be united: And touching such worldly estate as God in his Providence has been pleased to bestow upon me, I would and do dispose of it as follows viz, Imprimis, I give unto my dearly beloved wife, Betsey Brigham, the use & improvement of the easterly room in my now dwelling house in Westboro aforesaid, & the chamber over said room, (reserving a privilege for my daughter Betsey Brigham to make it her home in said part of said house untill her marriage) and the privilege of doing her work in the kitchen, cheese room and cellar of said house as shall be convenient for her, with liberty of using the aqueduct water in said house, and to pass and repass to & from the well to use that water at any and all times and liberty to pass and repass to & from all parts of said house as shall be necessary in order to perform her washing, baking & all other necessary work, so long as she shall remain my widow. I also give & order my executors to deliver unto my said wife, four bushels of rye meal, six bushels of Indian meal, Seventy-five pounds of pork, Seventy-five pounds of beef, one bushel of salt, twelve pounds of tallow, ten pounds of flax, & five pounds of sheeps wool, all the aforesaid articles to be of good quality and to be delivered at my said house yearly and every year so long as she shall remain my widow, and I also give unto her seven dollars in money, to be paid her by my executors yearly and every year, so long as she shall remain my widow, also a sufficient quantity of firewood for her use, to be brought to said house and cut fit for her fire; also cyder, beer, apples and all sorts of sauce which she may need, & to be carried to meeting & elsewhere in a carriage as she may require, by my two sons Pierpont & Dexter Brigham so long as she remains my widow;

And I also give and bequeath unto my said wife & to her Heirs & assigns forever, all my household furniture & two good cows, & the said two cows, or other two instead thereof, to be kept for her during the time she remains my widow, at the expence of my two sons aforesaid, and in case my said wife should be sick & infirm while she remains my widow, my two said sons, Pierpont & Dexter, are to provide for her a nurse & Doctor at their expence, and in case of her decease while she is my widow, my two said sons are to give her a decent christian burial; furthermore, in case my said wife should intermarry after my decease, & providentially, again be left a widow, my will is, that she may return to my said house if she shall choose so to do, and in that case, it is my desire & will that my two said sons Pierpont & Dexter shall provide & do for her in all respects as they are above directed & ordered to provide & do for her while she remains my widow.

Item, I give unto my sons Edmund Brigham, Roger Brigham, Samuel Brigham and Lyscomb Brigham, all my wearing apparel to be equally divided amongst them, and they to make the division if possible, otherwise, my desire is, that they choose a man, or men to divide it for them, whose determination shall be final.

Item, I give unto my grandchildren born of my daughter Hepzibah Brigham, deceased, & late wife of Capt. Antipas Brigham, unto each and everyone of them that shall be living at my decease, one dollar, to be paid when the youngest shall arrive at the age of twenty-one years, this together with what I have heretofore given my said daughter, I consider as their portion of my estate.

Item, I give unto my daughter, Sally Read, (wife of Daniel Read), fifty dollars, to be paid in four years after my decease.

Item, I give unto my daughter Betsey Brigham, one good cow, & one hundred dollars, to be paid in one year after my decease, I also give her a priviledge of living in that part my said house, the improvement of which is given to my said wife, and this priviledge reserved in that article as aforesaid, and this priviledge to be enjoyed by said Betsey, untill her marriage, & if my Sd. wife shall die or marry, Sd. Betsey shall improve the priviledges in and about said house, as given to my Sd. wife, till Sd. Betsey shall marry.

Item, I give unto my son Eli Brigham Four hundred dollars, one moiety thereof to be paid in two years after my decease, and the other moiety thereof in three years after my decease, and I give him the priviledge of making my said house his home for the purpose of depositing his clothes &c untill his marriage, but not in that part to be improved by my said wife & daughter.

Item, I give unto my two said sons Pierpont Brigham & Dexter Brigham, and to their heirs and assigns forever, all my right which I have in the cedar swamp which lays in common & undivided with my brother Nathan Brigham and the heirs of my brother Elijah Brigham deceased, & myself, and also an eight acre right in the common lands, (which right was given me by my father in & by his last will & testament) together with all the remainder of my estate, both real and personal (which is not herein otherwise disposed of) to be equally divided between them, excepting my four wheel carriage and harness, which I give to my said son Pierpont, they paying all my just debts, funeral charges & legacies aforesaid, and providing for my said wife (their mother) everything as is given and secured to her in the former part of this will equally between them: but my desire and will is, that the real estate aforesaid, shall not be subjected to a division between them untill my said son Dexter shall arrive at the age of twenty-one years, and if at any time there should, (unhappily and contrary to expectation) any dispute arise between said Pierpont & Dexter, respecting a division of the real or personal estate, or both, herein given to them, and they cannot agree to divide the same, my will and direction expressly is, that such disputes shall be decided by three impartial intelligent men, known for their probity and good understanding, two to be chosen by my two said sons, each having the choice of one, & the third by those two, which three men, thus chosen, shall make such division, and when made, shall be, to all intents & purposes as binding on the parties as if it had been made by any legal process whatsoever.

Finally, I constitute and appoint my two said sons Pierpont Brigham and Dexter Brigham, the executors of this my last Will & Testament hereby revoking & disannulling all former wills & bequests by me made.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand & seal, the day and year first above written.

EDMUND BRIGHAM. (Seal.)

Signed, sealed, published & declared by the said Edmund Brigham to be his last will & testament, In the presence of

NAHUM GALE

76 ELIJAH⁵, son of Lieut. Nathan⁴ and Elizabeth (Ward) Brigham; born in Southboro, Mass., 5 Sept., 1743; died there, 8 Jan., 1804; married, 7 Jan., 1768, Ruth, daughter of Ezra and Abigail (Trowbridge) Taylor of Southboro; born 9 March, 1747; died 10 April, 1831.

Morse gives the story of his life substantially as follows: He resided on the homestead of Lieut. Nathan in the west part of Southboro, and was a very distinguished citizen. Was chosen a member of the Provincial Congress that met at Watertown, 31 May, 1775; was one of a committee in 1778 to report on a proposed constitution for Massachusetts, and again, in 1780, to revise the constitution which had been offered and rejected by the town, and instructed to report objections proper to be adopted and returned to the convention. The reports of this committee, of which he was the principal member, are able, and if they were the product of his mind, he was a reasoner and draughtsman of rare ability. He was probably the one who was in Capt. Josiah Fay's company of Minute-men, as Lieut., and marched on the Lexington Alarm. From 1776 to 1812, his name was more intimately connected than any other man's with all the important civic transactions of Southboro. He served about 30 years as selectman, represented the town in the General Court 6 years during 1789-1800, as often as they voted to send.

* Colonial War Record: Sergt. Train Band, 1757.

Morse's account says that he settled in Grafton. The inventory of his estate was presented 31 Oct., 1768. He made ample provision for his wife Sarah, "except paying a physician." He gave all his lands in Grafton to his two sons Thomas and Ephraim, and the avails of his lands in Shrewsbury, to his sons Amariah and Moses, and authorized their guardian to sell the property. He gave to his daughters Dorothy, Lydia, Lucy, and Rebecca, their own mother's apparel; and he made Thomas and Elisha (or either one of them) his executors (see Pierce's Hist. of Grafton).

84 *COL. TIMOTHY⁵, son of Capt. Jesse⁴ and Bethiah (Rice) Brigham; born in Westboro, Mass., 16 Feb., 1735-6; died in Northboro, 5 Oct., 1828, in his 93d year; married Lydia Wood, born 8 Nov., 1740.

Morse says that he inherited from his father an extensive farm in the east part of Northboro, the value of which he lost through the depreciation of Continental money after its sale. In extreme old age he was supported by the town, the first instance of the kind to be found in the history of the race. Although poor, he was received with profound respect, and entertained with free hospitality, wherever he called during life. In 1764 he was selectman of Westboro; in 1777, after the division of the town, selectman of Northboro. In 1775 he entered the Revolutionary army as Captain; was second in command under Capt. Samuel Wood of Marlboro of the company of Minute Men, which marched down to Cambridge on 19th of April, 1775, and which was in the battle of Bunker Hill, on the 17th of June following. He received £18 from the town for the first term of service; is supposed to have removed his family from Northboro, soon after, and to have further served in the field.

Morse tells us that in 1814 he emigrated to the west, and in 1828 settled in Blue Mounds, Territory of Michigan, now in Dane Co., Wisconsin, where he lived until his death; was unm.; had large profits from the rise in real estate, and was proprietor of a large tract of land; one of the original proprietors of the city of Madison; was well known and highly regarded where he lived and labored. The Dane County Bar adopted the following resolutions at the time of his death:
 "That we regard it as a privilege to bear our testimony in this public manner to the unblemished morals, the ardent patriotism, the benevolent character and generous heart of our esteemed and lamented friend."
- xi Luther, bapt. 10 June, 1791; d. 29 Aug., 1793.

98 LIEUT. LEVI⁵, son of Col. Levi⁴ and Susanna (Grout) Brigham; born in Westboro, Mass., 26 Aug., 1746; died in Fitzwilliam, N. H., 26 April, 1821; married 9 July, 1771, Tabitha, daughter of Phineas and Prudence Hardy; born in Westboro, 10 May, 1745; died 26 April, 1818.

He moved to Fitzwilliam about 1772, in the infancy of the country, travelling on foot, packing his provisions, and submitting to hardships now unknown to pioneers. He kept a tavern on "Brigham Hill," in the east part of Fitzwilliam, and was collector in 1774 and '86; selectman in 1774, '75, '76, '78 and '81; Lieut. of Militia, '75; on the Committee of Safety, '78. He held nearly every office in the gift of the people from time to time (see History of Fitzwilliam).

99 *HON. ELIJAH⁵, son of Col. Levi⁴ and Susanna (Grout) Brigham; born in Westboro, Mass., 7 July, 1751; died in Washington, D. C., 22 Feb., 1816; married (1), 21 Sept., 1780, Anna Sophia,† daughter of the Rev. Ebenezer and Hannah (Breck) Parkman, of Westboro; born there, 18 Oct., 1755; died there, 26 Nov., 1783; married (2) 20 April, 1786, Mrs. Sarah (Lambert) Hammock, of Marlboro, widow of Charles; born 26 Feb., 1750; died 22 March, 1787; married (3), 16 Dec., 1792, Sarah, daughter of Gen. Artemas Ward of Shrewsbury, Mass., (grandson of 5); born 28 July, 1756; died, his widow, 5 Feb., 1838.

He graduated from Dartmouth College, A.B., 1778; A.M., Dartmouth and Harvard (ad eum.), and Yale, 1792; began the study of law, but for some reason unknown abandoned it before he was admitted to the bar. When he went to college, his father gave him a horse, which was all the start he had toward his higher education. He settled in Westboro as a merchant with Breck Parkman. Elijah, after Mr. Parkman's death, continued to live in the parsonage, which is generally called the "Judge Brigham house"; "built in 1748. . . . It has been much altered and modernized. . . . Mr. Parkman bought the land which constituted his farm of Nathan Brigham of Southboro." He was selectman in 1785, '89, and '96. He represented Westboro in the General Court, 1791 and '93; served 12 years as a member of the Senate; 2 years as executive counsellor, and 16 years as a judge of the Court of Common Pleas

* "25 June, 1780. Mr. Elijah Brigham . . . propounded."

"9 July, 1780. Mr. Brigham . . . admitted into ye Church."

16 July, 1780 . . . Mr. Brigham and Sophy were published for the last time.

"15 Aug., 1780 . . . I returned at eve. Mr. Elijah here de die in diem."

"Sept., 1780 . . . Mr. Elijah Brigham privately spoke to me of his joining in Trade with Breck.

"7 Sept., 1780 . . . He (Mr. Wm. Spring of Brimfield) dined with us as did Mr. Elijah Brigham (who keeps shop for Breck).

"20 Sept., 1780 . . . N. B. Mr. Brigham asked me whether it would suit me to have the Marriage of my Dauter to him to be to-morrow? . . . Sent my Complements to his Father and Mother, & Request they would come—likewise his Brothers and Sisters. He acquainted me with his desire to wait on Squire Baker and his Lady with his Invitations to ye wedding; also ye two eldest Dauters. To which I consented. My Dauter Cushing rode to Capt. Maynard's to invite him and his wife. The Return was that Mrs. Maynard was confined with illness" (she was the widow of Dr. Samuel Brigham, before her second marriage).

"21 Sept., 1780. Mrs. Parkman I hope is better. Sophy has unhappily a good deal of a cough. I had a most agreeable sight of my children & their Consorts at Dinner, viz.: Wm. & Lydia, Mr. Cushing and Sarah, Breck & Susé (born Brigham), Sam'l. & Sally & Mr. Brigham with Sophy. To God be Praise and Glory! Towards evening according to Invitation, Joseph Baker, Esq. and Lady, Mr. Winslow Brigham and Miss Alice Cushing of Shrewsbury, Mr. Hazeltine and Miss Mindwell Brigham, Master Fisk and Miss Anna Brigham, and Mr. Josiah Brigham came to wait on ye Solemnity of the Marriage of Mr. Elijah Brigham to my Dauter Anna Sophia, which was performed; and after ye Covenant, Mr. Cushing prayed. . . . Mrs. P. was not able to attend."

"22 Sept., 1780. . . . Sam and Breck with their wives wait on ye Bridegroom and Bride, to Coll. Brigham."—Parkman Diary.

† "She also kept a journal in which is frequent mention of Mr. Elijah Brigham, but it ends in July, 1778"—The Hundredth Town.

for Worcester County; was a member of Congress from 1810 until death.

Morse paid the following tribute to his character:

"Of this man I cannot speak in justice to convictions, and escape the suspicion of extravagance among strangers, while among his acquaintance who survive, nothing would fail of a hearty response which I might say commendatory of his social and domestic virtues, his commercial integrity and honor, his great common sense and refinement, his patriotism and political integrity; his wisdom and benevolence, his fidelity to every official and important trust, and his services in the advancement of the moral, civil, and educational interests of the community in which he lived. 'Stranger, tread lightly at the grave of one such as thou oughtest to be, true to his conscience and country!'"

100 SUSANNA⁵, daughter of Col. Levi⁴ and Susanna (Grout) Brigham; born in Northboro, Mass., 21 Jan., 1754; died in Westboro, Mass., 10 Nov., 1834; married, 9 Jan., 1777, Breck, son of the Rev. Ebenezer and Hannah (Breck) Parkman; born 27 Jan., 1748-49, in Westboro; died in W., 3 Feb., 1825.

She is described in The Hundredth Town as a rather stately, but most gracious lady, always performing kindly deeds, and much beloved in the community.* Some years before his marriage, Breck opened a store in one end of the little house still standing on South Street in Westboro, using the other end for a dwelling place. At this time it stood between the parsonage and the church.† He was the ancestor of all the Parkmans who remained in Westboro. Elijah Brigham, who married Sophy Parkman, went into business with him in 1780. There are descendants of Susanna in the 9th and 10th generations whom the limits of this work will not permit us to enter.

* The winter of 1779-80 was very cold and much snow fell. On the 29th of Dec., 1779, Mr. Parkman records:

"A very dismal morning. Storm continues till about nonn. Snowbanks very high, one nigh my saddle-house 6 feet high. Roads blocked up . . . My son Breck had also designed to go in a double sleigh to Ashburnham, but no Team nor Sleigh can stir. How wonderful are the Works of ye Great God!"

On the 30th he records:

"I keep close to my Study, tho Mr. Antipas Brigham had requested me to go to Capt. Edmund's to marry him. But nobody disturbs me. . . . Enough to do to keep warm."

24 Jan., 1780. "An urgent message from Mr. Antipas Brigham to go to Capt. Edmund Brigham's with request to marry him. I went, but with great Difficulty, by reason of ye deep snow. My sons Breck and Elias drew me on a light sled as far as Mr. Haskill's, nigh which a number of young men, Brighams, accompanied me on foot to ye House, where I performed ye Solemnity. After ye Supper they brot me to Mr. Gale's, who kindly obliged me to locate there."—Parkman Diary.

"The tradition of Mr. Parkman's ride to the wedding is still preserved in the Brigham family, with some of the incidents of the trip—that the old minister lost his wig, and the racketmen were at no small trouble to recover it; but all finally ended well."—The Hundredth Town.

158 THE HISTORY OF THE BRIGHAM FAMILY

107 DR. DANIEL⁵, son of Capt. Jonas⁴ and Persis (Baker) Brigham; born in Westboro, Mass., on the old David Brigham homestead, 12 June, 1760; died in Marlboro, Mass., 12 June, 1837; married Anna, daughter of Abram Munroe of Northboro, Mass., born there, 22 July, 1766; died 9 April, 1850.

He studied medicine in Harvard College. Entered the Revolutionary Army as surgeon's mate and was at West Point when Maj. André was captured; after the war he was surgeon in the Fifth Regt. of Mass. Militia. He practiced medicine in Northboro, then in Berlin, about 1800, and about 1826 in Marlboro, where he resided on the farm on Brigham St., occupied now by Addington M. Brigham. 125 GERSHOM⁵, son of Benjamin⁴ and Hannah (Merrill) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 27 June, 1750; died in Fayston, Vt., 22 Oct., 1817; married, 23 May, 1783, Sarah, daughter of Samuel and Mary (Loring) Allen; born in Northboro, Mass., 9 Dec., 1756; died in Fayston, 30 Aug., 1829.

He had land of his father Benjamin, just west of the old Warren Brigham place on Glen St., where he built a house and barn near the intersection with Forest St.; it was sold by Gershom when he moved to New Hampshire. He marched with Capt. William Brigham's Co. of "Minute Men" in 1775. In 1795 Gershom moved from Marlboro to Winchester, N. H. (vide deed which exists of property owned there), and 12 years later, 1807, to Fayston, Washington Co., Vt., where he settled upon the homestead which descended to his son, Elisha, then to Elisha's son-in-law, George O. Boyce, who married Elisha's daughter, Laura. He came to a wooded wilderness which had to be cleared, and as his health was not strong for many years (he was a paralytic), Elisha took charge of affairs, before his father died at the age of 68. He was a man about 5 ft. 7 inches in height, rather spare, black hair and eyes. Sarah Allen was tall with light brown hair and very light blue eyes standing out prominently; her forehead was very high, broad, and rather retreating. They lie buried in the hill cemetery overlooking the home of their closing years.*

128 LIEUT.-GOV. PAUL⁵, son of Paul⁴ and Catherine (Turner) Brigham; born in Coventry, Conn., 6 Jan., 1746; died in Norwich, Vt., of a long and distressing illness, 15 June, 1824; married, 6 Oct., 1768, Lydia Sawyer of Hebron, Conn., who died 19 Sept., 1838, æ. 93.

He had served in the Connecticut militia in every grade from corporal to captain, long enough, at the time of the Revolutionary War, to be exempt from service. Nevertheless, he entered the Continental Army as captain, 1 Jan., 1777, and served 4 years in Col. Chandler's regiment, afterwards commanded by Col. Isaac Sherman; received his discharge 22 April, 1781; was in the battles of Germantown, Fort Mifflin and Monmouth, and wintered in Valley Forge, 1777-'78. In 1782 he removed from Coventry, Conn., to Norwich, Vt., where he was town clerk, 1784-'96; high sheriff of Windsor Co. 5 years; appointed Judge of County Court for Windsor County, June, 1785, serving 5 years; in 1788, elected Brig.-General of 3d Brigade; 1787, elected chairman of committee to apprehend, in Vermont, the supporters of Shay's Rebellion, who had fled there; in 1788, member of State Land Commissioners; was member of the Legislature; in 1791, elected to Vermont Council, and was on committee to nominate men for the first Board of Trustees of Univ. of Vermont; also elected Maj.-General of 4th Div. of Militia. He received 27 elections from the people at large, 1 as Presidential Elector, 5 as Councillor, 21 as Lieut.-Governor, when he declined further election. He was the first elected Lieut.-Governor and served 20 years. He received 143 ANNA⁵, daughter of Dr. Samuel⁴ and Anna (Gott) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 29 Oct., 1753; died, 1803; married, 21 May, 1772, Isaac Davis; born 27 Feb., 1749; died 27 April, 1826. She was brought up at the home of Capt. Maynard in Westboro, whom her mother married as her second husband. She lived in Westboro after her marriage.* Some of her descendants live there still.

Children (Davis), born in Westboro:

i Phineas⁶.

ii Isaac, b. 1779; † m. Polly Rice, dau. of 86.

iii Joseph.

iv John, (Gov.), b. 1787; d. 1854; was called "Honest John Davis." He represented his town in the Legislature and was sent to Congress as senator; he was thrice governor of Massachusetts, serving in 1834-35, and 1841-43.

144 DR. SAMUEL⁵, son of Dr. Samuel⁴ and Anna (Gott) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 21 Aug., 1756, a posthumous child; died in Boylston, Mass., 24 June, 1830; married, in Northboro, 17 Feb., 1789, Mary, daughter of Stephen and sister of Dr. Stephen Ball of that place; born in Northboro, 10 May, 1766; died in Boylston, 10 Aug., 1852.

He was one of 4 young men from Westboro, of the name of Brigham, who joined the same class at Dartmouth College on the eve of the Revolution, the others being the future Hon. Elijah⁵ Brigham, and Moses⁶ and Eli⁵ Brigham. Samuel joined the army under Washington in 1777, as paymaster, and was present at the execution of Maj. André. He returned to college and was graduated in 1779. He then read medicine with Dr. Stephen Ball of Northboro, and began to practice in that part of Boylston which was once Shrewsbury. The old homestead is in the northeast part of Boylston, about half a mile from the town line of Berlin, and about 4 miles from Clinton, where some of his descendants live. Great things were expected of him, but before he could take the rank among practitioners which he might have attained, he met with a serious accident to the calf of his leg, was incapacitated from walking without crutches, and thus seriously handicapped in his profession as a country doctor.

* "Isaac Davis, a young tanner, who came to town to teach his trade to Capt. Maynard's son, had married Anne Brigham, step-daughter of Capt. Maynard, in 1772. They had four sons. . . . They were living at this time in the house recently occupied by Hiram Broaders. In 1781 they bought the Dea. Tonlin place which has been known since as the Davis homestead. Isaac and his sons became wealthy men, and they and their descendants, who take pride in the name of Davis, have held many positions of honor and trust."—Parkman Diary.

† "31 Oct., 1779, I baptized Mr. Davis' son Isaac."—Parkman Diary.

He became a magistrate and a writer of essays and verse. Morse states that he read some of Dr. Brigham's writings which showed him to have been a man of letters and of original thought as well as a patriot. Morse also says that he composed music as a recreation. This may very well have been the case, as he was brought up in the home of Capt. Maynard in Westboro, who was the richest man of his day there, and undoubtedly young Brigham had opportunities for self-culture and training beyond the curriculum of the college. He was related to the Parkmans and often mentioned in the Parkman Diary.

147 URIAH⁵, JR., son of Uriah⁴ and Sarah Breck (Gott) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 11 July, 1757; died in Bakersfield, Vt., 16 Sept., 1820; married, 25 Dec., 1790, Elizabeth, daughter of Col. Josiah Fay * of Southboro, Mass.; born there, 28 April, 1767; died in Boston, 9 Nov. 1837.

Uriah was assessor in Marlboro in 1788; about 1796 he moved to Bakersfield, with his wife and two children, in an ox-team. The estate of Uriah, Sr., was a long time in being settled, and there were eleven children to share it; therefore we find his sons pushing out into the wilderness and among the settlers of new towns. Uriah, Jr., was appreciative of intellectual attainments, and was instrumental in establishing a small but valuable library for the use of the pioneer settlement, from which his own children benefited. It is said that he never allowed anything to interrupt his children when they wished to read. He was one of the leading citizens of Bakersfield. Appears to have been a private in the Revolution from Marlboro, in Capt. Gates' Co., Col. Ward's Regt., in 1776; and in 1777, in Capt. Wm. Morse's Co., Col. J. Read's Regt.

Children, the 2 elder born in Marlboro, the others in Bakersfield:

181 EDMUND⁶, son of Capt. Edmund⁵ and Sarah (Lyscom) Brigham, born in Westboro, Mass., 19 Oct., 1758; died in Templeton, Mass., 22 Apr., 1840; married Mary, daughter of Lieut. John and granddaughter of the Rev. John Martyn (who was the first settled minister of the church in Northboro, Mass., a graduate of Harvard College in 1724, who married Mary Marrett of Cambridge, Mass.). She was born in Northboro, 24 Nov., 1762; died in Templeton, 2 May, 1835.

Edmund learned the saddler's trade and resided with his father on the old home place in Westboro until July, 1782, when he moved to Gerry, now Phillipston, Mass., and thence to Templeton, about 1790. On a division of the Martyn estate in Northboro, his wife received a five-dollar gold piece, a chaise, and a stony farm in Templeton. In the midst of the struggle to raise crops from between the rocks, and all the difficult labor required in a new country, 12 children were born, 10 of whom were raised to maturity and 6 of whom have left descendants. He is noted as being in a train band, year not given. He marched on the Lexington Alarm from Westboro in his father's company, and was on duty in Cambridge for some time afterward. He is named in his father's will among the 4 sons who are to share in the distribution of the Captain's wardrobe.

183 SAMUEL⁶, son of Capt. Edmund⁵ and Sarah (Lyscom) Brigham; born in Westboro, Mass., 6 Dec., 1763; died in Westboro, 11 June, 1823; married, 5 May, 1785, Lydia Ball of Westboro, who died 16 March, 1827.

He was a farmer and moved to West Waterford, Me., but returned to his native place in the latter part of his life. He is mentioned in his father's will as one of the 4 sons among whom the Captain's wardrobe was to be divided. An old tradition is that when a child he was very large of his age, and, to save him from conscription at a time when boys were being called upon to enter the army, his mother, mindful of his tender years, put him in one of the big ovens to hide him from the soldiers. On one occasion, either he or one of his brothers got into earnest political discussion with a neighbor, on a summer's evening, while putting the cows out to pasture for the night; they stood at the bars as they talked, and when the dawn came it found them there, the debate still going on.

Children, born in West Waterford:

i *Lucy*⁷, b. in 1786; m. Amos Smith of Waterford. Ch. (Smith), b. in Waterford:

252 THE HISTORY OF THE BRIGHAM FAMILY

264 ABRAHAM MUNROE⁶, son of Dr. Daniel⁵ and Anna (Munroe) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 25 March, 1796; died in Westboro, Mass., 26 Oct., 1882, æ. 86; married, in 1822, Mindwell, daughter of Winslow and Alice (Cushing) Brigham; born in Northboro, 5 May, 1796; died 1 Jan., 1870. He was the landlord of the American House, Boston, for many years.

Children, born in Boston:

- i Caroline Matilda⁷, b. 1 Feb., 1823; d. 23 Feb., 1823.
- 543 ii Lydia Maria, b. 23 Nov., 1824.
- iii Henry Lyman, b. 7 June, 1828; d. 24 Aug., 1847.

265 OTIS⁶, son of David⁵ and Lucy (Harrington) Brigham; born in Westboro, Mass., 1788; died there 15 April, 1872; married (1) 16 June, 1819, Abigail, daughter of Zealous Bates of Cohasset, Mass., and sister of Rev. Joshua Bates, D. D., President of Middlebury, Vt., College; born 22 Jan., 1792; died 2 May, 1831; married (2) Adeline, sister of his first wife, born 10 May, 1801; died 2 Oct., 1866.

He was Captain in the war of 1812 and helped to raise troops for the Civil War. A prosperous farmer, he yet found time to devote to church and town affairs with great energy and success. For 40 years he was superintendent of the first Sunday-school started in Westboro. Was selectman 1827-'28, 1830-'33, 1836-'43; overseer of the poor and moderator of town meetings for many years. Was Representative from Westboro in 1839 and 1840. In 1834 he began to collect the genealogy of the Brighams, and his experience, like that of others who have followed him, was full of hardship. After 14 years he had found most of the records collected later by Morse. No encouragement to publish was given him and he drew a chart of the branch to which he belonged and sent the rest of the MSS. to various places where he hoped it might be of use, but it was beyond recovery when Morse needed it. He gathered annually at the old firesides in Westboro large companies of Brighams.

300 ELISHA⁶, son of Gershom⁵ and Sarah (Allen) Brigham; born in Marlboro, Mass., 22 Oct., 1792; died in Fayston, Vt., 11 March, 1863; married, in Fayston, Sophronia, daughter of Samuel B. Ryder; she was born in Randolph, Vt., 20 June, 1799; died in Fayston, 24 Oct., 1876. Her father came from Plymouth, Mass., to Braintree, Vt.; came in by "blaised" trees, and planted the first fruit nursery in that town. Her mother was Lucy, dau. of Seth Chase, the 4th from Aquila Chase, who settled at Newburyport, 1646. Through the Ryders, Sophronia was descended from Mary, dau. of Richard Warren, one of the Mayflower (1620) passengers. Thus all of Elisha and Sophronia's descendants are of Mayflower stock. The Ryders are well represented in the graveyard on the Hill, at Plymouth. Samuel Ryder (or Rider) was one of the first settlers of Yarmouth on Cape Cod, from Plymouth, 1639.

When Elisha was 4 years old his father removed to Winchester, N. H., and when he was 16 they removed to Fayston in the Mad River Valley, where were only half a dozen recent settlers with small clearings and no roads. His father being infirm, Elisha took the lead in clearing up a wooded wilderness into the homestead which he inherited at his father's death. He was a quiet, devout, most peaceable man; scrupulously honest, suffering a wrong rather than committing one. The "pioneer of Methodism" in his town, he was class-leader, chorister, and financial and social supporter of the church. "Puritanism never thrived better this side of old Plymouth, in all its sterling simplicity and straight-forwardness, than here." His name is found in the earliest business transactions of the town, without interruption to the time of his death; he was collector, selectman, lister, district clerk, highway surveyor, committee man and juror. A consistent Whig, while the town was almost to a man Democratic, he never was elected to the Legislature. Elisha and his wife rest in that Waitsfield, Vt., cemetery, situated in Irasville.

343 *PETER BENT⁶, son of Uriah⁵ and Elizabeth (Fay) Brigham; born in Bakersfield, Vt., 4 Feb., 1807, died, unmarried, Boston, Mass., 24 May, 1877.

* John Bent¹ (1596-1672), son of Robert Bent (1566-1631) came from Penton Grafton, Parish of Weygill, County of Hants, Eng., sailing from Southampton in

His father died leaving a widow and several small children dependent upon themselves for a livelihood. He came to Boston as a boy, making the first part of his journey on horseback, with saddlebags containing his food and scant apparel. His horse becoming useless, he made his way on foot and by working on a Middlesex canal boat. Starting in the fish and oyster business, selling at first from a wheelbarrow, he finally acquired a lease of Concert Hall, a well-known restaurant, corner of Court and Hanover Streets, which he conducted until about 1869, when the widening of Hanover Street required a portion of his building, and he retired from the restaurant business. His business always prospered, but his largest success was made in real estate, in which he invested shrewdly in his immediate vicinity. His judgment in matters of real estate, street widening, and general municipal improvement was often sought by the city officials. He was one of the early directors of the Fitchburg railroad and continued in office until his death. He never sought public office. He was a man of fine personal appearance, honest and straightforward in his dealings, and his habits and life were regular. Careful as to food, and a total abstainer from liquors and tobacco, his health was of the best. In manner he was cordial and of heart kindly. His innate sympathy was especially illustrated in his anti-slavery sentiments and the gentle kindness which he ever showed to the negro. Among his papers after his death were found two cancelled wills, dated before 1862, by which he gave the bulk of his estate for the emancipation of the slaves. He often lamented his want of a liberal education, and his will made generous provision for the improvement of the educational system of his native town, where Brigham Academy is named for him.* He died in his residence, still standing, on the northeast corner of Bulfinch and Allston Streets. He is buried in Magnolia Avenue, Mt. Auburn. The bulk of his estate, aggregating about $1,300,000, was given to found the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. (See Appendix.)

the Confidence, of London, John Hobson master, in April, 1638. He became one of the founders of the town of Sudbury. He brought with him his wife, Martha, and five children. One son, Peter² (1629-1678) married Elizabeth ———, of Cambridge, about 1651, settled in Marlboro, for which town he was one of the petitioners, and died in England in May, 1678. His real estate at his death was valued at £431. His house was garrisoned, burned by the Indians and one of his sons was scalped during King Philip's War. His son Peter³ married Abigail Barnes. Their son Peter⁴ of Marlboro (1707-1798) served in the General Court and the first three Provincial Congresses. Peter Bent Brigham's mother was Elizabeth Fay, whose mother was Mary (Bent) Fay, wife of Josiah Fay of Southboro and daughter of Peter Bent⁴ and sister of Abigail (Bent) Brigham, wife of Benajah Brigham. Robert Breck Brigham, nephew of Peter Bent Brigham, was fifth in descent from "the distinguished Peter Bent⁴."

* Mr. Brigham bequeathed $40,000 to his native town; $10,000 to be devoted forever to maintaining and beautifying the village cemetery, and $30,000 for educational purposes. The town voted "to use the income of the Brigham School

Mr. Brigham was admitted to the bar in Boston at the age of 21, and when he d. he was a member there of the firm of Proctor & Brigham, and had a large practice, especially in the Court of Insolvency. He was president of the Mercantile Co-operative Bank and associate justice of the District Court in Jamaica Plain, Mass., where he resided. He was an habitual student, had fertility of resources, and his knowledge of law and men, his nerve and firm will, made him equal to any emergency in his business, where he was respected for his integrity, conscientiousness and wisdom. In private life he maintained, in his home and in his friendships, the highest ideals, which were founded upon a deep religious faith. Ch., b. in Jamaica Plain:

363 REV. JOHN CLARK⁶, D. D., son of John⁵ and Phebe (Clark) Brigham; born in New Marlboro, Mass., 10 Feb., 1794; died in Brooklyn, N. Y., 10 Aug., 1862; married, 23 Aug., 1840, Maria E. Evertson; born in New York City, 5 Feb., 1811; died in Brooklyn, 10 Dec., 1864.

Dr. Brigham was graduated A. B. from Williams College in 1819; completed his course at Andover Theological Seminary in 1822. He spent four years in South America and Mexico at the suggestion of the A. B. F. M., studying religious conditions; as a result, Protestant chaplaincies were established in Rio Janeiro and other centers. Returning home in 1826, became Corresponding Secretary of the Am. Bible Society, being the first secretary appointed to give all his time to the work; held this position until 1862 with singular ability and success. Largely through his influence the present Bible House in New York was erected. He received the degree of D. D. from Andover, in 1832.

365 DR. AMARIAH⁶, son of John⁵ and Phebe (Clark) Brigham; born in New Marlboro, Mass., 26 Dec., 1798; died 8 Sept., 1849, in Utica, N. Y.; married, 23 Jan., 1833, Susan Root of Greenfield, Mass.; born 23 Aug., 1811; died 12 Nov., 1896. He went with his father to Chatham, N. Y., in 1805.

After early hardships he began to practice medicine in Enfield, Mass., soon after reaching his majority, and then went to Greenfield and established himself in competition with practitioners of age and established reputation. He became eminent in his profession in Massachusetts and in Hartford, Conn., where he began to practice in 1831 after a year abroad. He regarded infant schools and religious revivals as frequent inducers of insanity. His little volume "Influences of Mental Cultivation on Health" and his later works, "Influences of Religion on the Health and Physical Welfare of Mankind," were in advance of their time; they are behind the present expression of thought which he contributed to form. His last special work, "An Inquiry concerning the Diseases and Functions of the Brain, Spinal Cord and Nerves," only indicates what was then known on the subject. In 1840, Dr. Brigham was appointed Superintendent of the Retreat for the Insane in Hartford; from there he went to a similar institution in Utica. Endowed with rare judgment, unselfishness, courage and an iron will, he gave himself fully to the service of mankind in a much needed field, educating the public and the Legislature as to the needs of the insane, and in 1844, with his own means, established the Journal of Insanity, the first periodical of that character in the world, and which is still published. He was the pioneer in all modern methods for caring for the insane. Pritchard, at the head of one of the greatest English asylums, advised an American to seek in the Utica asylum a degree of perfection not then found in England. Dr. Brigham was truly a great man in his day and generation, but is more highly appreciated now than he was in his own time. "Brigham Hall" Hospital, Canandaigua, is named in his honor.

Children, the 3 eldest born in Hartford, the 2 youngest in Utica:

- i Susan M.⁷, b. 25 Oct., 1833; d. 19 Feb., 1881.
- ii John Spencer, b. 7 July, 1836; d. 16 Aug., 1848; his early death hastened his father's decease.

411 NICHOLAS⁶ H., son of Capt. Charles⁵ and Susanna (Baylis) Brigham; born in Grafton, Mass., 2 Oct., 1808; died there, s. p., 10 Nov., 1903; married in 1838, Sarah E., daughter of Hon. Samuel Wood of Grafton.

He was the oldest resident of Grafton at the time of his death. On his 94th birthday, it was said of him that "physically and mentally he is more alert, erect and vigorous than many men of seventy-five years. His face is scarcely wrinkled, being especially full. His voice is strong and his figure straight and tall. . . . His hearing and eyesight are especially excellent. He is fond of the open air and an inveterate walker in suitable weather."

He engaged in the boot and shoe business in Boston when he came of age, and later went to New Orleans where he was successful in the commission and shipping business, dealing with houses in the north. Soon after 1850 he went to New York and for 40 years thereafter conducted one of the large shipping concerns of that city. He retired 31 Dec., 1889, to Grafton to spend the rest of his days. He was the oldest person present at the B. F. A. reunion of 1902 in Boston. In 1904, at the meeting again held in Boston, Judge Forbes responded to the request for an obituary of Mr. Brigham.

Col. Brigham was a clerk in the store of P. S. Whitney of Boston for two years after his father's removal to Canada. In 1803 Bela joined his father, settled in London and became a loyal subject of England. He was on the side of the British in the War of 1812, and had command of a rifle company in the First Regt. of Oxford Militia and commanded the regiment during the Rebellion of 1837. He was often on duty during these years, acquiring for life a taste for a soldier's career. Morse found him, in his 76th year, living in Bath, N. Y., and relates that he had a retentive memory and a hand as steady as in youth. At 74 he amused himself with skating on his birthday, and in his 76th year he still went without a cane.

423 JOHN⁷, son of Edmund⁶ and Mary (Martyn) Brigham; born in Westboro, Mass., 7 June, 1782; died in Whitingham, Vt., 21 Feb., 1863; married (1) 14 Nov., 1808, in Phillipston, Mass., Rebecca, daughter of Gamaliel and Sarah (Freeman) Smith; born in Truro, Mass., 2 Nov., 1783; died in Whitingham, 23 Feb., 1833; married (2) 4 Dec., 1833, Huldah, daughter of Minor Wheeler, born in Halifax, Vt., 24 Dec., 1804; died in Whitingham, 8 Oct., 1839; married (3) 22 April, 1841, Mrs. Rebecca (Rawson) Bardwell-Goss, born in Montague, Mass., 30 Sept., 1785; died in Whitingham, 5 July, 1844; married (4) 2 May, 1845, Betsey (Preston) Brigham, widow of his brother Lyscom, born in Whitingham, 11 July, 1800; died in Heath, 8 April, 1874.

He was six feet in his stockings and very muscular; his native ability was large, his energy enormous and he accomplished a great deal of business in his long life. When about 25 years old he bought land in southern Vermont, cleared it and built a house. Once, starting in the morning, he walked to Phillipston, 40 miles, and danced all night, apparently unwearied. He was the most prominent man in the section where he lived; he manufactured scythe snaths and annually carried thousands of dozens to market in Worcester County and eastern Massachusetts; he bought the surplus produce of the farmers and carried it with his own to Boston, a hundred miles with horse or ox teams, for years; he was the largest sheep raiser in southern Vermont. Although solicited, he never accepted public office, but was on several important committees and chairman of the building committee for the Universalist church; it was owing to his efforts that a society was formed in Whitingham. His geniality made his home a rallying point for all his kin.

441 MARY ANN⁷, daughter of Dexter⁶ and Mary Ann (Gould) Brigham; was born in Westboro, Mass., 6 Dec., 1829; she was instantly killed in a railway accident near New Haven, Conn., 29 June, 1889.

When Miss Brigham died, she was the President-elect of Mt. Holyoke College, Mass. In her youth, fondness for study led her to the best school of her time for women, Mt. Holyoke Seminary, at whose head was the pioneer in women's education, Mary Lyon. Miss Brigham returned to the Seminary as a teacher during 1855-'58, then was assistant principal at Ingham University, Le Roy, N. Y., for 3 years. In 1863 she began to conduct a post-graduate course in connection with the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Heights Seminary, at that time the leading private school for girls. Here Miss Brigham found her real life-work, and she remained, first as teacher and then as Associate Principal, for 26 years. In 1889, Miss Brigham accepted the unanimous call of the Trustees to become President of Mt. Holyoke College. She had twice refused the presidency of Wellesley College, also positions of honorable responsibility at Smith and Vassar College. The school had just been granted a college charter; but Mt. Holyoke was not destined to open its doors to its first President.

Conservative yet liberal in her educational policy, she retained what was good in the older system while assimilating the best in the modern methods. Gifted with remarkable discrimination, well-balanced judgment, wide knowledge of human nature and unfailing tenderness and sympathy, she became to thousands of girls their ideal of womanly wisdom and of Christian character. The Alumnæ of the Brooklyn Heights Seminary have equipped a Memorial Hall as a permanent reminder of her work for young girls. Another fitting tribute is the "Mary Brigham Cottage" at Mt. Holyoke College, the gift of the Mt. Holyoke Alumnæ Association of New York and vicinity, of which Miss Brigham was, for years, President. It is a beautiful and permanent memorial to Mt. Holyoke's first president.

474 (CHIEF JUSTICE) LINCOLN FLAGG⁷, son of Lincoln⁶ and Lucy (Forbes) Brigham; born in Cambridge, Mass., 4 Oct., 1819; died in Salem, Mass., 27 Feb., 1895; married, 20 Oct., 1847, Eliza Endicott, daughter of Thomas and Lydia (Perry) Swain; born in New Bedford, Mass., 11 July, 1826.

In his youth Judge Brigham entered the counting-room of the late Samuel Austin, Jr., in Boston, and remained two years. In 1837 he began to study for college under the direction of Rev. David Peabody, his brother-in-law. He was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1842, and received the degree of LL. B. from the Harvard Law School in 1844. He went to New Bedford, Mass., and further equipped himself for the practice of his profession in the office of John H. Clifford and Harrison G. O. Colby and was admitted to the bar in June, 1845. He then formed a law partnership with Mr. Clifford, in New Bedford, which was maintained until that gentleman was elected Governor of Massachusetts. In 1853, Mr. Brigham was appointed district attorney for the southern district of Bristol County, and when the office was made elective, in 1856, he was chosen to the same position, which he held until appointed to the bench of the Superior Court by Gov. Banks, in 1859. Although Judge Brigham was associated with remarkably able jurists on that first Superior bench, he was the peer of any. Ten years after his appointment, he became Chief Justice, a position which he held for 21 years with great honor to the Commonwealth and to himself, holding the office longer than the chief justice of any other court of the Commonwealth, save Lemuel Shaw. He possessed a commanding presence, an expressive countenance and dignified manners, and was noted for his unfailing patience and good temper; his kindness to young attorneys was characteristic.

Hon. William T. Forbes of Worcester delivered an eloquent eulogy of Judge Brigham at the Boston Reunion of 1902 of the Brigham Family Association. Among other tributes to his memory, he paid the following:

"He is likely to remain for generations to come, as he is now, the most prominent Justice of the great trial courts of this State. . . . As a judge, he was sufficiently learned but not pedantic; self-poised, but not self-opinionated; firm, but not obstinate; always dignified, but never haughty."

It is stated that a place on the Supreme Bench was tendered Judge Brigham more than once, while he was on the Superior Bench, but he declined. He resigned in 1890, owing to failing health and increasing deafness.

In 1866 he moved to Salem, where he resided for the rest of his life. He had a summer home at Bar Harbor.

In 1883 he received the degree of LL. D. from Dartmouth College, and from Harvard University in 1886. He was a member of the Mass. Historical Society.

H., 7 July, 1786; slain in battle on Chippewa Plains, Canada, 5 July, 1816, after three years' service in the War of 1812; married Mary W. Lacy; born in Piermont, N. H., 24 Aug., 1782; died at the home of her son Ephraim in Dover, N. H., 16 June, 1865.

He started from Colebrook, one day, for Plymouth, N. H., to get his wife's sister to nurse his wife through her approaching confinement. When he got to No. Haverhill, N. H., he met a recruiting officer and enlisted for 9 months in the War of 1812. He was told that he would not have to serve for several weeks. Late that night he received orders to march; hastily sending a messenger to Plymouth, he marched with his company, after sending word to his wife. When he was slain he was with a scouting party, who were all killed and buried in a trench on the Canadian side of the Niagara River. A few years ago a trench full of human bones was found on the bank of the river, and from some buttons found it was known that the remains were those of American soldiers. The Canadian government permitted the U. S. soldiers to come into Canada and give the remains a military burial. These may have been the bones of that scouting party.

ton, Jr., of Shrewsbury; born there, 9 Oct., 1810; died 11 June, 1894.

Dr. Brigham taught school during the winter seasons from 1821 to 1825 and studied the remainder of the year. In 1823 he "studied Latin and Greek under the instruction of Rev. Seth Alden," a clergyman of Marlboro. In May, 1824, he began the study of medicine with Dr. J. B. Kittredge of Framingham, with whom he remained two years. June 24, 1826, he removed to Shrewsbury to "attend to the study and practice of medicine," under Dr. Seth Knowlton, then a prominent physician of that town. He attended medical lectures at Harvard Medical School; was licensed as a physician and surgeon by the censors of the Second Medical District at Worcester, 20 June, 1827; began the practice of medicine and surgery in Shrewsbury, 18 Nov., 1827, and remained there until his death. For many years before his death he was called "The Doctor of Shrewsbury," and not only had the larger part of the practice in that town but much in several adjoining towns. He lived respected and honored, and died greatly lamented and mourned by those to whom he had ministered for a generation, and justly merited the name of "The Good Physician."

L. Ray, born in Ludlow, Mass., 21 Oct., 1832; died 16 April, 1889.

Mr. Brigham was a manufacturer. He was connected with the Dwight Manufacturing Company of Chicopee, Mass., as superintendent for 32 years, and in 1868 went to Ludlow, where he was 19 years agent for the Ludlow Manufacturing Company. He retired from business in 1887, when he went to Springfield, Mass., and bought a residence, but in 1890 he went to Palmer to live with his daughter, Mrs. E. P. Ball. He was a 32d degree Mason, a member of the Springfield commandery, Knights Templar, and was a director in the Masonic Mutual Insurance company for many years. His affiliations were with the Universalist denomination and he was an ardent abolitionist. During his residence in Ludlow he made every interest of the place his own, and the history of the town, at that time, was largely a history of Mr. Brigham. Brigham Lodge of Ludlow is named for him. The male line is extinct.

539 *ROBERT BRECK⁷, son of Cheney⁶ and Elizabeth (Brigham) Brigham⁶, born in Bakersfield, Vt., 1 Nov., 1826; died in Boston, s. p., 2 Jan., 1900; married 17 Nov., 1870, in Boston, Frances Gertrude Brigham⁷, daughter of 342.

An ambitious student at the academy in Bakersfield, he went to Boston at the age of 16 to earn money to complete his studies, but, on a suggestion of his former schoolmaster, continued in the restaurant business, in the employ of his uncle, the noted Peter Bent Brigham, corner Court and Hanover Streets, remaining ten years. He then opened a restaurant of his own farther down on Court Street, which he conducted successfully until ill health compelled him to sell out and go to Florida. Returning in 1860, he bought the estate and established "Brigham's" restaurant at 642 Washington Street, Boston, tearing down old buildings and building "Brigham's Hotel" in the rear about 1882.

This historic spot in 1635 was apportioned for a house and garden to Garrett Bourne, who built in 1636 and set out a number of elm trees. One he transplanted in 1646 a little northwest of his house. The house was transformed into a tavern and in 1760 was the meeting place of the "Sons of Liberty." Here the first public act of resistance to British authority occurred, 14 Aug., 1765, when the effigy of Andrew Oliver, the stamp officer, was hung from the branches of the transplanted tree; the old elm thus becoming known as the Liberty Tree and the location as Liberty Hall. The tree was cut down by the Tories in August, 1775; at the close of the Revolution a liberty pole was erected on its stump. In 1823-'24 the four-story brick Lafayette Hotel, built and kept by Ralph Haskins, replaced the old tavern; and it was from what is now Brigham's hotel that a beautiful young girl, with a silk sash of red, white and blue draped across her shoulders, presented the Marquis de Lafayette with his first refreshment upon entering the

* Rev. Robert Breck, son of Captain John Breck of Dorchester, was born 7 Dec., 1682, Harvard 1700, was settled at Marlboro 25 Oct., 1704. new City of Boston, a glass of wine, in 1824. Soon after, the hotel was secured by Asa de Costa, who managed it for a long time. William F. Bacon was its proprietor in 1860, when he was succeeded by Mr. Brigham, who lived there uninterruptedly until his death, although he sold the business to Bush & Willey in 1891. Soon after his occupancy and against the remonstrance of many friends Mr. Brigham, as a matter of principle, abolished the open bar maintained by his predecessor and enforced the custom, which afterward became the law of the Commonwealth, of serving liquors only at tables with food.

Mr. Brigham was one of the first to appreciate the movement of business toward the "South End" of Boston and at his death owned real property to the value of $3,000,000, all within a mile of his hotel. His purchases included (12 June, 1883) the "Meeting House in Hollis Street" (Unitarian), which Mr. Brigham transformed in 1885 into the Hollis Street Theatre, the leading play-house of Boston. The new Globe Theatre also forms part of the Brigham estate.

In business life he was shrewd, honorable and reserved, but he was naturally of a lively, cheerful disposition and he was charitable in many quiet ways. His innate generosity will reach its full fruition in the Robert B. Brigham Hospital for Incurables. (See Appendix.) He is buried in Bakersfield.

562 HON. MAVOR⁷, son of Dea. Sullivan⁶ and Amanda (Spalding) Brigham; born 16 May, 1806, in a small log house on a farm in Westmoreland, Oneida County, New York, to which his father had recently moved from New Hampshire; died in Toledo, O., 8 Jan., 1897; married (1) 29 Sept., 1830, Clarissa, daughter of Oliver Bill, born in Booneville, N. Y., 5 June, 1801; died in Toledo, 9 March, 1842; married (2) 27 July, 1843, Malinda P., daughter of Jacob M. Merrell, born in Westmoreland, 21 Jan., 1822.

The farm on which he was born, as also the two others on which the family afterward lived, was chiefly uncleared land. With little schooling but a brilliant mind, he so fitted himself that he taught school for several years with great success; learned the carpenter's trade and until 1835 was both carpenter and building contractor, teaching school winters; he taught himself to play the bass viol and flute, sang well and taught singing school. In 1835, with wife and child, he removed to the new settlement in Ohio, afterward the city of Toledo, and resided there permanently except for a short return to New York State. Here, for 20 years, he was a builder and, at one time, a railroad constructor, etc.; also bought land upon which he built houses for sale; was in the hardware business 1858-1868, when retired on account of ill-health but frequently acted as executor or assignee of estates, etc. He was Justice of the Peace 6 years, successively township clerk and treasurer, member of the City Council and in 1853, Mayor of Toledo; also Collector of canal tolls; member of the first board of police commissioners by appointment of the Governor and later of the Water Works Board; these positions of public trust came to him unsought. In 1832 he organized one of the first Anti-Slavery societies in the United States and was long its secretary; also he greatly assisted to form public opinion against slavery and to aid negroes who had secured their liberty. Always, in adult life, a devout Christian, he was 53 years deacon and clerk of the First Congregational Church of Toledo, holding both offices when he died. For many years was the choir-master of his church. With mental faculties unimpaired, he passed away in his 91st year respected and loved by all.

739 DR. FRANKLIN WHITING⁸, son of Dr. Adolphus⁷ and Rebecca W. (Knowlton) Brigham; born in Shrewsbury, Mass., 13 Sept., 1841; died in Shrewsbury, 28 Feb., 1899; married 14 Sept., 1869, Alice R., daughter of Joseph Bates of Providence, R. I.; born 10 Feb., 1850; died 3 Feb., 1872.

Dr. Brigham was graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1865, and after serving two years as Acting Asst. Surgeon, U. S. N. (1863-1865), settled in his native town, where he continued to reside, one of its most beloved and useful citizens. His father had been known as "The Doctor of Shrewsbury," which applied with equal force to the son. Not only Shrewsbury, but all surrounding towns looked to him for health when ill. Probably no physician in central Massachusetts was so often sought in consultation; none have been more universally mourned. He was long conspicuous in the Massachusetts Medical Society and repeatedly at the head of the Worcester District Medical Society, always having been a close student. Without political aspirations, his opinions were sought, irrespective of party lines, upon all local improvements; chiefly to his influence the town owed its public library; to all the needy, he was a generous friend. His home, with its beautiful old-fashioned furnishings, was charming, and none who ever visited there will forget it or the cordial greeting of the master of the house.

He was one of the officers of the Brigham Family Association from its inception and was always present at the meetings until 1898, and none gave it a heartier "God-speed."

He was an occasional poet and essayist. The following verses, written by him, were sung at the funeral of his mother, and were rendered by the quartet of his choice, at his own obsequies:

"Father of all, to Thee returns my soul,
Worn with the travail of the earthly strife;
Henceforth, Thy mansions blest shall be my goal,
And the glad leisure of celestial life.

"Friends of my heart, I will not say adieu,
For you shall follow me, ere many days;
Impatient I shall there be waiting you,
Where funeral dirges change to songs of praise."

768 CHARLES OLIVER⁸, son of Hon. Mavor⁷ and Clarissa (Bill) Brigham; born in Dundee, Mich., 9 Sept., 1838; died in Toledo, O., of apoplexy, 2 May, 1906; married (1) 11 October, 1860, Sarah M., daughter of Hosmer and Sarah A. (Goodman) Graham; born 10 Sept., 1840; died in Toledo, 9 Feb., 1870; married (2) 23 Nov., 1871, Mary L., daughter of Perez Porter and Clarissa (Goodman) Peck; born 21 Dec., 1834; died in Toledo, 25 March, 1903.

Mr. Brigham received the best education obtainable in a pioneer country; at 15 entered the telegraph service with the Erie and Mich. Telegraph Co., and upon the reorganization of the Western Union Co., entered the Toledo office, where he continued as Manager for 45 years, or until Oct., 1900. For 20 years he was correspondent of the Western Associated Press for Northwestern Ohio; for several years superintendent of the Toledo electrical system; was for 18 years trustee of Central Congregational Church. He gave time, thought, and money to charitable work in Toledo. A man of the highest integrity, he had a keen sense of honor in social and business life. His tastes were broad and refined. His favorite study was ornithology. He was a brilliant, magnetic public speaker, and his fine carriage and expressive face gave additional power to his eloquence. He was deeply interested in the Sons of the American Revolution. Pres. of Anthony Wayne Chapter, he presided at a banquet given by himself to this chapter in Toledo, the night before his death, making one of his grandest addresses. Was the first President of the Brigham Family Association, elected in 1893, and serving until 1896; again elected in 1900 and continuing until his death; presided at meetings of 1893, '94, '95, '96, 1902, '04, always speaking eloquently. He was a cordial and generous supporter of the History of the Brigham Family, and without his active leadership and strong co-operation the History might not now be written. It is impossible to estimate fully the service which he has so freely given as President and as Chairman of the Publication Committee. Those who have been associated with him know how large is the debt the family owes him. No finer character ever bore the Brigham name.

Child, born in Toledo:

784 WILLARD IRVING TYLER⁸, son of Dr. Gershom Nelson⁷ and Laura E. (Tyler) Brigham; born in Montpelier, Vt., 31 May, 1859; died s. p. in Auburn, Cal., 26 Sept., 1904; married 22 March, 1893, M. Hazel Morse; born in Concord, Vt., who married after his death, her cousin, Edwin E. Nelson, and resides in Texas.

Willard was a natural leader in the local grammar school, and class orator of Grand Rapids, Mich., High School, 1878. He taught a year, then entered the University of Michigan, Class of '83; elected Freshman Historian, principal contributor to the Sophomore "Oracle," corresponding secretary Alpha Delta Phi; for his excellence in Greek and Natural History was advised by the professor of each to adopt that branch of teaching for his life work. Leaving college through ill health, he studied law in Grand Rapids, also a year with the leading practitioner of Petosky, Mich., where, for services rendered the Pottowatomie Indians, he was adopted by the tribe under the name of "Kenoshaus" (pickerel, big-mouth—hence orator).

Long a student of Shakespeare and excelling as a reader and amateur actor, he now accepted a flattering offer from Thomas Keene, the tragedian. The next 5 years were spent in touring the United States with such eminent players as Booth, Barrett, Sheridan, Haworth, Marie Prescott, and under "the Frohmans." He became a B. P. O. E. and a recognized "leading heavy," with bright prospects; but finding the life too exacting for his nervous type, he returned to practice at Grand Rapids, incidentally writing the chapter, "Bench and Bar," for Baxter's History of Grand Rapids. In 1890 he removed to Minneapolis, where he continued in the law, and was a chief assistant in the preparation of Judge Atwater's excellent history of that city. He removed to Chicago in 1893 and continued there until 1901, when ill health sent him to Phoenix, Ariz. During this period he was attorney for the State Board of Dental Examiners and interested also in important cases, one being a division suit among minors of the real estate of his deceased father, valued at $100,000. He went to Auburn in Sept., 1904.

Genealogically, he traced back, among others, to Richard Warren of the Mayflower and to those early governors of Massachusetts, Thomas Dudley and Simon Bradstreet; the latter the first public man who dared brave the savage furies of the Salem Witchcraft in 1692 and his wife, Anne, the first American woman of letters, whose old mansion is still standing at Andover, Mass. Through his mother he was descended from John² Brigham, thus having 2 lines of descent from Thomas¹ Brigham. Always an eager student of history and genealogy, Willard turned naturally to literary work along these lines when failing health compelled him to abandon the law. Since 1893 he continued uninterruptedly the historianship of the Brigham Family Association, then organized (see Appendix) and published an official report of seven reunions filled with historical matter involving years of labor and invaluable to the family. In 1901 he was formally engaged to write the History of the Brigham Family, and it was literally upon his dying bed that his final work upon the present volume was done. How generously and enthusiastically he gave of his time and strength to the family without recompense, how uncomplainingly he later bore the indifference and discouragements incident to some phases of his work, how bravely he battled for life that he might finish his noble, his almost self-imposed task—all this can never be sufficiently known to his kinsmen. His editors marvel at his erudition and his industry. He spent the summer of 1900 in Great Britain and France in researches. In fact, he contracted the disease from which he died while searching the archives in the damp stone buildings of London. He founded the Tyler Family Association (his mother's family), of 5 of whose reunions he published complete reports; and was engaged at the time of his death in tracing all the families of that name in this country. Mr. Brigham was a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Southern History Association, Society of Colonial Wars, Sons of the Revolution, British Record Society; also corresponding member of the New Hampshire and Maine Historical Societies. With all these his rank as a genealogist was established. He is buried in Montpelier.

802 HON. JOHNSON⁸, son of Phineas⁷ and Eliza (Johnson) Brigham; born in Cherry Valley, N. Y., 11 March, 1846; married (1) 1 Sept., 1875, Antoinette Gano, in Watkins, N. Y.; married (2) 20 Dec., 1892, Lucy H., daughter of William W. Walker; born in Cedar Rapids, Ia., 17 Jan., 1860; Mrs. Brigham studied at Wellesley College.

In 1869, Mr. Brigham studied at Cornell University, where he was an organizer of A. D. Chapter and its first president; at Hamilton College in 1871. Became a journalist and was editor and proprietor of the Cedar Rapids Republican and founder and managing editor of the Midland Monthly. Was Collector of the Port of Brockport, N. Y., and one term U. S. Consul at Aix la Chapelle, Germany, under Pres't. Harrison. In 1898 became State Librarian of Iowa, with a residence in Des Moines, Ia., which position he now holds. Was Pres't. of the Iowa Library Com., 1890-04; Pres't. Iowa State Library Association, 1902-03; and Chairman Iowa Fifth Congressional Committee and Pres't. of the Iowa State Republican League, 1892, etc., etc. Contributes both prose and poetry to the leading magazines of the country, and has published a novel, "An Old Man's Idyll," under a nom de plume. Mr. Brigham is now, 1907, editing the papers of the late Senator Harlan, of Iowa, at the request of his daughter, Mrs. Robert T. Lincoln, preparatory to writing the Senator's biography for the State Historical Society.

He is an occasional speaker before colleges and institutions and on public occasions; has contributed poems for the B. F. A. meetings; in 1895 delivered the address at the banquet of the Association in Boston, and in 1904 delivered the address at the meeting in St. Louis. He has traveled extensively in America and Europe, and has resided at Elmira, Watkins, Brockport, and Hornellsville, N. Y., and Cedar Rapids and Des Moines, Ia. He has taken a deep interest in the family history. As first Vice-President of the Association he became, by the death of President C. O. Brigham, President of the Association and Chairman of the Publication Committee. The following verses were written for the B. F. A. in 1900:

THOMAS BRIGHAM, THE PURITAN

I

No "doubting Thomas" was our family's founder;
In faith he rode the wide Atlantic's waves.
On yonder rock-ribbed shore he lived, expounder
Of simple creed that Service only Saves.*

* A free translation of our Brigham Family Association motto, "In Cruce Salus."

II

His name shall stand with us for strenuous living,
 For honest thinking, and for righteous laws;
 For humble doing and for noble giving
 Of self for conscience or for freedom's cause.

III

Soul calls to soul, by kinship's ties united;
 From out the past we hear a hale godspeed;
 Soul answers soul, by trials unaffrighted,—
 We, too, would serve, or bravely do the deed.

IV

Our course should mark the way of progress plainly,
 And bid the true and daring walk therein;
 Against it must detraction war but vainly,—
 Who strives for progress can but grandly win.

DR. B. A. R. BRIGHAM, OF CHICAGO (823)
First Secretary of the Brigham Family Association, 1893-1896

APPENDIX

"BRIGHAM FARME ON YE ROCKS."

In 1648 there was laid out by the town of Cambridge to Thomas¹ Brigham "72 acres on ye Rocks on Charlestown line." In view of the important error of Mr. Morse in locating upon this plot the homestead in which Thomas died in 1653, the place has borne a distinction in Brigham family history which is unwarranted by its actual position as a Brigham possession. Morse, mistaking the well-known ledges of Clarendon Hill for "ye Cambridge Rocks," declares that the last habitation of Thomas was in Somerville. Having done this, he easily draws a graphic picture of the Brigham Farm as it might have appeared in the last days of its owner; and he even goes so far as to offer the baseless conjecture that Thomas was buried in Medford.

The "Cambridge Rocks" were, as Morse says, a well-known ancient landmark, but they were not where Morse places them. They begin in Cambridge on the Watertown line, at a point which is now the corner of Pleasant Street and Concord Avenue, Belmont. They skirt the western boundary of Pleasant Street to the corner of Massachusetts Avenue, Arlington, where the public library now stands. This site was originally the corner of the old Watertown road. Thence they cross Massachusetts Avenue and, following the line of the present Water Street, extend to Fowle's Mill Pond and thence northwesterly along the mill pond and brook, and northerly across the brook to the Charlestown line. (This brook, Sucker Brook, was originally Alewife Meadow Brook, and should not be confounded with the present Alewife Brook, flowing out of Fresh Pond, originally the Menotomy [a] River.) "The Rocks" continued along the Charlestown line to a point near the present Lexington and Arlington line. The territory to the west—Lexington since 1713—was originally known as Cambridge Farms.

It was colloquial to refer to the grants in this immediate vicinity as the "small farms"; hence the item in the inventory of the property of Thomas¹ Brigham, "a small farme at Charlestown line, £10." The ancient use of the term "farm" did not imply that the land was under cultivation.

It will thus be seen that all the present Arlington Heights, also the well-known Turkey Hill (which is half an inch lower), was included in what was anciently known as the Cambridge Rocks.

Of the 72-acre grant to Thomas¹ Brigham, it may be said, in modern terms, that it is now in a northwest part of Arlington. While originally bounded on the north by Charlestown line, a change in the line at the incorporation of Winchester (originally Woburn) in 1850 left a triangular piece in the northwest corner lying in Winchester. Turkey Hill is near the center of the grant. Forest Street runs across the property, about a mile from Massachusetts Avenue, where one leaves the electric car.

The 48-acre grant of Nicholas Wyeth, which adjoined that of Thomas¹ Brigham on the northwest, later passed into possession of Henry Dunster, first president of Harvard College, and was held by his descendants many years. In a bill of sale of the Dunster piece given by John Steadman, county treasurer, to Thomas Danforth, in 1674, the lot is described as bounded "n. (n.e.) by Woburn line . . . e. (s.e.) by a small farm layed out to Thomas Brigham." The Brigham grant also adjoined, on the Charlestown line, a 300-acre farm of Increase Nowell and also the 480 acres of "Squa Sachem," which the Colony reserved to her when settlement was made with the Indians for the territory comprising Charlestown and Cambridge. The familiar Indian monument on the Peter C. Brooks place in West Medford was erected by Mr. Brooks in memory of the son of Squa Sachem, Sagamore John.

Thomas¹ Brigham died 8 Dec., 1653, leaving this 72-acre grant, with all his other property, to his widow and five children. In 1656 the General Court gave the overseers of his will the right to sell all his real estate. It would appear that this "Brigham Farm," as many ancient deeds refer to it, was bought for £16 by Hon. Thomas Danforth, an executor of the will, although no deed of the property is recorded. In 1695 the farm on the Rocks figures in the suit brought by the children of Thomas Brigham to recover, apparently, all the property which the overseers of their father's will had sold. In the formal ceremony of claiming the "Brigham Farm," as quaintly attested by the witnesses in the chapter on "Thomas Brigham the Emigrant," it will be noted that the "ffarme" is described as "upon the Rocks within the bounds of Cambridge."

Settlement was reached apparently in 1703, when on 26 Feb., Thomas², Samuel² and John² Brigham quitclaimed "that tract or p^ccell of land commonly called or known by y^e name of Brighams farme: Scituate, lying and being on y^e Rocks neer Oburn line within the Township of Cambridge . . . containing by Estimation Seventy Two acres be the same more or less . . .," to Francis Foxcroft, Esq., Samuel Sparhawk and Daniel Champney, joint executors of the will of Hon. Thomas Danforth. This deed was given "in consideration of the Sum of Sixteen Pounds pd to y^c Children of Thomas Brigham late of Cambridge Dece'd by Thomas Danforth Esq. and Thomas Fox called Overseers of y^e Estate of s^d Thomas Brigham Dece'd: and Thirty pounds in money to us in hand etc." From this document, and others affecting the other properties, it might be inferred that the suits grew out of the dissatisfaction of the children of Thomas, now of age, with the disposition of their property while they were yet minors.

In 1706 the property was bought by Thomas³ Prentice for £68. It was then bounded "N.E. by Charlestown line, N.W. by Nathaniel Patten Senior and John Carter of Oburn, W. by Walter³ Russell E. and S. E. by the land of Jason Russell." Thomas³ Prentice was a brickmaker and resided on what is now the west side of Garden Street opposite the Botanical Garden. He died 7 Dec., 1709; and the inventory shows: "72 acres, Brigham's Farm, £68." In the distribution of his property the Brigham Farm went to his son, Rev. Thomas⁴ Prentice (b. 1702, H. C. 1726, d. 1782), who made his first sale, of nine acres, in 1724, as if to aid him through Harvard, to Andrew Mallet, who built the Old Powder House in Somerville. A second purchaser, of twenty acres, was Deacon John Bradish, a celebrated real estate trader of his day. He always styled himself, even in his deeds, "glazier of Harvard College," and he held this unique position for forty years. By 1753 Rev. Thomas Prentice had disposed of more than 70 acres of the original grant for £443. Much of the property remained within the Prentice family.

In 1773 John⁵ Hutchinson, whose descendants at the present time own all but about ten acres of the original grant, made his first purchase from the Brigham tract, paying Henry Prentice, an uncle of the Rev. Thomas, £50, 13s. 4d. for 9½ acres "on * Turkey Hill"—the first mention of this name in the deeds. John Hutchinson owned and occupied the Nowell-Broughton-Gardner farm of about 70 acres adjoining on the Charlestown side of the line, and at his death in 1783 had acquired also some 40 acres of the Brigham place. In 1817 his son Thomas⁶, to whom the farm later descended, bought 22½ acres more, 20 of which were "Brigham land," of Daniel Reed of Charlestown, making all but about eight acres, on the southwest side, of the original grant. At the death of Thomas⁶ in 1863, the property was divided among his six children, and most of it is still held by their heirs. No building ever has been erected on the land originally owned by Thomas Brigham. It is now partly tilled. The Hutchinson homestead, on the original Charlestown side on the old Nowell farm and replacing the buildings erected in

* In olden times this was a favorite sighting point for vessels making Boston Harbor, as it was heavily wooded and Arlington Heights was not.

Hutchinson, a daughter, Miss Mary A., and a son, Thomas⁸ M. Hutchinson, the well-known antiquarian, to whose generosity and exhaustive researches, covering many years, the writer is indebted for many of these authenticated facts relative to the "Brigham Farme on Ye Rocks."

APPENDIX B

BRIGHAMS IN THE EARLY WARS

In every stage of the nation's progress whenever it has become necessary to resort to arms, the Brigham family has loyally responded to every call for volunteers. The colonial and revolutionary periods brought to the front a remarkable quota of Brighams, and the roll of honor is a heritage which their descendants may justly transmit with pride to coming generations. The civil war, the greatest conflict of modern times, found earnest defenders of the Union among the Brighams, and the intelligent bravery displayed by them on various battlefields would furnish an interesting chapter of history. We have not attempted to give a complete list of the Brighams in this war, but where known the records have been entered under individuals.

In the Black Hawk war, which was one of the incidents of the early settlement of the western section of the United States, Sylvester Brigham (519), who was a pioneer from Massachusetts, did his part in opening to civilization that vast region, which has since furnished many of the largest and most prosperous States to the Union.

About the same period Asa (403) and Benjamin (403-iii) served in the war with Mexico under Major Morse; and Henry O. (682), who entered the service as a drummer boy, earned by merit the ranks of lieutenant and major—a great distinction in view of the fact that regular troops of the United States preponderated in that contest and junior officers from that branch were usually selected for promotion.

In the war with England, 1812-15, the Brigham family sent the following named representatives:

Dexter B. (189), pri.; Pierpont (186), capt.; Elijah (198), capt.?[;] Jonas (208-iv), officer?[;] John (278), pri.; Josiah (251), (Morse, p. 43); Bela (415), capt. (Morse, p. 54); Uriah (147-iii) (Morse, p. 76); Pliny (153-iii); Joel (227), lieut.; Silas (274);

William C. (446), sergt.; Ephraim (192), col.; Ebenezer (179), capt.; Curtis (434), captured as a civilian; Thomas (476), killed Chippewa Plains, Canada, after three years' service; Orleans (307); Asa (403), Maj. Morse; Benjamin (403-v); Henry (682) drummer boy, lieutenant and major.

It is difficult to present satisfactorily a story of the revolutionary heroes, as the records of that period are incomplete and probably inaccurate. Every known source of information, however, has been sought in securing the list and every means of verification has been tried. It is interesting to note that the "minute men" of 1775 had a remarkable percentage of Brighams, who not only marched to Lexington and Concord but also to other points which were threatened by English troops.

BRIGHAMS IN THE REVOLUTION.

Aaron, Marlboro (163), pri., Capt. Edward Langley's Co., Col. Cogswell's Regt.; served three months in fortifications around Boston; later six months in Continental Army.

Abel, Sudbury (51-i), pri., Capt. Andrew Haskell's Co., Col. Thomas Marshall's Regt.; served from 23 June, 1776, to 1 Dec., 1776, 5 mos., 9 days; also in Capt. Moses Barnes' Co., Lieut.-Col. Pierce's Regt., from 29 May, 1779, to 1 July, 1779 in Rhode Island; served in Continental Army for 6 mos.; in Capt. Ashael Wheeler's Co., Col. APPENDIX D.

BRIGHAM YOUNG NOT A BRIGHAM.

Because of Brigham Young's Christian name, the author of this work often has been called upon to explain a seeming consanguinity. Fortunately, the truth is not far to seek. Brigham Young was a son of John Young, once of Hopkinton, Mass., who married Abigail Howe, daughter of Phineas Howe of Hopkinton. Said Abigail had a sister Susanna Howe, who married Phineas Brigham of Southboro, Mass., and Eaton, N. Y. Susanna and her race were such estimable people that Brigham Young was honored by being christened after his Brigham aunt. This (Deo laudamus!) is the utmost opprobrium the Brigham family has to bear in the matter of "The Prophet."

APPENDIX E.

TWO BRIGHAM HOSPITALS.

It is a matter of profound pride with the Brigham Family that the name of Brigham is to be perpetuated by two of the noblest charities the spirit of beneficence could devise; that the two men of the Brigham name who won the greatest success, from the material point of view, should have sought to outrival each other in generous provision for the helpless and suffering of posterity.

The careers of Peter Bent Brigham and his nephew, Robert Breck Brigham, were singularly alike in many respects. Both men came from the country without means and laid the basis of their fortunes in the restaurant business. Both owed their greatest financial success to their foresight in the purchase and development of real estate. Both confined their investments to property within a short distance of their places of business. Both were men of the highest integrity and correct personal habits, kindly, unassuming and little influenced by ambitions outside their own sphere of activity. Neither sought public life, yet both were keenly interested in the issues of the day and contributed materially to the upbuilding of the community in which their business lives were passed. Alike in life and effort, in death each made identically the same disposition of his property for the benefit of humanity.

Peter Bent Brigham died at his home in Boston 24 May, 1877, leaving a will which was duly admitted to probate 17 Oct., 1877. According to the inventory of his estate, filed in 1877, the real estate was valued at $690,000, and the personal estate at $659,075.74, as follows:

There were debts of about $150,000, personal bequests of $55,500, personal annuities of $14,600; and provision also was made for the distribution of $138,000 among the children of the annuitants, if living, at the death of the latter. The sum of $40,000 was bequeathed to the Town of Bakersfield, Vt.; the income of $10,000 to be expended for the care of the graves of the parents, brothers and sisters of the testator and of the burying ground generally, and the remaining $30,000 to be invested as a permanent fund, "which shall be called the Brigham School Fund and the income thereof shall be expended for educational purposes, either in the district schools or for a school of higher grade, as the said town shall from time to time determine."

The supremely important provision of the will was as follows:

"At the expiration of said term of twenty-five years from time of my decease, my said Executors shall dispose of said rest and residue of my property and estate, and of all the interest and accumulations which shall have accrued thereon, for the purpose of founding a hospital, in said Boston, to be called the Brigham Hospital, for the care of sick persons, in indigent circumstances, residing in the said County of Suffolk, in the following manner, that is to say; they shall procure the formation of a corporation to be called the 'Brigham Hospital,' with suitable provisions as to officers, their powers and duties for control, direction, conduct and administration of the corporation and the care and management of the funds in its charge; and upon the legal formation and organization of said corporation, my said Executors shall transfer to it all the property and estate provided for it as aforesaid, to be by it used and employed for the purposes above declared, and I give, devise, and bequeath said rest and residue of my property and estate accordingly."

The Executors were given full power as to sale, lease and management of the real estate, to change and alter investments, and to treat stock dividends, in their discretion, as belonging either to the principal or income of the estate.

The will was witnessed by J. P. Healy, C. F. Kittredge, and Fisher Ames. Robert Codman and Joseph Healy of Boston were appointed Executors of the will; and it was expressly directed by the testator that no bond should be required of either of them.

Mr. Healy died soon after the testator, and the property remained in the sole control of Mr. Codman until his death in January, 1901. In all the annals of trusteeship, there is no more splendid example of faithful and able administration of a trust than was exhibited by Robert Codman in his management of the property of Peter B. Brigham. It was not Mr. Codman's nature to speculate, and it is said of him that in the various and important trusteeships with which he was honored, he never lost a dollar. With property representing $1,349, 075.74 committed to his care in 1877, Mr. Codman's Twenty-second Annual Report, made just before his death, showed a book value of $2,846,718.47, or representing an actual value considerably in excess of this figure.

Upon the death of Robert Codman, his son, Edmund D. Codman, and Laurence H. H. Johnson were duly appointed trustees under the will, 25 January, 1901. On 8 May, 1902, they procured the formation of a corporation called the "Peter Bent Brigham Hospital." On 22 May, 1902, the General Court, by Chapter 418 of the Acts of 1902, authorized the Hospital to hold, "for the purposes for which it was incorporated, real and personal estate, to an amount not exceeding $5,000,000 in value, including the amount that it is already authorized by law to hold" ($1,500,000).

On 24 May, 1902, exactly twenty-five years after the death of the testator, the Peter B. Brigham Hospital took over the real and personal estate, amounting to $4,323,168 appraised value. On 24 May, 1906, this immense property had appreciated more than $700,000, and had a book value of $5,045,255.54.

The Peter Bent Brigham Hospital is composed (1907), as originally, of the following named: Alexander Cochrane, president; Edmund D. Codman, treasurer; Laurence H. H. Johnson, secretary; Eben S. Draper, Augustus Hemenway, Walter Hunnewell, Henry S. Howe, and William Ropes Trask.

Except for litigation upon certain technical points, the outcome of which is not feared by the Trustees, the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital already would be an established institution. The corporation has made an agreement to purchase of Harvard College, upon advantageous terms, a site adjoining the new Harvard Medical School on the Back Bay Fens. The corporation has made a friendly arrangement with the Harvard authorities which, it is expected, will be mutually beneficial to the Hospital and the Harvard Medical School. In view of some misunderstandings created by this action, it may be said that the Peter B. Brigham Hospital will remain wholly independent of the Harvard authorities in point of purpose and administration. The terms of the alliance between the Peter B. Brigham Hospital and Harvard College are sufficiently illustrated by the following extract from a letter of the Trustees to the authorities of Harvard:

"So far as the charitable purposes of this trust shall in our opinion permit, we hereby declare our desire to promote the objects of your Medical School by seeking advice from its Faculty, and by giving careful consideration to its nomination in making appointments to our Medical Staff, and by permitting access for students to the Hospital. Except for the purchase of the land, subject to the defeat, as above stated, of all claims of the Brigham heirs, we do not enter into any agreement or contract in any sense, but we are ready if you so desire to spread this letter upon our records."

Robert Breck Brigham died 2 Jan., 1900, leaving a will wherein he appointed Charles O. L. Dillaway, Halsey J. Boardman and Sylvester G. Willey as Trustees. Mr. Boardman and Mr. Willey have since died and their places were filled by William E. L. Dillaway and Hiram M. Burton who, with Charles O. L. Dillaway, constitute the present (1907) Trustees under the will. Charles O. L. Dillaway acts as surviving Executor, the others having died. The Trustees are to be succeeded, after ten years, by the New England Trust Company as Trustee.

Mr. Brigham left an estate valued at about $3,000,000. This was represented by about $750,000 of personal and about $2,250,000 real estate, the latter including, besides Brigham's Hotel, the Hollis Street Theatre and much of the remainder of the property on Hollis Street, Burroughs Place and Hollis Place; the building occupied for years by Cobb, Aldrich & Co., corner of Washington and Kneeland Streets; the building formerly occupied by Cobb, Bates & Yerxa, corner Washington and Beach Streets, now the site of the Globe and a smaller theatre; a large block on Eliot Street, and a block on Beach Street; parcels corner Shawmut Avenue and Dover Street and elsewhere.

The will provided for small bequests to individuals ranging from $100 to $1000, amounting to about $15,000; two personal life annuities of $200 each and one of $300; a gift of $2000 to the Boston Emergency Hospital and an annuity (in perpetuity) of $1000, payable every year, to each of the following named charitable institutions: Massachusetts Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary, Associated Charities of Boston, Boston Dispensary, Boston Provident Association, Channing Home, Children's Hospital, Children's Mission to the Children of the Destitute, City Missionary Society, Home for Aged Men, Home for Aged Women, Massachusetts Infant Asylum, New England Home for Little Wanderers, Home for Aged Couples, Boston Children's Aid Society, Boston Home for Incurables, Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind, New England Hospital for Women and Children, Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, Boston Lying-in Hospital, Home for Aged Colored Women, Burnap Home for Aged Women, all of Boston; and the Warner Home of St. Albans, Vt.

In line with the tender solicitude of the testator for the helpless, whether by reason of extreme youth, old age, or other infirmity, the will provided also that the balance of the net income from the estate should be paid to the "Robert B. Brigham Hospital for Incurables"; said corporation to be organized "for the purpose of maintaining an institution for the care and support and medical and surgical treatment of those citizens of Boston who are without necessary means of support and are incapable of obtaining a com-portable livelihood, by reason of chronic or incurable disease or permanent physical disabilities."

All the net income of the estate over and above the annuities—these amounting to $22,000—is to be invested by the Trustees and held by them for accumulation until the accrued income, with interest thereon, is of an amount which is large enough, in the opinion of the Directors of the Hospital, for the purchase of land in the city of Boston and the erection and thorough equipment of a building or buildings of size and capacity adequate for the purposes of said Hospital. On the erection of the Hospital, the Trustees are to convey the same, together with the land, to the Robert B. Brigham Hospital for Incurables, and thereafter the Trustees under the will are to pay all the rest, residue and remainder of the net income from the estate as the same shall be collected to the Robert B. Brigham Hospital for Incurables forever.

In accordance with the direction of the will that "said Trustees shall select not less than seven citizens of Boston, well known and of high character and reputation, who shall associate themselves together and form a corporation under the provision of Chapter 115 of the Public Statutes of Massachusetts, or under a special act of the Legislature, if deemed advisable," the Robert B. Brigham Hospital for Incurables was organized 11 Feb., 1903, with the following named persons as incorporators: John Shepard, Charles J. Lincoln, Francis H. Manning, Andrew J. Bailey, Michael J. Anagnos, Hiram M. Burton, Ubert K. Pettingill, Eugene N. Foss and Charles F. Whittemore. The following named are directors of the Hospital: Andrew J. Bailey, Miss Elizabeth F. Brigham, Eugene N. Foss, William S. Crosby, Francis H. Manning, Ubert K. Pettingill, Wallace L. Pierce, John Shepard, C. F. Whittemore. The foregoing, with the following named, compose the present (1906) membership of the Corporation: John Quincy Adams, Hiram M. Burton, James S. Conant, Ernest W. Cushing, M. D., Charles O. L. Dillaway, Wm. E. L. Dillaway, Robert B. Dixon, M. D., William J. Fegan, Charles H. Olmstead, John F. Souther.

In 1902 the Trustees under the will purchased about ten acres of land on the top of Parker Hill, Roxbury District, as a site for the Hospital. The site is about 230 feet above sea level and is one of the highest and most commanding locations in the city of Boston, within whose limits, according to a provision of the will, the buildings must be erected.

Under the terms of the will, the total net income after the construction of the buildings must be applied to the maintenance of the Hospital; thus precluding, inferentially if not absolutely, additions, whether of land or buildings, to the original Hospital estate. The Trustees under the will are restrained also, except on order of the Court, from acquiring or disposing of real estate except for the Hospital purposes specified. The estate is now free of litigation, but for the reasons stated, and others, the Directors of the Hospital are awaiting a sufficient accumulation of the fund before beginning construction. The Trustees under the will have accumulated a large surplus for Hospital purposes, and expect to begin construction within a very few years. It is provided in the will that on the completion of the Hospital a tablet of stone or bronze bearing the inscription "Erected by Robert B. and Elizabeth F. Brigham" shall be set in an appropriate place in the building or in one of the buildings if there be more than one.

APPENDIX F.

BRIGHAM FAMILY ASSOCIATION.

* The Brigham Family Association owes its origin to the late Dr. Brayton A. R. Brigham of Chicago, upon whose call Brighams resident in Chicago met in his office 15 Aug., 1893, to consider "the question of holding a reunion of the Brigham Family in Chicago during the Columbian Exposition." Besides Dr. Brigham, Rev. Leonard W., and Messrs. Edward D. and Gus. B. Brigham attended, and took action which led to a gathering of 107 persons, representing the Brigham name, held in the Illinois State Building of the Exposition 18 Oct., 1893.

The Brigham Family Association was then organized with these officers: President, Charles O. Brigham of Toledo, O.; vice-presidents, Captain H. G. Brigham of Chicago, O. A. Brigham of Lowell, Mass., Hon. Johnson Brigham of Des Moines, Iowa, Thomas Brigham Rice of Barre, Mass., James R. Brigham of Corry, Pa.; secretary, B. A. R. Brigham, M. D., of Chicago; treasurer, E. D. Brigham of Chicago; historian, Willard I. Tyler Brigham of Chicago; librarian, Emma E. Brigham of Boston; orator, Rev. George F. Brigham of Sharon, Wis.; and a board of trustees consisting of these and Charles W. Brigham of Lowell, Mass., Gus. B. Brigham of Chicago, H. C. Brigham, M. D., of Grand Rapids, Mich., Colonel J. H. Brigham of Delta, O., and Jerome R. Brigham of Milwaukee. The features of the meeting were a description, by Hon. Johnson Brigham, of a visit to the town of Brigham, Cockermouth, England; an address, "The Lineage of Brigham," treating of the English origin and heraldry of the Brigham Family, by the Historian, W. I. T. Brigham; an address by Rev. George F. Brigham of Sharon, Wis.; an exhibition of relics, deeds and other heirlooms; and the singing of a quartet, "Brigham," the words and music by the venerable Mavor Brigham, father of the first President of the Association. A Constitution was adopted (superseded in 1898); and a full coat of arms exhibited, as follows: Ar. a fleur de lis within an orle of martlets sable; crest, a boar's head bendways coupé sa; motto, In cruce salus. From the address of the Historian it was learned that "Dr. B. A. R. Brigham has in his possession a letter elicited from an English-American Brigham, who can trace his descent through very many generations, who speaks of this motto as being won in Palestine in the time of the Crusades for acts of bravery on the part of an ancestor." * The valuable pamphlet descriptive of this meeting is now out of print.

The second meeting was held at Marlboro, Mass., 12 Sept., 1894, with Loriman S. Brigham as Local Chairman. It was voted to adopt the coat of arms, crest and the motto, "In Cruce Salus," as the emblem of the Association. Mayor William M. Davenport welcomed the Association at the dinner in City Hall.

All Odd Fellows Building was utilized for the reunion held in Boston, 5 Oct., 1895, William E. Brigham of Somerville, Mass., Local Chairman. Not less than 500 persons attended the banquet in the afternoon and the ball in the evening. Thanks to Miss Emma E. Brigham, the first, and Addington M. Brigham, the present Librarian-Curator, the general display of antiquities at Marlboro in 1894 and the portrait show in Boston in 1895 constituted two of the most noteworthy exhibitions of the kind ever given under the auspices of a family association in this country. Among these family treasures were the carved oak box in which Mercy Hurd, wife of Thomas Brigham the Emigrant, brought her caps from England; the original deed, in parchment, by Benjamin Rice to Thomas² Brigham, of the Thomas Brigham farm in Marlboro; a silver salt cup which belonged to a daughter of Mary Chilton, the first woman to land on Plymouth Rock in 1620—it having been held in the Brigham Family for generations; the chair in which Thomas² Brigham died; and scores of other priceless articles. Of the portrait show, one writer has said: "The opportunity to trace the Brigham characteristics in those old portraits was improved with eagerness; and it was clearly shown that two or three types have come down to the present day with great persistence. The peculiar droop of the eyelids, noticed in many of the visitors, was seen also in a large number of the portraits." The Committee on Family Badge made a report, showing a pin of design picked out from a Brigham coat-of-arms, already described, which was formally adopted.

The Worcester reunion of 14 Oct., 1896, Lucius L. Brigham, Local Chairman, was held in the Y. M. C. A. building and Salisbury Hall. It was noteworthy as being the last held under strictly local auspices and at the personal expense of local residents; and for an important change in administrative policy. President Charles O. Brigham, an ideal official, voluntarily retired, and William E. Brigham of Somerville was elected president and Miss Emma E. Brigham of Boston secretary.

The new administration entered upon its duties with a well-defined policy, prominent in which was the purpose to raise the B. F. A. to an independent financial position, thus relieving individuals of the heavy expense incident to the reunions; and to insist that the Association fulfil its original mission of undertaking the preparation and publication of a History of the Brigham Family. It was with great satisfaction, therefore, that the Treasurer was able to report to the fifth meeting, held in Marlboro, 14 Sept., 1898, that all bills had been paid by the Association, and nearly $100 remained in the treasury. A simplified Constitution, providing for biennial, instead of annual, reunions was adopted; the President outlined plans looking to the ultimate publication of a History of the Brigham Family, and urged also the preservation, in pamphlet form, of the admirable historical papers prepared by the Historian, W. I. T. Brigham, for every meeting of the Association.* At this meeting, as at Worcester in 1896, a successful group picture of the Association was taken.

Charles O. Brigham reassumed the presidency and Willard I. Tyler Brigham was elected Secretary-Historian of the Association at the sixth meeting held in the American House, Boston, 10 Oct., 1900. At the dinner, the Historian exhibited photographs and gave an interesting account of his recent visit to historic Brigham places in England.† Upon the menu was a poetic illumination of the family motto, "In Cruce Salus," by Hon. Johnson Brigham.

The seventh reunion, held in the American House, 10 Sept., 1902, marked an epoch in the history of the Association and the great work it had undertaken. In 1900 President William E. Brigham had said: "The past of the Brigham Family Association has been such that we review it with inexpressible pride. Our greatest successes, however, must be of the future. For a year or two after its organization, the B. F. A. held hopefully to its original plan of making itself the means of the publication of a "Lineage of Brigham," which should complete the honorable work so well begun by Rev. Abner Morse, A. M., in 1859; but an unexpected change of circumstances rendered the immediate consummation of this project impracticable, and the officers, abandoning with regret the earlier proposition, concentrated their efforts upon a development of the social features of the organization; depending upon time and strength gained from social contact to indicate the way toward a fresh start. This policy has proved its own wisdom. . . . The Brigham Family Association, as such, is in a position to authorize the preparation of a 'Lineage of Brigham,' under its own auspices."

* These papers were gathered in a pamphlet in 1900, and form the basis of the historical chapters of this volume.

† The Historian was aided materially in extending his British researches by the special contributions of members of the Brigham Family Association.

Confidence had been restored; and at this meeting in 1902 it was reported that a sufficient guaranty fund had been raised to secure the preparation of a History of the Brigham Family. The details of the plan were worked out by President C. O. Brigham. A Committee on Publication was appointed and Willard I. Tyler Brigham, secretary-historian of the B. F. A. and a trained genealogist, was engaged to prepare the book. His own painstaking researches had continued, modestly and without reward, since 1893; and no better choice could have been made. The valuable genealogical documents collected by the late Dr. B. A. R. Brigham were purchased by the B. F. A., thus materially shortening the task of the Genealogist.

At the eighth meeting of the B. F. A., held in the American House, 14 Sept., 1904, none of the social features which had made all the reunions so successful were lacking.* At the seventh and eighth reunions, papers were read as follows, in addition to the regular contributions of the Historian: "Hon. Lincoln F. Brigham, Jurist and Scholar," by Hon. William T. Forbes of Worcester; "Dr. Amariah Brigham, a Distinguished Specialist," by Dr. D. R. Burrell of Canandaigua, N. Y.; "Nicholas Brigham," by Hon. William T. Forbes. Secretary Willard I. T. Brigham had planned a "Brigham Day" at the St. Louis Exposition, which was held, but without his presence, Hon. Johnson Brigham making an address; and at the time of the Boston reunion he lay upon his death bed, writing to the last. He died within a few days; his work unfinished, but so far advanced that it was practicable for others to attempt its completion. How well this duty has been performed by Miss Emma E. Brigham of Boston and her associates,

* It is deeply regretted that there is not space to treat herein of the social features of the B. F. A. reunions and to give due credit to the many talented Brighams and others who made them so delightful. These were described in the published report of 1900.

B. F. A. AT BOSTON 1904

the present volume attests. C. O. Brigham, the first and last president of the Association, here greeted his kinsmen for the last time, for he died in May, 1906. He is succeeded by Hon. Johnson Brigham of Des Moines, State Librarian of Iowa. At this writing, the ninth meeting of the Association is called to take place at Marlboro, Mass., June 6, 1907, when it is expected that "The History of the Brigham Family" will be ready for distribution.

In closing this imperfect sketch of a noble organization, its difficult task and its measurable achievement, can more fitting words be used than those of the beloved President C. O. Brigham in his magnificent and what proved to be farewell address to the Brigham Family Association in 1904:

"No one, I think, can look back over the history of our Association without discovering the fact that since its organization in Chicago at the time of the World's Fair in 1893, up to the present hour, we have easily enjoyed a position at the head of the family associations of America; and I cannot doubt that even if many of the older ones, myself included, are to be swept aside in the all-devouring process of time, there will be raised up to this association another generation who will take up the work where we are compelled to lay it down. Our lips shall teach this to our sons, and they again to theirs, that generations yet unborn may teach their sons, and so shall we hand down this work to succeeding generations; adding to its interest and value as times goes on."

So mote it be!

Emma West Yale was born in 1819. in Bristol
She came to America from England in 1822
with her father and mother and her sister,
Zenobia West, at three years of age.

2, 1819. Emma West was born in 1819. 1822, in Bristol, England. 1822.
Ada West was born in this country about 1836, being about seventeen years younger than Mrs. Yale. Their father was John West, and the mother Anne Glede Hunt, and they came from Bristol, England.

Mr. West was probably interested in shipping. He brought with him a letter of introduction to Mr. William Colgate.
They came largely because they were Nonconformists, and to avoid religious persecution. John West had a brother younger than himself, thought to be Thomas.
